A SCIENCE MUSEUM - AT LAST

By Ruby Jean Phillips
VIRGINIA BEACH — Students studying the natural sciences, whether it be on the third grade or college level, will get a big helping hand in their projects next month when a museum dealing with all phases of natural history opens here. It will be the first such cultural center in the entire Tidewater area.

The opening of the Nautilus Museum has long been the dream of its owner and curator, Mrs. Zida Astrip Kibler, who for 20 years has collected, tagged and verified every conceivable type of specimen of the early world. Some of the items to be displayed in the museum date back 25,000 years to the time of the Neanderthal man. And there are fossils that go back to the beginning of time. These specimens have been identified and endorsed for authenticity by the Smithsonian Institute.

Although the museum building at 311 17th Street is now in its pre-completion stages, it promises to be one of the most extensive and beautifully arranged exhibits to be found on the East Coast. Mrs. Kibler has combined her knowledge of the sciences with her love of the arts to beautifully display each item—and there are 50,000 of them—to its best advantage.

In designing and building the museum she has obviously kept one idea in mind... what will better attract and instill interest in the youngsters. This is a natural inclination since over the past year Mrs. Kibler has lectured to well over 4,000 students, taking time away from her Nautilus Shell Shop to assist them in compiling and identifying their own displays for science projects.

The appreciation shown by both students and teachers is apparent in the large file of thank-you letters she keeps. She has been so pleased from the response of visiting school groups that she hopes to display in the museum some of the letters they have written her.

The idea of the museum was first mentioned a year ago when Mrs. Kibler spoke to the Beach Executive Council of Civic Associations and the group enthusiastically supported such a project. She has since spoken to many organizations all over the city, each reacting with the same approval.

But as the months passed the museum project didn't materialize and youngsters kept seeking knowledge and information from Mrs. Kibler in the confined quarters of her shell shop. By the end of the last school term it was apparent the need had outgrown the facilities. She made up displays and took them to the schools, but these were too limited to be truly beneficial. She had to turn away many requests for tours of the shop and lectures in the schools. There just was not enough time or space.

"So I decided to plunge ahead with the museum," Mrs. Kibler said. "I don't really know how I will get it all done but I could not keep turning down youngsters who want to know about the sciences. And opening all those boxes filled with rare specimens that have been hidden away for years was just like Christmas!"

Tackling the job of the museum has not been easy, Mrs. Kibler has worked night after night not only preparing the exhibits but actually building the display cases for them. The walls are lined with caches that are so rare and exquisite they have been written up in "Who's Who in Indian Relics." The periods of many are explained through displays that start at the front door with some of the earliest specimens to the back of the large building with Indian relics such as arrowheads and pottery. In the center of the room are fascinating collections of shells from all over the world, obtained by the owner in her travels, and in the very front is an elaborate underwater garden display featuring some very rare deep sea life specimens.

But there are many other aspects of the museum in the making other than displays. There will be a library, a trading post, special guests exhibits and many other special features.

The library will include all of the research books and old back issues of various publications carrying articles on the natural sciences which Mrs. Kibler has collected over the years. These will be arranged in a nicely decorated sitting room so that they may be used for reference material.

The trading post is designed to stimulate youngsters' interest in collecting their own specimens. Those who do find or obtain an item may bring it to the trading post to trade with other students. "I obtained many of my specimens that way when I was a child," Mrs. Kibler said.

The first tour of the museum has been scheduled for a sixth grade class from Larrymore Elementary School on October 9. The museum in its entirety will not be completed by then, but its vivacious owner refused to turn them down. "It probably won't be completed the way I want for years to come," she said. "So I may as well go ahead and accept the children. After all, they don't care about the frills. They only want to learn and that's why I opened it in the first place."

THOMPSON NAMED

VIRGINIA BEACH — W. G. Thompson, Jr. has been named as one of the Directors of the Automotive Trade Association of Virginia by C. B. Gifford, President.

Beach Man Is On Humphrey's Team

Nick Kostasopoulos (center), Virginia Beach broker and owner of the Saxony Motel here, is keeping a busy schedule these days after being assigned by the Democratic National Committee as an advance man for the Democratic Vice Presidential candidate, Sen. Hubert Humphrey (left). His duties involve planning the candidate's visits to various cities and regions and taking care of the mammoth preparations that go into the visit. Pictured with Sen. Humphrey and Kostasopoulos is Sen. Vance Hartke of Indiana. Kostasopoulos was also an advance man for the late Sen. Estes Kefauver when he ran as the Democratic vice presidential candidate in 1956.

State regulatory inspectors, together with federal pest control agents, are now notifying owners of land to be treated with dieldrin for control of the white-fringed beetle. BEETLE BAN MAY LAST FIVE YEARS

By Robert Hardy
VIRGINIA BEACH — Virginia Beach is now under a quarantine that may last five years. "The quarantine is not to eradicate the white-fringed beetle, but to control this pest," State Regulatory Inspector Joseph L. Allen told Sun-News.

The program started Monday. So far state and federal inspectors have been notifying owners or occupants of land to be treated. The expense of treating all land over one acre must be borne by the owner. This runs about $20 per acre.

"Most people have been co-operating," said Regulatory Inspector Robert D. Jennings. "Then there are others. When I mention dieldrin, they start quoting Rachel Carson. No doubt the first time they see a dead bird, they are going to blame dieldrin."

But there is a real danger to wildlife if the pesticide is improperly used. To combat this, the Virginia Department of Agriculture has set up a monitoring program.

The Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries, State Water Control Board, Institute of Marine Science, and the United States Department of Agriculture are all cooperating with the VDA in this monitoring.

Under the monitoring program, wildlife surveys will be made, water will be analyzed, and marine life will be tested. Any dead animals found will be examined to see if dieldrin was a death factor.

Surveillance of marine life at three different locations is planned. Analysis will be made before, during, and after any treatment.

Because the white-fringed beetle seldom travels over one hundred yards, not the entire city is infested. Most of the residential sections adjacent to Virginia Beach Boulevard and those areas near the rail road tracks have been found to have beetles.

"We have just completed an intensive survey of the quarantined area," said W. H. Matheny, supervisor of the VDA crop pest section. "This was done to pinpoint infestations and to locate hazardous areas."

"We can now certify products originating in the areas which are free of the pest. There are 72 industrial and other locations which will require inspection and treatment prior to certification for movement of items out of the regulated area."

According to the quarantine every potential carrier of the beetle in any living stage is subject to certification.

Among the items not removable except under prescribed regulations are: field and nursery plants; soil, sand and gravel; farm products; grass sod, scrap metal, and building materials. Also on the list is harvesting machinery, used construction and maintenance equipment, and certain transportation equipment.

Certification for potential carriers of the pests may be obtained by several methods. These are:

- 1) pre-treatment with approved methods by property owners.
- 2) Inspection to determine freedom of any living stage of the beetle.
- 3) Treating at time of inspection to destroy the pest.

FAMILY CONCERT HERE SUNDAY

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Norfolk Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Edgar Schenkman, will present a Family Pops Concert Sunday at 3:30 p.m. at the Alan B. Shepard Civic Center.

Tickets are now on sale at the Civic Center, B. & M. Restaurant, and Alexander Beegles, and will also be available the day of the concert at the Civic Center from 1 p.m. until 3:20 p.m.

Bad Check Artist Picked Up In Calif.

VIRGINIA BEACH — A North Carolina man who cashed a number of worthless checks here earlier this month has been apprehended by the FBI in Beverly Hills, Calif.

Det. Lt. W. W. Davis said Wednesday that William Van Collins, about 35, was taken into custody Tuesday night by the FBI under an unlawful flight to avoid prosecution charge.

Collins' home address was listed as Manson, N.C. but he had more recently been living here on 35th Street and at a local motel.

He has been charged with eight counts of forgery, cashing worthless checks of an undetermined amount and obtaining money under false pretense.

Davis described Collins as a "nice appearing person who is well read, an accomplished musician and holder of a degree in civil engineering."

Lt. Davis said Collins will be returned here for trial but that he has indicated to California authorities he will waive extradition and police here are waiting to hear from the Los Angeles Sheriff's Department.

"I expect that we will have reports of more worthless checks once local merchants know that he has been taken into custody," Davis said.

The case has been under the investigation of Detective H. S. Seager. The search for Collins started about two weeks ago.

BEACH NEWS IN MAGAZINE

VIRGINIA BEACH — A portion of an article from the Virginia Beach Sun-News has reached "Surfer" magazine via a surfer from New Smyrna Beach, Florida.

The article, which concerned a one-day surfing ban imposed by police after a Norfolk youth caused a disturbance on the beach, appears in the "Surf Post" column of the November edition of the national publication. It was sent to the magazine by

Purchase Of Old House Is Step Nearer

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Princess Anne County Historical Society has stepped up its efforts to assist the City of Virginia Beach in purchasing the 200-year-old Pembroke Manor house, located in the center of the fast-growing residential community of Pembroke.

Society President M. F. Fogler recently appointed a three-man committee to work with the city in consummating its purchase from Terry Corporation, builders of the subdivision, and three other principal owners. The committee consists of E. S. Ruffin Jr., Edwin C. Kellam and Judge J. Davis Reed Jr.

Other new committee chairman include: Mrs. Miles, finance; King, building; Mrs. Kyle, acquisitions; Ruth, Pembroke and historical commissions; Mrs. Kyle, Mrs. Syer and Mrs. Miller, programs; Mrs. Ewell, membership; and Mrs. Roger Mann, public relations and publicity.

The society plans to display items of historical interest owned by residents of Princess Anne County during the Antiques Show Nov. 12-15 at the Alan B. Shepard Civic Center.

It also hopes in the spring to have a showing of paintings of personalities who had something to do with the history of Princess Anne County. Several other interesting projects and programs are also in the making.

New members are invited and the president has said that those who join in the near future will have no further dues until January, 1966. The annual dues are $2, regular membership; $5, associate; $10, patriotic and civic; $15, business and professional; $25, sustaining; and $100, life.

The society has revitalized its program for the coming year and has placed much emphasis on Pembroke Manor and the consummation of its purchase.

The next meeting of the group is scheduled for October 18 at Gallie Episcopal Church at 3 p.m. and further details on the Pembroke project are expected to be worked out at that time.

Fogler, who succeeds Judge Reed as president of the society, heads a slate of newly elected officers and board of directors.

New Officers

Working with him are A. Judson King, first vice president; Mrs. E. A. Ewell, second vice president; Mrs. R. L. Miles Jr., treasurer; Mrs. William A. Moffett, recording secretary; Miss Katharine DeWitt, corresponding secretary; Mrs. W. Emmett Kyle, historian; and Edwin C.

Mosquito Fight Full Time Job

VIRGINIA BEACH — The battle between the mosquitoes and the Virginia Beach-Lynnhaven Mosquito Control is still being waged on a full time basis, according to R. G. Carter, superintendent.

Though much of the water from the recent flooding and heavy rains has dried up or drained away, problems of hidden standing water remain to provide breeding areas for the mosquito larvae. The North Virginia Beach area and Cape Story are particularly vulnerable.

Mr. Carter urges all residents who seem to be continually plagued by the mosquito in spite of the stepped up operations of the Control Commission, to phone 428-1829, and the men and equipment will be sent out to spray in and around the property, and particularly under the houses.

The spray used to kill the mosquito and its larvae is of a vegetable foliage base and is not poisonous, and therefore, is not harmful either to children or pets; nor is it a fire hazard.

Larkspur Club Holds Meeting

LARKSPUR — Larkspur Meadows Garden Club held its regular monthly meeting recently at the home of the president, Mrs. Thurman C. Hewett, 4712 Larkspur Court. Mrs. L. A. Shinn, corresponding secretary was co-hostess.

Twenty-one members and two prospective member visitors were present.

Mrs. E. O. Burroughs from the Crepe Myrtle Garden Club gave a study on flower arrangement. She made several beautiful arrangements, giving full explanation on each step in the arrangement of the different styles.

Mrs. Burroughs will continue the study on flower arranging at the next club meeting in October, with analysis and self judging, of the arrangements made by club members.

The Kempsville Garden Club judged the arrangements. The theme for September was "Invitation To Fall" using roses, zinnias, marigolds and asters.

The following members were awarded high honors for their arrangements. Mrs. W. N. Carroll and Mrs. L. A. Shinn received Blue Ribbons. Mrs. R. H. Sawyer received a red ribbon and Mrs. Thurman Hewett received a yellow ribbon.

On the specimens Mrs. W. H. Corbett, Mrs. R. M. Jones and Mrs. R. B. Milner Jr. all won blue ribbons. Mrs. P. G. Moerschell Jr. received a red ribbon. Five members received honorable mentions.

Under the direction of the club's civic chairman, Mrs. D. A. Wilson, the club will have three ways and means projects. The main project is the maintenance and beautification of the entrance to Larkspur.

Attic Cleaning Can Be Fun

Cleaning out the old attic is a job to make most housewives shudder. But when the attic's at the YWCA and you've got a small army of helpers, it can be fun. When finished, the room will be used for classes. Left to right are Mrs. S. L. Lott, Mrs. Samuel Mason, Mrs. Robert Soffield, and Mrs. Allan Whitney. Cleaning the window in the background is Mrs. C. At ODC

VIRGINIA BEACH—Sixty girls of the Kappa Kappa Kappa sorority of Old Dominion College were pledged into the first national women's fraternity, Pi Beta Phi, last Saturday at Park Place Methodist Church in Norfolk, by the national officers Mrs. Brock and Mrs. Mansfield.

The entire chapter from Virginia Beach contributed to the arrangements for the post-pledging luncheon, known as the "Cookie Shine" to Pi Phi.

Not so with the hundred women who attended the Democratic Women's Club luncheon at the Black Angus Restaurant last Thursday to hear campaign plans by Ivan Mapp and John Etheridge, and a lengthy discourse on President Johnson vs. Goldwater by Robert Lee Simpson.

At a Pi shaped table, flanked with golden brown fall chrysanthemums and trailing ivy, decorated by Mrs. Graydon Early and Mrs. Robert Steinheiber, the ladies present showed distinct high fashion in their fall outfits. Gone was the casual summer look, and each lady wore a "hair for fashion" hat.

After the speakers, club women drooled over the hat fashion show, put on by Snyder's of Norfolk. (For each charge account a member turns in, $1.00 will go to the Democratic Women's Club kitty), and modeled by Mrs. Frank Tarrall, Mrs. Hugh Owen, Mrs. John Fentress, Mrs. Gordon Early, Mrs. E. A. Hudson, and Mrs. Richard Duncanson—all members.

Mary Counselman (Mrs. R. L.) coordinated the show, while Kitty Moore was fashion commentator. Hats by Mr. John Sr. and Jr., Boutique Prices, and Fredrick were all shown. They ran the gamut of color and styling.

The high crowns, sport sailors and wide brims, cloches, the experimental hats, all purpose "club women" hats, and eye-catching cocktail and evening chapeaus were all exhibited.

Colors of electric blue, Irish green, bluish-grey, bright gold, smoky mauve, cherry red, and black, grey, and white made all wish to purchase.

Eleanor Roosevelt, a staunch Democrat, was neat and tasteful in her dress, but never considered too stylish. It is said that she could buy three hats in six minutes, and then an enemy once wrote to her "I dislike everything you stand for, but where in the h— did you get that hat you wore?"

The 'Y' of It

There was much wishing of mops, clanging of buckets, squirting of Windex Monday morning in the attic of the Y office.

Why all this feverish activity and why the attic, no less?

It seems it all started one day when Meg Arline turned to Evelyn Whitney and said, "Look at all this waste space! Let's do something about it."

"Good idea," said Evelyn, so they put their heads together and came up with Attic Art.

Who, what, when is Attic Art, you ask?

It is simply a series of coed art lessons offered in this newly renovated and scrubbed garret at 303 30th St., on Monday from noon to 2:00 p.m., starting October 5 to November 9. Artist Retha Sedel teaches this, and the fee is eight dollars plus, of course, Y membership.

Catching the evening crowd is Janet Fishel, teaching on Wednesday, 8:00 to 10:00 p.m., October 7 to November 11. Same fee for this class; instruction only in oils.

Elizabeth Bendler says to come to the office to register for these, or she'll be glad to sign you up at the first class. Looks like Attic Art will be a bang-up success; even the name sounds like fun.

Mary Helen Thomas, our popular swimming instructor, is being kind to working girls. She is extending the hours of registration on Fridays at the Y office, from 1:00 p.m. to 7:00 p.m. This will take care of the day-time workers.

And now for the story of the week.

LDO registration at Kempsville was progressing smoothly last Wednesday, with the usual noise and chatter of women happily engaged in doing something they enjoy. Slim, brown-haired Mrs. Newton Carper stepped up to register for art and bridge classes, and this in itself was no novelty. What was novel, however, was the fact that Mrs. Carper lives in Elizabeth City, North Carolina, and intends to drive 35 miles every Wednesday to take our classes.

When asked how she heard of the program, she said, "Oh, I saw it on TV." Questioned further about her enthusiasm for Y classes, she said, "This is the very first time in eighteen years I've been free. I have five children in five different schools—the last one entered first grade this fall. Now's my chance to do something new and different!"

WOMEN DEMO CLUB

PLANS MEETING

LORNEY MIDDLE — The Ladies' Demo Club plans a meeting at 8:00 p.m. at the Y office, with Mrs. Evelyn Whitney as guest speaker. The club's purpose is to help women who are in need of help, and to help them become a law. Mrs. Pearl Godfrey, who is ill at home, was sent a letter.

Plans for future meetings of the club were discussed and were arranged which will be outlined in future notices.

Cavaller Jrs. Bazaar Sat.

LYNNHAVEN — The Cavaller Jr. Woman's Club will present its seventh annual Christmas Bazaar Preview Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl B. Dowe, 604 Chesapeake Trail from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Christmas decorations around the home will be featured. Among the many original designs will be fully lined, sequined tree skirts which required approximately eighty-five hours labor each. Christmas aprons, hand knitted Christmas stockings, decorated gift boxes, wall hangings and table decorations will be on sale.

Early American collectors will find hand-made wooden composites and footstools, samplers and metal wall scones. A decorated Christmas tree will be shown with orders taken for the ornaments.

Mrs. J. M. Birsch, bazaar chairman, reports that something new has been added to this year's many new items. Hand decorated sweaters will be available on a cash and carry basis.

Other items may be ordered with a twenty-five per cent down payment and the balance paid on pick-up day, December 5.

The proceeds from the showing are used for community improvement projects and scholarships.

WHAT IS THE REAL COST OF FOOD?

Back in 1939, the last pre-war year, American consumers spent 23 cents of their after-tax income dollar for food. At today's prices they could buy the same old-style groceries for only 14 cents of their much larger income.

But Americans actually are spending 19 cents of their present after-tax income dollar for food, for which they are getting new and improved food products which are available in greater varieties and abundance. This 19 cents is the lowest percentage of income spent for food by any people in the world at any time in history.

In contrast with the 19 per cent spent in this country, consumers in other countries have to spend a higher percentage of income for food. In England, they spend 29 per cent; in France, 31 per cent; in Italy 45 per cent; in Russia, 53 per cent.

In terms of total dollars, however, we are paying out more of them for our food purchases than we have in the past. But this does not mean food prices have been rising accordingly.

How do we account for the fact that we are spending more at the grocery store?

Buying More.—For one thing, the family may be larger today, and growing children require more food. Families are also upgrading their food purchases and buying different and better foods.

Additionally, they are buying more items at the grocery store which they used to buy in other type stores. Magazines, cigarettes, stockings, tooth paste, beauty aids and so on, all are now often bought with the "grocery dollar." It is quite natural that we might overlook this point.

Food Prices Stable.—As a matter of fact, food prices at your supermarket have been remarkably stable in recent years.

Based on the standard "market basket," which the government uses to measure price trends, prices at the grocery store in 1962 averaged about the same as 1958 and only 2 per cent above 1952, the years our government uses for price comparisons.

The fact that food is a bargain shows up even more clearly when related to current personal incomes. The American factory worker in 1962 could buy the government's monthly "market basket" with the earnings from 37 hours of work compared with 52 hours required in 1952.

Like women the world over, a young Connecticut housewife rises bright and early each day, sends her husband off to work, tends to the baby and then sets about her regular chores—cleaning, washing, ironing, cooking, even mending.

Remarkable? Indeed, it is, for this particular housewife is a victim of polio and her right side is completely paralyzed.

Yet she is just one of 100 similarly handicapped women who have been restored to their families and to useful, productive lives through a five-year pilot rehabilitation study sponsored by the University of Connecticut.

More important, her experience leads new hope for the rehabilitation of some 4 million similarly handicapped homemakers in the U. S.—women who are hemiplegics, arthritics, victims of tuberculosis, those with cardiovascular diseases and those orthopedically disabled.

Problem Social, Economic

First of its kind, the Connecticut study was directed by Dr. Elizabeth Eckhardt May, dean of the university's School of Home Economics.

Special low-down sinks and ironing boards were devised to provide built-in knee-room for wheel chairs. Playpens were raised and equipped with gates to facilitate child care.

The researchers also found can openers that could be operated with one hand. They devised special work centers for the afflicted. They rearranged whole kitchens. And they went one step further.

"It is not a matter of buying gadgets to 'suit the disability,'" says Dr. May. "It is a problem of management, of adjusting family goals to suit family resources."

Close Cooperation A Necessity

From their five years of study, Dr. May and her associates came up with these salient conclusions:

1. In spite of devastating disabilities, women with physical handicaps can be rehabilitated to resume at least some measure of independence.

2. It is a long, slow process that requires the cooperation of the patient, the family, and all the professional workers concerned.

3. There is no easy formula; it is an individual problem that must be worked out in the patient's own home.

Demo Women Hear Officials

By Douglas Arnold Barnes

VIRGINIA BEACH — Last Thursday at the Black Angus Restaurant, the Women's Democratic Club, of over one hundred members and their guests, lunched and made plans for an extensive L.B.J. Campaign.

They heard Ivan Mapp, Commissioner of revenue, and V. A. Etheridge, city treasurer, give detailed plans of the Democratic Headquarters open daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekdays, and from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturdays. It is located on 17th Street.

Robert Simpson, Virginia Beach attorney, blasted Senator Goldwater, comparing the character, standards, beliefs, and accomplishments of both men, and stressed President Johnson's experience, political acumen, and good judgment.

Presided over by Mrs. E. A. Hudson, club president, the meeting opened with the invocation by Mrs. Russell Hatchett. Mrs. E. K. Wilson, program chairman, introduced the speakers.

Mapp and Etheridge described the Headquarters, and asked volunteers to work there each day until Nov. 3. The women plan to help at the polling booths in the various precincts. Bumper stickers, L.B.J. posters and other political paraphernalia were given out.

Mr. Simpson concluded with a tribute to the magic touch of Sidney Kellam, Virginia Democratic leader who, he said, just might be able to soothe the Goldwater Democrats and change their minds to become Johnson Democrats.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Lewis Johnson have returned to their home in Bird Neck Point after visiting Mr. and Mrs. Donald W. Merrick, formerly of Virginia Beach, but now living in Bloomfield Hills, Detroit, Michigan.

CLUB TO SPONSOR PANSY SALE

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Cape Henry-by-the-Sea Garden Club opened its 1964-65 session on Monday at the home of Mrs. Joe H. Watson, Witchduck Point, Bayside, with Mrs. Herman White as co-hostess. The president, Mrs. Delmar John Dee Sr., presided.

Mrs. Joe H. Watson, Ways and Means chairman, outlined the plans for the annual Pansy sale from which the proceeds will be used for plants, trees, and shrubs for the Children's Ward at Williamsburg Hospital.

Winners of blue ribbons for horticulture were Mrs. Mildred White and Mrs. Joe Watson.

WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE

The difference in price between today's prescriptions and those of 20 years ago can easily be figured. The difference is measured in dimes... sometimes even in dollars. But how can we measure the difference in results? Surely, no value can possibly be put on a life saved by a miracle drug that didn't exist 20 years ago!

Fire Prevention Everyone's Responsibility

Next week has been designated as National Fire Prevention Week. Of course this is not news because we observe this special week each year at this time. But perhaps it has more significance to all of us this year since only last week-end two infant girls were burned to death in their home in Creeds. Too often it takes such a tragedy to make us aware of the deadly suddenness of fire and the heart break and devastation it can leave in its wake. This specific time has been set aside to remind each of us that fire could strike our homes; take our loved ones.

But the prevention against fires, which annually claims lives of about 11,500 persons and destroys some $1-billion in property, should be enforced 52 weeks out of the year. It isn't a 7-day safety measure we need. We must train ourselves to be alert at all times to possible fire hazards and put into practice the rules we know to be effective. We know that it takes three things to make a fire—something that will burn, something to ignite it and air to feed the flames. The secret then in keeping our homes safe is to keep flammable materials away from anything that can possibly ignite them.

The case of the tragedy in Creeds, however, had little to do with these safety measures. According to firemen on the scene the blaze was probably caused by a defective stove pipe. With the coming of winter, fires of this origin will undoubtedly be on the increase. Now is the time to have the heating equipment and electrical wiring checked. Don't wait until cool weather sets in. Then it may be too late.

There is one major fire prevention measure that we must not overlook. The telephone number of the nearest volunteer fire company. There are 12 such departments throughout our vast sprawling city and they are on call 24 hours a day. Perhaps Fire Prevention Week would be an appropriate time to not only publicly pay tribute to these men but to urge the residents of this city to financially come to their aid. Once a year, and only once, these companies seek funds to continue their vital public service. They ask for but a few dollars from each family. The funds they collect are used within the community they serve; most of it goes toward the purchase of better fire-fighting and life-saving equipment. None of it goes into salaries or payment of any type for the firemen. They are all volunteers. They collect not one penny for the many hours devoted to training and drilling so that they will be better prepared to handle emergencies they might one day face. Nor do they collect one penny for putting their own lives in jeopardy each time they fight to bring a fire under control. They do this because it is a job that must be done and they know that the well being of their community and neighbors may well depend on them.

If our residents realize that these departments are equipped only through public donations and the men volunteer their time, why then, we ask, did they receive so little support during their annual fund-raising drive? Each department has reported either an average collection or a disappointing collection. Few reached their goals—and these were set modestly low.

It's true the drive has passed. It was held throughout the month of August. But, because of the lack of response, we do not feel that it is at all untimely to again issue a reminder of this great need. It takes but a moment to make out a check, address an envelope and drop it in the mail to the company you would call if a fire should break out in your home. The amount need not be large—though surely we realize that no amount would be large enough to repay these volunteers for their assistance if they were needed.

What better way, then, to observe Fire Prevention Week than to give your support to one of the fire companies? They need all the support we can give them in their constant battle against the tragedy of fire.

TEENAGERS AID TO VOLUNTEER SERVICE BUREAU PROGRAM

VIRGINIA BEACH — Over 60 teenagers took time out of their busy summer schedules to work as Junior Volunteers for the Volunteer Service Bureau, according to Mrs. R. C. Goodman, head of the local service organization.

The volunteers were selected on the basis of interest and suitability for the job by Mrs. Goodman and Mrs. Anne Murphy, who served as coordinators for the junior program.

Eight community health, welfare and recreation agencies benefited by this summer program: the American Red Cross, Camp TARCO, Y.W.C.A., the Volunteer Service Bureau, the city's Recreation Department, United Cerebral Palsy, Virginia Beach General Hospital and the Girl's Club.

Over 3,000 hours were contributed by these conscientious teenagers in such jobs as blood program aides, assistant librarians, hospital aides, playground assistants, typists, receptionists, clerks, camp aides and waterfront assistants.

The time donated to these projects ranged from three to 40 hours per week. Mrs. Goodman said. However, five of the volunteers — Kathy Sciorino, Jean Hollman, Donald Brock, Belle Skinner and Lydia Mark — turned in 240 hours a week through the Virginia Beach Recreation Department.

The highest representation of Junior Volunteers came from Cox High School but there were also representatives from Virginia Beach and Princess Anne High Schools and Country Day School for Girls.

These young volunteers, along with other Tidewater youngsters, were recognized with certificates of appreciation at a special program recently at the Public Health Center in Norfolk. Mrs. Virginia Laws, president of the Health - Welfare - Recreation Planning Council presented the awards.

This was the second summer the Junior Volunteer Program had been in operation in Virginia Beach.

Flu Shots Are Urged

RICHMOND — Though no major influenza outbreak is anticipated in the United States this year, there is always a possibility of local outbreaks.

Dr. Mack I. Shanholtz, State Commissioner, recommends that persons in groups who experience high mortality rate when flu epidemics occur, start their vaccinations as soon as possible.

Groups who should consider receiving immunizations are: persons of all ages who suffer from chronic debilitating diseases such as chronic cardiovascular, pulmonary, renal, or metabolic disorders; older persons; and pregnant women.

During three successive epidemics a moderate increase in mortality was noted among persons over 45 years, and a marked increase among those over 65 years.

Since there is normally a two-week delay in the development of antibodies, it is important that immunization be carried out before influenza occurs in any immediate area.

Felton Has Lead Role

VIRGINIA BEACH — Tom Felton will be playing the lead male role in the next production of the Courtyard Playhouse, "Girls in 509", which will be presented October 15 - 17, and 22 - 24.

A math and science teacher at Thalia Elementary School, he steps into the role, created by King Donovan on Broadway, with many hours of theatrical experience behind him.

While a student at Old Dominion College, he was a member of the Masques Theatrical Group, and played leading parts in "The Matchmakers" and "Tiger at the Gates". He has also played the part of the soldier in "The Confederacy", and a dual role in that company's production of "Our Town".

The comfortable, cabaret-style little theatre is located on 17th Street, just off Atlantic Avenue.

Season and Patron tickets are still on sale for the four shows of the 1964-65 season, and may be ordered through P. O. Box 1053. Season tickets for the shows are $7 each, and Patron's tickets sell for $20 a pair.

Area Beaches Free Of Oil

VIRGINIA BEACH — The beaches in this resort city, as well as other Tidewater beaches, remained oil-free throughout the entire tourist season because of a successful cooperative effort on the part of persons involved in the harbor shipping industry.

"Ship masters, their crews and personnel operating shore facilities are due a large measure of the credit for not allowing oil or substance of like nature to be dumped into coastal or harbor waters," said Col. F. B. Proctor, Norfolk District Army Engineer and supervisor of the Harbor of Hampton Roads.

Thus far during 1964, Col. Proctor said, only three vessels have been detected pumping oily substances overboard and were immediately apprehended. The U.S. District Attorney is pursuing legal action against the three violators.

A maximum fine of $2500 or one year in prison, or both, can be imposed for illegal pollution of coastal or harbor waters.

Fortunately, Col. Proctor said, "the oil illegally dumped by these vessels is degraded before reaching the beach areas. However, some of the piers and waterfront structures in Norfolk Harbor did receive some of the pollution and the fire hazard it has created has caused concern to local and federal officials."

The Army Engineers have the primary responsibility for the enforcement of the anti-pollution program and, together with the Coast Guard, patrol the harbor and beach resort areas. Regular patrols are employed in the policing action.

Special Ceremony Will Open Medal Of Honor Exhibit

CHINESE CORNER — Mayor Frank A. Dusch and Col. Jerome K. Hosteller, commanding officer of Fort Story, will officiate at special ceremonies Monday officially opening the Army's Medal of Honor exhibit at G-E-X on Virginia Beach Boulevard at Chinese Corner.

The exhibit, entitled "Above and Beyond the Call of Duty," will make its Tidewater premiere here under the auspices of the Army Recruiting Service. It will remain on display until October 15.

Official opening ceremonies are scheduled at 1 p.m.

Portable Golf Game Latest Innovation

VIRGINIA BEACH — A portable golf game, entirely Virginian in origin, is being manufactured on a large scale, according to Fred W. Isaacs, well-known local sportsman who is president of Putt-Well Golf Corporation.

Isaacs, who secured the rights from inventors H. B. Lassing, former PGA champion Chandler Harper, and H. J. Jaffe, said over eight years and a quarter of a million dollars has gone into the development of this game, and in just a short time on the market, has found immediate acceptance and success.

The Putt-Well golf machine measures 11 1/2 feet long by 3 1/2 feet wide and has a graduated playing incline of 15 inches. It is played with regulation U.S. G.A. approved golf balls and a putter. There are nine strategically-placed holes spread from the front to the back with sand traps on each side and at the back of the course.

Each hole is four inches regulation size with a plastic covered recessed light behind it. The playing surface is covered with green carpeting simulating the grass on golf course greens. The light behind each regulation hole is numbered from one to nine, the shortest putt being the first hole.

Each player receives nine balls. He must not lose any balls by hitting them into a trap. Since each hole is worth its number in points, a perfect score of 45 is possible. Match or medal play can be used. It is interesting to note, a perfect score has rarely been accomplished, even by professionals.

Culpeper, Inc., a well-known wood-working firm in Suffolk, has been contracted to manufacture the machines. E. R. Culpeper, the company's president, said that mass production techniques are now being installed in his plant and will be able to produce 24 to 30 machines per day. As a matter of fact, Culpeper has built an additional eight thousand square feet to his existing plant and will employ an additional 20 workers to meet the increasing demand for the output of the machines.

Isaacs stated that prime locations for the machines will be motels, hotels, country clubs, air and bus terminals, college campus recreational buildings and many others. He added that his company is in the midst of an extensive promotional program to establish distributors throughout the country. Locations have already been selected in such cities as Alexandria, Arlington, Washington, D.C., Winston - Salem, Greensboro, Durham, Raleigh, Knoxville and Roanoke.

Isaacs and Culpeper have also formed a motor freight line with which to transport and deliver their golf machines anywhere in the country. Because of its size, the golf machine was impossible to crate and package.

Harper, who owns and operates the Bide-A-Wee Golf and Country Club in Portsmouth, has endorsed the coin-operated game, its balls and putter. He said, "I've found this course the finest indoor putting practice in America today. It is not only a fascinating diversion, but will definitely improve your touch and stroke."

The Putt-Well Golf Corporation executive office is located at 24th Street and Pacific Ave. in Virginia Beach.

The exhibit traces the history of this decoration, our country's highest award for bravery, from the Civil War to the Korean battlegrounds and comes to Virginia Beach direct from an engagement at the New York World's Fair's Federal Pavilion. Visitors to the display will see actual Medals of Honor as they were originally cast, and the Medal as it is today. The story of courage and personal sacrifice of soldiers who have been awarded the Medal of Honor is told through pictures of famous battles in which these heroes fought.

The Medal of Honor was established by the Army on July 12, 1862, when President Lincoln signed the Congressional resolution authorizing the award. The first awards were made on March 25, 1863, to Union Soldiers.

During the century since Lincoln signed the resolution, some 2,200 soldiers have demonstrated the courage meriting America's top symbol of gratitude. Many who earned the Medal gave their lives in combat.

A display team accompanies the exhibit to assist visitors who may have questions. Several Medal holders are expected to be on hand for the opening day ceremonies.

There is no admission charge for the exhibit.

Ferries On Busy Schedule

NEW CASTLE, Del. — Business was brisk on the Cape May-Lewes Ferry the first weekend after it resumed the regular schedule of service on September 19.

Director William J. Miller, Jr. of the Delaware River and Bay Authority announced that 12 round trips per day are now being made on the Cape May-Lewes ferries.

This new bay liner service, which opened on July 1, 1964, paved the way for an Ocean Highway seaward route through coastal New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland.

The ferry was inoperative from August 28 to September 14 because of a walkout staged by members of the International Association of Masters, Pilots and Mates, Miller pointed out. During this period, seaward route travelers used the main Ocean Highway route via the Delaware Memorial Bridge.

Temporary ferry service was restored on September 14 with one vessel in operation. On Saturday, September 19, the regular schedule was in effect and the public responded immediately, according to Miller. The bay liners S.S. Delaware and S.S. New Jersey carried 382 vehicles and 1,131 passengers on Saturday and 552 vehicles and 1,769 passengers on Sunday.

The complement of captains and mates now on duty is sufficient to keep two ships in operation, Miller said. Should traffic build up to require a third vessel, arrangements will be made to provide the necessary crew.

A free map guide of the north-south Ocean Highway, from New York through Florida, a schedule of the Cape May-Lewes ferries and other information may be obtained from Guide Map Dept., Ocean Highway Association, P. O. Box 1552, Wilmington, Del.

Legion Post Plans Dinner

VIRGINIA BEACH — American Legion Post No. 113, on Laskin Road will hold a buffet dinner tonight between 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. at the newly remodeled club house. Invited are all past and present members and friends, also those eligible for membership.

Since becoming club manager last month, Jimmie Fox has had the building remodeled. Tennis courts and a swimming pool are planned. Air conditioning is soon to be installed.

Fox has lived at the Beach for 35 years. He was one of the pioneer club managers, having managed several of the earlier clubs. The Surf Club was owned by Fox.

As new manager of the post, he hopes to build membership.

Phone Tolls End In P.A.

PRINCESS ANNE — The last toll barrier in the Tidewater metropolitan area direct dialing telephone system was eliminated Monday at 10 p.m.

The 1,000 customers of the Princess Anne Telephone Co. are now able to make calls to any number in Norfolk, Portsmouth, Virginia Beach, and Chesapeake without a toll charge.

The phone company's new 426 exchange at Pungo went into operation, providing toll-free direct dialing throughout the area for the first time.

Toll charges on all other phones in the metropolitan area were eliminated July 5.

Rebs Whip Yanks

Virginia Beach was represented on three of about 150 North-South Skirmish teams last weekend near Winchester. Although no local residents were on the winning Civil War musket team, they were happy that Confederates beat the Yankees—again. After the shooting was over and the heavy smoke from about 1500 muskets and two dozen cannons had blown away, costumed ladies placed ribbons on the battle flags. (Staff photo by Hardy)

Three Named In Scholarship Event

VIRGINIA BEACH—Three area students were named as semi-finalists last week in the 1964-65 National Merit Scholarship competition for college scholarships.

Of the 14,000 named, forty-one were from Tidewater Virginia and Eastern North Carolina.

Representing Princess Anne High School are John L. Montgomery and Alice L. Peggum, and from Floyd E. Kellam High School is Martha S. Brogan.

40 Nominated For ASC Body

VIRGINIA BEACH—Forty names have been released as nominees to the 1965 ASC community committees for Virginia Beach.

According to Chris Krahenbill, chairman of Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee, the election will be held by mail prior to October 15.

PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS, the Congress of the United States has designated the second week in October of each year as National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week; and

WHEREAS, for the twentieth consecutive year, public support for and interest in the employment of otherwise qualified but physically handicapped workers is being urged; and

WHEREAS, thousands of these workers have already demonstrated that handicaps are not an insurmountable barrier to efficient and productive labor;

NOW, THEREFORE, I Frank A. Dusch, Mayor of the City of Virginia Beach, do set aside and proclaim the week of October 4th through 10th, 1964, inclusive as EMPLOY THE PHYSICALLY HANDICAPPED WEEK and urge all men of business and industry to make a conscientious effort to employ disabled veterans and other handicapped citizens whenever their abilities will suffice to do the job as well as a non-handicapped worker.

Given under my hand this 30th day of September, 1964.

FRANK A. DUSCH, Mayor

In 1894 Hemingway School was Norfolk's first public high school . . . then H. D. Oliver had been serving Tidewater for 29 years.

The school in Brambleton was purchased from the Hemingway family by the city in that year and served for many years after as the city's only public high school. In those years, too, H. D. Oliver was serving all of Tidewater with the most complete funeral and burial needs.

Today, after nearly 100 years, H. D. Oliver is still counted as the community's most respected name in its field. An experienced, capable staff, modern facilities, and a tradition of providing only the best enable H. D. Oliver to handle every detail of this vital service with dignity and respect. A second distinguished home has been recently opened in Virginia Beach to better serve that part of growing Tidewater. Call on H. D. Oliver for the very best.

First Lady Will Tour 8 States

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Democratic leaders of eight Southern states will be honorary chairmen of the "Lady Bird Special" when Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson makes her eight-state, 28-city train trip through the South on October 6 to 9, the White House announced today.

Following is the text of the announcement released by Mrs. Elizabeth Carpenter, Mrs. Johnson's press secretary.

Democratic leaders of eight Southern states will serve as honorary chairmen of the "Lady Bird Special" in the eight states the train carrying the First Lady will travel.

Five governors and four U.S. Senators are among the honorary chairmen. The chairmen are Governor and Mrs. Albertis Harrison of Virginia, Governor and Mrs. Terry Sanford of North Carolina, Governor and Mrs. Donald Russell of South Carolina, Governor and Mrs. Farris Bryant of Florida, and Governor and Mrs. Carl Sanders of Georgia.

Senator Allen Ellender and Senator Russell Long are the honorary chairmen of Louisiana. In Alabama, the honorary chairmen will be Senator Lister Hill and Senator John Sparkman. Directing the campaign in Mississippi is Douglas C. Wynn, Greenville attorney, who is heading up the Johnson for President organization in his state.

In addition, Mr. and Mrs. Dan K. Moore, Democratic candidate for Governor in North Carolina, and Mr. and Mrs. Hayden Burns, Democratic gubernatorial candidate in Florida, will greet Mrs. Johnson and ride on portions of the trip.

Masters of ceremonies for the trip will be Secretary of Commerce, Luther Hodges, former governor of North Carolina, and Congressman Hale Boggs, Democratic Whip of the House of Representatives from Louisiana. They will introduce dignitaries from the Democratic Party leadership in each state who will be on the train, and present the First Lady and her daughters, Lynda and Luci, for their remarks.

Co-chairmen of the "Lady Bird Special" are Mrs. Donald Russell and Mrs. Hale Boggs. Mrs. Hodges will also be on the train. Fifteen Ladies for Lyndon will act as hostesses in the hospitality car and will distribute "Lady Bird Special" souvenirs to the crowd at each stop.

The train will cover 1,682 miles between October 6-9, with scheduled stops in 28 cities. These cities have a combined population of two and a half million in eight states with 86 electoral votes. More than 100 press, radio and television representatives will accompany the First Lady.

Noel Langley Is A.R.E. Speaker

VIRGINIA BEACH — A new series of Sunday Forum programs will open Sunday at 3:30 p.m. in the auditorium of the Association for Research and Enlightenment, 67th Street and Atlantic Avenue.

The speaker will be Noel Langley, whose subject will be "The Far Memory of Joan Grant."

This lecture will be a prelude to a five-day Fall Conference which the Association will hold later in the month, at which Joan Grant will be a leading speaker.
An English-woman now living in France, she is known on both sides of the Atlantic for her biography books, which read like novels but are understood to be derived from retrocognition on her part.

Langley himself is the author of many novels and plays produced in London, where he lived for a number of years and first knew Joan Grant. More recently he has been a script writer, producer and director for the motion picture industry in Hollywood. He has recently come to Virginia Beach, where he has moved his family and now makes his home.

This lecture is open to the public. For further information call the Association.

PTA SETS OPEN HOUSE

VIRGINIA BEACH — The
W. T. Cooke Elementary School
PTA will hold an open house night at the school.

Classrooms will be open for parents to confer with teachers at 7:30 p.m. The business meeting will follow at 8 p.m.

A reception will be held in the auditorium immediately after the meeting.

Club Welcomes New Members

BAYSIDE — The Ocean Park Woman's Club held their annual "Membership Tea", last week at the home of Mrs.
Charles Martinette, in Thorough-good. Twenty-five new members who had joined the club since last year's tea, were honored.
Over a hundred club members were present.

Mrs. T. F. Knoll and Mrs.
William E. Anderson, presided at the tea table.

The club president, Mrs. J.
Lawrence Eley and first vice president, Mrs. David T. Graham assisted in welcoming guests.

On a sunporch 30 paintings which were done by club members last year were on display.
They ranged from the traditional, to moderns including collages and abstracts. Among the pictures was Mildred Sellers' "Forest Fire" on which she won a blue ribbon in the state competition last year. Others exhibiting were Dorothy Buck, Lil Strayhorn, Sue Quackenbush and Elsie Hunsinger.

One of the high notes of the "tea" was Ray Martinette's platinum blond wig.

Shelton Park P-TA Votes To Aid Student

BAYSIDE — The Shelton
Park PTA met Monday night, September 21, at 8:00 p.m. at the school.

The organization voted to establish a scholarship fund, to be known as "The Gladys H. Marshall Scholarship." It will be awarded yearly to a graduating high school student from the Virginia Beach Area. Applicants must be former students of Shelton Park School. Application blanks may be obtained from the school.

The PTA voted a $200.00 donation to the library of Bayside High School, to be used for the purchase of books.

Mrs. George W. Chandler, principal, was presented an Honorary Life Membership in the Virginia Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Bld. Gets New Lights

VIRGINIA BEACH—Street lighting is now being installed along three sections of Virginia Beach Boulevard — Chinese Corner, Bonney Road, and Princess Anne Plaza.

When completed, there will be 15 lights at Chinese Corner, six at Bonney Road, and 20 at Princess Anne Plaza. All the lights are mercury vapor, 20,000 lumens.

All underground work has been complete at Chinese Corner.
Virginia Electric and Power Co. hopes to have the lights turned on by the first of the week.

Work on Bonney Road has been complete and lights are in operation.

Completion of the Plaza lights is scheduled for the end of next week. So far the bases have been set.

View Of Virginia Beach

By
Doris Padrick

Harvest time is here! You are lucky to have so many farms in the area . . . no need to put up with old withered vegetables and fruit; no necessity to confine your purchases to hot house varieties of fresh foods.

The best in produce is found in all grocery stores and nearby family stands—but if you want to enjoy the haggling and bargaining among many merchants in one place, you must visit the Virginia Beach Produce Market (farmers' market) near the Bay Bridge-Tunnel at Diamond Springs. It's closer to the traffic interchange where you used to catch the old ferry . . . What you watch for is a space on the side of the road which looks like a group of wooden stalls and many trucks parked side by side. You can drive right in. Then the fun begins. . .

You may find the farmer or his hired hands tending the bountiful and attractively displayed fresh crop of just picked fruits or vegetables, and each and every one wants you to stop and examine what they so proudly offer. You may purchase just enough for your dinner, or in large amount for pre-serving.

Peas and beans, of many varieties may come in the pod, or the work of shelling can be done for you. All current varieties of salad greens or greens to be cooked are bright and crisp. Firm, ripe tomatoes glow. Apples shine. Peaches blush. Purple, yellow, and red grapes cuddle in groups. Red peppers sparkle; green peppers twinkle. The panorama of God and man's togetherness unfolds in glorious color.

Some stalls have refrigeration and you can find more than produce. Fresh eggs are available. And the "sea farmers" of clams and oysters bring their contribution to your dining pleasure readily available.

Though you may not think you need anything and you may go just to look, it is doubtful if you will leave without some sort of purchase. The farmers and their wares are hard to resist!

OCEANA TAKES 680 KIDS UNDER WING

The Kiwanis Club's Kids' Day became a huge success Saturday when the Oceana Naval Air Station opened its doors and its arms to 680 local youngsters. This marked the third year that the Navy and the Kiwanis had gotten together. The first year 300 children turned out. By the second year that number had risen to 458. How many will show up for Kids' Day 1965 is anybody's guess. (Navy photos)

VIRGINIA BEACH, VIRGINIA, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1964

SECTION B

SCHMIDT IN OREGON

VIRGINIA BEACH — Michael Terry Schmidt, 3713 Mar. Lynn Lane, has been selected to attend Oregon State University this fall under naval ROTC midshipmen training.

Kiwanis Day Kids are shown survival equipment as used by Navy pilots. There were radios and liferafts, helmets and oxygen masks, and dozens of other things to make young eyes grow big.

SKYDIVERS ENLIVEN OCEANA INSPECTION

OCEANA — Regardless of how colorful a military personnel inspection may be, it is usually considered something less than enjoyable by the men being inspected, but Saturday Capt. Dexter C. Rumsey, II, commanding officer of Naval Air Station Oceana, climaxed his command inspection with a new twist that seemed to please the men of his command—he had the station's skydiving club perform their feats of daring during a half hour show immediately after inspection.

The inspection was certainly enlivened. To the accompaniment of the COMNAVIAIR-LANT Navy Band, and the rapt attention of the formed company, a fine show of daring feats was performed by the skydivers.

After the inspection, one sailor was heard to comment "With a group like that to watch, I would gladly stand inspection any day." If he expressed the opinion of the majority, and he just may have, then Capt. Rumsey has performed a greater feat than the skydivers. He has made, for this time at least, being inspected a pleasure for his sailors, and that in itself is quite a feat.

LT. COL. WOOD IN RESERVE UNIT

Lt. Col. Allen T. Wood of Virginia Beach is one of four officers in the recently commissioned Marine Corps Aviation Reserve Unit Group 20 which meets at the Naval Air Station in Norfolk the third week-end of each month for the purposes of training reserve officers.

KIWANIS CLUB'S ANNUAL KIDS DAY WENT NAVY—ALL THE WAY

By

Robert Hardy and
Lt. (jg) F. Iorio Jr.

OCEANA — Saturday was Kiwanis Club Kids' Day in Virginia Beach. Chairman Tom Follary said 680 local youngsters turned out for the big day. The day started with a police escorted parade from the Alan B. Shepard Civic center and ended with an air show at the Oceana Naval Air Station.

Kids' Day is celebrated all over the country by Kiwanis Clubs during September. Each club takes the local kids on an outing. For the past three years, the Navy has been cooperating with the local club to give the kids a day at the base.

Follary said that the first year there were 300 kids; the second year, 458. With 680 this year, the Kiwanis think the growth pattern is definitely established to where they can expect more and more children each year.

Serving on the Kids' Day committee were W. E. Oast, Ed Nixon, Henry Jeffy, William Kellam, James Basley, and B. F. Kay. Miss Mary E. Crump volunteered to help Mrs. Follary and Mrs. Nixon to supervise the kids.

A combination of Navy-style "chow", movies, pilots and aircraft, and Skydivers, with just a garnishing of a Navy band, were ingredients that flavored the day for the Tidewater area children during a day-long program of fun and entertainment at Oceana.

The 680 children, made up of girl scouts, boy scouts, cub scouts, and church groups arrived at the master jet base, at 10:30 a.m. Saturday aboard school buses under police escort.

They were met by Capt. Dexter C. Rumsey, II, Oceana Commanding Officer, LTJG F. Iorio, Jr., Oceana Public Information Officer, and the Commander Naval Air Force Atlantic Fleet Navy Band which welcomed the children with resounding Navy music.

First on the day's agenda was two aviation movies at the station theatre. Then on to the station galley where the children ate a typical Navy meal of beef stew, potatoes, varied salads, and all the milk they could contain.

When all the children were filled, they boarded the buses and were taken to one of the jet base's massive aircraft hangars where they were treated to static displays of the Navy's newest and most sophisticated jet aircraft and demonstrations of some of the survival equipment used by Navy pilots such as radios, life rafts, water desalting kits, and even fishing tackle. The emergency food rations were seemingly enjoyed more than the fishing tackle though.

The aircraft displays included the light attack bomber, A-1 Skyhawk; the light attack bomber, A-6A Intruder; the fighter aircraft F-4 Phantom II; the world's fastest operational fighter aircraft, the F-4E Phantom II.

The day's events included giving a performance of parachuting techniques. Twenty-three members of the club bailed out in their multi-colored suits and chute canopies to land within a few hundred yards of where the children happily waited. They were immediately swarmed for autographs.

"It was really a dream to see the rainbow colors of the parachutes," said Follary. "The Navy couldn't have done any more for the governor of the state than they did for those kids."

Thus ended an exciting day for 680 Tidewater Area children who, for a time at least, were made to feel like a part of the U.S. Navy.

Inside a hanger the kids found planes and pilots waiting. The kids got a chance to climb aboard and ask all the questions they wanted. The aircrafts displayed included light bombers and fighters.

After viewing two movies on aviation, the kids filed into the galley to consume a mountain of beef stew and an ocean of milk. The food was supplied and served as a joint Kiwanis-Navy project.

Oceana went all out for the kids—literally. These skydivers were photographed at the moment of leaping from the plane.

Landing safely on the ground a few hundred yards from the kids, the skydivers were soon swarmed for autographs.

STRONG CHURCHES...

make STRONG COMMUNITIES

GROWING TOGETHER

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Please go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

"God's garden" . . . those were St. Paul's words to describe the early Christian fellowship. From its mighty seed of revealed truth, the Church has grown and flourished . . . spreading into many lands, developing in many ways, but always linked by oneness in Christ.

World-wide Communion Sunday is a day of spiritual renewal for Christians of every creed. It is a time to remember our brothers in all lands, and to pray that our differences may be transcended by the power of the Holy Spirit working among us. It is a call to greater effort, greater personal participation, so that by our example all men may be led to know Jesus as their Saviour.

The Church needs the support of every Christian on this meaningful occasion. Decide now that you and your family will be present at the Lord's Table.

The popularity of humidifiers has been growing rapidly as more and more people discover the many disturbing effects of inadequate humidity. Increased susceptibility to colds, dry and flaky skin, parched throat, all these are sometimes traced to inadequate humidification.

The new evaporator-type humidifier in the accompanying illustration was shown at the National Housewares Exhibit in Chicago during July. It cleans as well as moistens parched air and, in addition, is an attractive piece of furniture. Smart, compact design and royal walnut finish make it a perfect mate for any Kids Need Lunch Kits?

HALF THE FUN of going back to school for many children is picking a new school lunch kit. This fall, youngsters will find a wonderful selection of "Thermos" school lunch kits awaiting their selection. Among the many sure-to-please models for boys are Popeye, Captain Kangaroo, Fireball X-5 and Wagabo Train while girls will love the Barbie, Cora and MacPherson Plaid kits.

NOTES FROM YOUR AGRICULTURAL AGENT

Bermuda Law

A fall feeding program for Bermuda is in order if the lawn has not been fed in late summer. The fertilizer may be applied after overseeded with ryegrass. Apply 1 1/2 lbs. of nitrogen, such as 4 1/2 lbs. ammonium nitrate, or 7 1/2 lbs. ammonium nitrate lime, or 9 lbs. sodium nitrate, or 3 1/2 lbs. of urea per 1,000 square feet; or use a more slowly available fertilizer such as urea formaldehyde at the rate of 6 to 12 lbs. per 1,000 square feet.

For further details, ask my office for Extension Circular 318, "Turfgrass Guide for Lawns and Other Turf Areas."

Pruning Shrubs

Many shrubs may be pruned in the fall to reduce their size and contain them properly in the allotted space. Shrubs, especially around the foundation of the house, should be checked and pruned if they have reached the approximate size desired for the overall landscape effect. Foundation shrubs often look best if they are pruned to look natural. Avoid pruning plants into round, symmetrical balls.

Varying the length of cuts will help to keep the plants from looking too formal or stiff.

Flowering shrubs that bloom in early spring should not be cut back severely in the fall unless you are willing to sacrifice the blooms next spring. Summer blooming shrubs may be cut back in the fall or early spring before growth starts.

Boxwoods should be thinned once a year by removing some of the branches in the upper portion of the plant with pruning shears. Cut out dead wood and remove some of the larger stems so light and air can penetrate. A plant thinned properly over the years has green leaves all the way up the stem. If this annual thinning has not been done, fall would be a good time to do it. Drastic cutting of boxwood should be delayed until early spring.

Bulbs For Spring Color—Plant Now

Now is the time to plant spring-flowering bulbs. The planting period extends from mid-August until the ground freezes too hard to be dug. Early planted bulbs develop a more extensive root system before cold weather begins than bulbs that are planted in November and December. Both the quantity and quality of the spring bloom largely depend on the root development made by the bulb during the previous autumn.

The following are bulbs to be planted in the Fall: Tulips, Hyacinths, Daffodils, Bulb Iris, Crocuses, Scillas, Glory-of-the-Snow, Grape Hyacinths, Snowdrops.

Hints for Buying Bulbs

Choose either domestic or imported bulbs. Check bulbs to be sure they are healthy. Diseased bulbs look moldy, discolored or soft and rotted.

Avoid cheap bulbs because they may be of poor quality or size.

Consult the fall bulb catalogs of nurseries and bulb-dealers for detailed information about varieties. The catalogs will often tell whether a particular variety blooms early or late. By carefully selecting bulbs you can have blooms for a long period.

Where To Plant

Bulbs prefer well-drained, sandy soil, and grow well when they get long hours of direct sunshine and plenty of moisture. Plant on high or slightly sloping ground where excess water will drain away.

The flower border—bulbs fit well into the flower border along with annuals and perennials. Low-flowering bulbs may be planted to the front of the flower border and taller ones may be grouped further back.

Foundation Planting—Hyacinths and crocuses may be effectively used in front of broad-leaved evergreens often used in foundation plantings.

Around the terrace—Many terraces have narrow planting strips where it would be appropriate to mass bulbs. Planting boxes, which are a part of the terrace, may also be used for bulbs.

Shrub border—Bulbs make good edging in front of a shrub border. Plant the bulbs in masses and group the same colors together for best results.

At the driveway entrance—A mass planting of bulbs at the drive entrance will add an interesting note of color early in the spring.

Wooded areas—Some yards have a portion of their grounds chiefly in trees, and daffodils may be planted under the trees. In time, these bulbs will become naturalized.

Bulbs do well in good garden soil, provided there is good drainage. If the soil is poor, take steps to improve it. Commercial fertilizer mixtures such as 5-10-5 worked into the soil before planting, at the rate of about 4 lbs. per 100 square feet, will usually prove beneficial. The addition of organic matter to poor soils is also important. This organic matter can be supplied by cover crops or by material from the compost pile. At the time bulbs are planted, avoid the use of animal manures because they have a tendency to increase rotting of certain bulbs. During the growing season, 1 or 2 light applications (about 1/2 lbs. per 100 square feet) of nitrogen fertilizer, such as ammonium sulfate or sodium nitrate, should be applied after the plants are above ground.

In general, all bulbs should be planted deeper in light soils than in heavy ones.

Plant bulbs close together (3" or 4" apart) if you want thick masses of flowers the first year. Set the bulbs firmly into the ground so there are no air pockets underneath. After planting, soak the beds to dissolve the fertilizer and settle the bulbs.

After the ground freezes 1" or 2" deep, a mulch of straw, hay or leaves may be applied over the bulbs. If you mulch them this way, they will not freeze. Mulching prevents alternate freezing and thawing of soil that would harm bulbs.

The mulch may be removed in the spring after leaves have started to emerge from the soil. Then a light application of fertilizer could be applied.

4-H Activities and Events

C. FRANCH LAY

Assistant Agent

"If you would create something, you must be something." —Goethe

Hello folks! We are nearing the end of National 4-H Club Week. I do hope you have a chance to observe some of the exhibits that the 4-H Club members have put in some of the schools and stores in the City. The members of the Thalia Community 4-H Club placed exhibits in the Fabric Mart on Virginia Beach Boulevard and at Princess Anne Plaza. The Blackwater Club put up exhibits in Blackwater and Creeds, and members of the Stumpy Lake Club put up posters that they made themselves.

4-H FIELD TRIP TO STATE FAIR

More than 40 4-H Club members from Virginia Beach and Chesapeake took an all day trip to Richmond and made an educational tour of the Atlantic Rural Exposition, Virginia State Fair. While there, they observed the Eastern U. S. 4-H Tractor Operator's Contest, saw many prize animals (beef cattle, dairy cattle, swine, rabbits, and poultry), and saw exhibits showing Virginia's place in agriculture and modern living.

Those Club members attending from Virginia Beach were: Diane Frost, Faye Frost, Joe Pecsek, Helen Dudley, Dina Brunley, Ray Brodeur, Carol Brotherton, Mary Bungard, Sharon Kelly, Eddie Givens, Paul L. Creekmore, Jr., James Basquier, Elizabeth Bungard, James Kelly, Laura McAndrews, Karen Scarborough, Beverly Frost, Ross B. Fulcher, Jr., Gerald Fulcher, Kaye Eason, Judy Nicklas, Chris Kelly, Jeannie Eakes, Frank Avery, and Debbie Scott.

The members of the Thalia Community 4-H Club, under the direction of their leaders, Mrs. J. S. Kelly and Mrs. C. H. Bungard, and Junior leaders Mary Bungard, and Sharon Kelly, planned the trip and led the tours at the Fair grounds.

4-H PROJECT AND ACHIEVEMENT RECORDS

All 4-H Club members are encouraged to complete and turn in their project and achievement records on the 4-H activities they have accomplished this past year. Recognition will be given for those who have accomplished the most in project work and leadership activities. Awards will also be given for the Club that has done the best job of promoting 4-H Club work in the past year.

COMING EVENTS OPEN TO YOUTH OF VA. BEACH

There are two events coming up soon that should be of interest to young people.

1. "Farm Youth Speaks" Contest. This contest is open to all youth who live on a farm and would like to speak on the subject "Why Have Farmer Cooperatives?". The local contest is sponsored by Southern States, Norfolk Service and the Virginia Council of Farmer Cooperatives, Inc. The local (Virginia Beach) winner will be eligible to compete for the district award of a $25.00 Savings Bond. For more details, contact the Extension Office at Princess Anne—Phone 340-8030 or 426-2521.

2. All Western Horse Show—Greenbriar Farms, Tidewater Horse and Pony Association, Show Grounds—October 10 and 11, 1964.

This show which hopes to attract over 400 horses from all over the country will have a youth activities program which is open to all youth. The classes offered are as follows:

Stallions—under halter—open—Trophy and 5 ribbons
Mares—under halter—open—Trophy and 6 ribbons
Geldings—under halter—open—Trophy and 6 ribbons
For more information contact Mr. Art Howell, Double-H Ranch, Phone 492-1678.

COMING EVENTS

October 7—Courtthouse Community 4-H Meeting, Demonstration Kitchen, Princess Anne, 7:45 p.m.

October 10—4-H Council Field trip to Langley Air Force Base, Marine's Museum, Fort Monroe.

October 13—Record books due in Extension Office.

'65 DART: The Dodge-size compact. If you'd like to live a little, we'd like to let you in on something big—Dodge Dart for '65. Big beauty. Big comfort. Big ride. And big savings. At your Dodge dealer's now.

'65 POLARA: Beautiful way to leave the low-price field. Inches bigger and a lot better-looking than anything near the price. Why settle for less? Why, indeed? Ask for Polara at your Dodge dealer's.

'65 CORONET: A hot new Dodge at a new lower price. An all-new car that's as comfortable as a standard-size Ford or Chevy, yet priced with Fairlane, Chevelle. Refreshing new styling. Oceans of room. Coronet '65—drive it.

NEW 3-YEAR, 50,000-MILE ENGINE AND DRIVE TRAIN WARRANTY PROTECTS YOU: Chrysler Corporation confidently warrants all of the following vital parts of its 1965 cars for 3 years or 50,000 miles, whichever comes first, during which time any such parts that prove defective in material and workmanship will be replaced or repaired at a Chrysler Motors Corporation Authorized Dealer's place of business without charge for such parts or labor: engine block, head and internal parts, intake manifold, water pump, transmission case and internal parts (excluding manual clutch), brake components, drive shaft, universal joints, rear axle and differential, and rear wheel bearings. REQUIRED MAINTENANCE: The following maintenance services are required under the warranty—change engine oil every 3 months or 4,000 miles, whichever comes first; replace oil filter every second oil change; drain, flush and refill brake fluid every 6 months and replace it every 3 years; and every 6 months furnish evidence of service to a Chrysler Motors Corporation Authorized Dealer and request him to make record of such evidence and your car's mileage. Simple enough for such important protection.

'65 CUSTOM 880: If elegance were spelled in numbers, this would be it. From exclusive 8-window sedan to elegant convertible, this one will wear well with your appreciation of luxury and your sense of good taste.

'Quo Vadis' Returning By Popular Demand

(Opening Wednesday at Beach Theatre).

"Quo Vadis," the giant Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture which has gone down in history as one of the greatest spectacle-dramas the screen has ever known, has been brought back by popular demand. Those who have seen it will want to see this magnificent production, starring Robert Taylor, Deborah Kerr, Leo Genn and Peter Ustinov in a cast of thousands, again. Those who see "Quo Vadis" for the first time are in for absorbing and spell-binding entertainment.

Based on the celebrated novel by Henryk Sienkiewicz, filmed in color against the grandeur of historic Rome in a prodigious undertaking which required more than twelve years of preparation and actual filming, this thrilling drama of the birth of Christianity in a pagan world and the love of a Roman warrior for a beautiful Christian hostage is unfolded with glittering splendor and tremendous dramatic impact.

Here we have the corrupt and extravagant imperial court of the Emperor Nero, brought to life in scenes of staggering immensity, with its spectacle of thousands of triumphant warriors, led by Marcus Vinicius, making a triumphant entry into Rome along the garlanded Appian Way; the scenes of the populace saluting the vestal virgins as they pay homage to the 40-foot-high statues of the pagan gods; the bacchanal in Nero's ornate palace as the Emperor holds a banquet in honor of the victorious Vinicius; the burning of Rome in spectacle scenes never equaled on the screen as they depict the terrified populace screaming and trampling on each other in their frenzied attempt to flee the city; the racing chariots; the martyrdom of the Christians as they are torn apart by lions and burned on crosses; and the final gripping climax in which the Christian hostage, Lygia, is saved from being killed by a ferocious bull when her giant bodyguard, Ursus, kills the beast in a blood-curdling show given by Nero in the huge Circus Maximus.

The picture opens with the return of Vinicius (Robert Taylor) to Rome, following his victorious campaign in Britain, and his meeting with Lygia (Deborah Kerr), young daughter of the late King of Lygia and now a military prisoner, with whom he falls in love. His cynicism in regard to her strange religion of universal love at first proves a barrier to their romance but he is won over to Lygia's faith after the cruelly capricious Nero (Peter Ustinov) has burned Rome to the ground, inciting the wrath of the populace.

Seeking to make the Christians' scapegoats for the fire, Nero has them brought into the Circus Maximus to be torn apart by the ferocious lions, and it is at the suggestion of his ruthless wife, Poppaea (Patricia Laffan) that Lygia, now married to Vinicius, is tied to a stake to be gored by an enraged bull. Nero has consented to free her if her giant bodyguard, Ursus (Buddy Baer), emerges victor in a battle with the bull, but when he reneges on his promise, Vinicius breaks his bonds and leaps into the arena to release Lygia. Now he appeals to the populace who become a howling mob and turn on Nero. The dissolute tyrant, trapped in his palace, struggles Poppaea and then is himself killed by a dagger at the hands of Acte (Rosalee Crutchley), his former mistress. The reign of Nero is ended and the spread of Christianity is assured.

Leo Genn plays the role of the kindly Petronius, arbiter of elegance at Nero's court, and others in prominent roles include Finlay Currie as Peter, Abraham Sofaer as Paul, Marina Berti as the slave girl, Eunice, and Felix Aylmer as Plautius.

"Quo Vadis" was produced by Sam Zimbalist and directed by Mervyn LeRoy from a screen play by John Lee Mahin, S. N. Behrman and Sonya Levien. Miklos Rozsa wrote the rich musical score, a forerunner to his distinguished scores for such subsequent spectacle dramas as "Ben-Hur" and "King of Kings."

Historical Sites Will Be Open For Pilgrimage

Two churches which were among the founders of Virginia's Annual Autumn Pilgrimage, and which have participated for the entire period of this event, will open eight houses on the south side of the James River on October 16, 17 and 18, for the second weekend of the Pilgrimage. Merchant's Hope Church, on Route 10, six miles east of Hopewell, was completed in 1657. Still in the possession of this church is an unusual "Great Bible" which will be on display. The Parish in which Brandon Church at Burrowsville, stands dates back to 1616, and here, as on past occasions, the ladies of the church will serve a plantation luncheon on Friday and Saturday, only.

Appomattox Manor, located in the City of Hopewell, will observe an anniversary next April, for it was from here, where he had headquartered for almost a year, that General Grant left to meet General Lee at Appomattox Court House, and arrange the terms of surrender which resulted in the end of the Civil War.

Evergreen, a massive two-story house built in the 18th century by Edmund Ruffin, whose grandson, born here in 1794, fired the first shot at Fort Sumter, starting the Civil War, is seldom open to the public at anytime, and because of the anniversary of the end of this event, will hold special interest for Civil War buffs this year.

Willow Hill Plantation, a house erected in 1840, and restored a century later, has one of the most interesting interiors, featuring 15th century paneling from a Chateau, and a mantle created by Chippendale and signed by the master cabinet-maker.

The original garden at Upper Brandon was destroyed by Union Troops during the Civil War, but with its serpentine walls enclosing walks hedged with fine English Boxwood, and remarkably fine trees and shrubs flourishing here, shows little sign of its former destruction.

Wakesfield - on-the-James, in Surry County, is erected on the original land grant to the Harrison family in Virginia, and no more historic acreage now exists in this state. The present house of fine Georgian architecture, built 30 years ago, is perfectly located on a bluff overlooking the James River, and furnished with fine antiques.

Chippokes, also in Surry County, is a 1,600-acre working plantation, and visitors are always interested in the immense scale of the farming operation here, and the broad acreage under cultivation. Beautiful and extensive gardens and restored dependencies which have been re-

WILLIS BUYS CAMP
HILLTOP — Willis Wayside Furniture Co. will open a branch at Hilltop. The new branch will be in the former Camp Furniture Co. building, and is to be known as Willis-Camp at Hilltop.

Secretary Benjamin R. Willis said "I know of no better location for this branch than at Hilltop, which in my opinion is destined to become a major shopping center for expanding Virginia Beach."

The Laskin Ros acquisition, including land, building and merchandise, was valued at around a quarter of a million dollars. The 135 x 150-foot store is on a 200x200-foot site.

THE FIZZLE FAMILY

By H. T. Enns

ROYAL FAMILIES ON CBS-TV

An intimate view of the royal families of Europe living in an atmosphere of unreality as the world edged toward war is portrayed with rare historical film—some of it never before shown on the air—in WORLD WAR I: "The Doomed Dynasties" Tuesday, Oct. 6 (8:00-8:30 p.m. EDT) on the CBS Television Network.

Art Assoc. Names Board

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Virginia Beach Art Association has announced its board of directors to serve for the 1964-65 season.

Mrs. W. Carey Penington is president and working with her are Miss Ruth Epperson, vice president; Mrs. Earl C. Heaton, recording secretary; Mrs. Charles Fishel, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Gilmore Lee Tilbrook, treasurer.

Committee chairmen include: Mrs. J. Douglas Hubbard, membership; Mrs. Randolph S. Brent and Mrs. C. R. Masterson, publicity; Mrs. Penington, programs; Mrs. Harry B. Price Jr., Spring Art Exhibit; Mrs. C. W. Walkley and Mrs. Caroline C. Motley, social and hospitality; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Tayloe, Christmas party; Mrs. Lawrence Tucker, budget; Richard Tayloe and J. Douglas Hubbard, ways and means; Miss Epperson, photograph and telephone; Mrs. Donald Jefferson, posters and design; Mrs. Lehman H. Garrison Jr. and Mrs. Roger Burton, calendars; and Miss Louise Hall, historian.

The building fund committee is composed of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Winder, Edward Carson, Mrs. Giltbrook, Mrs. Gordon Atwill, Mrs. Robert M. Lamb and Harry B. Price Jr.

Robert Ryan is the narrator of the WORLD WAR I series. Morton Gould is the composer of the original score written specially for the documentary.

The broadcast shows how the interrelated dynasties—the Hohenzollerns, Hapsburgs, Hanovers, Romanovs and Ottomans—were split into allies and enemies as the fragile face of peace was shattered by rivalries, ambitions and miscalculations that led to armed conflict.

"The Doomed Dynasties" also depicts the society over which the crowned heads presided and explains how this society collapsed under the pressure of profound change that was sweeping the continent. In depicting the "last generation of autocrats," the broadcast shows the aristocrats at play in their gathering places, setting the pace for their courts and followers.

The documentary goes beneath the surface manifestations of international amity and jollity of the era and illustrates how Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany, proud of his country's increasing military and economic might, proclaimed Germany's "missionary" role—a warning that was largely unheeded.

Other factors that contributed to the upheaval of the old order in the Old World are shown on the broadcast. Among these factors were strikes and labor unrest, the struggles of the suffragettes, the urbanization of society and the rise of a new middle class.

In focusing on the Czar, the documentary points out how unaware he was of the vast changes taking place in his domain, how unaware he was that he had lost the confidence of his people.

Three Scouters Get Top Eagle Ratings

VIRGINIA BEACH — Three members of Troop No. 378 of Virginia Beach Methodist Church received their Eagle Scout Awards Wednesday night during a Court of Honor ceremony.

The coveted Eagle badges were presented to James T. Parrish, Jeffrey A. Headley and Claude A. Taylor III by Troop Committeeman Herbert R. Orti. Virginia Beach Mayor Frank A. Dusch also made a special presentation of the miniature Freemason 7 capsule pins.

Guest speaker for the Court of Honor program was the Rev. Beverly Felty, pastor of the sponsoring church. Welcoming remarks were made by Stanley A. Phillips, chairman of the troop committee, and Richard F. Dyer, institutional representative, presented the troop charter.

Thaddeus Parrish, assistant scoutmaster, presented Star badges to Carey Snellings and A. Edward Blair and M. Steven Phillips was awarded a First Class badge by Elmore D. Wolfe, another assistant scoutmaster.

Second Class awards went to James G. Copeland, Wendell R. Hines and Davis Parrish. These were presented by Assistant Scoutmaster Thomas J. Headley.

Another highlight of the evening was the presentation of the Golden Axe Award, achieved by scouts who have camped out for 12 consecutive months. They were presented by Troop Committeeman Marvin R. Hines to Carey Snellings, Dennis F. Howard, James T. Parrish, Claude A. Taylor III, Roy R. Markert and Alan Ferguson.

Troop Committeeman Roy R. Jackson presented merit badges to the following: John Wolfe, Jeffrey Headley and Edward Blair, canoeing; Carey Snellings, rowing; Carey Snellings and Edward Blair, lifesaving; William Henry, safety; Ryan Amburn, cooking; James Parrish, automotive safety; and Edward Blair, swimming, soil and water conservation and personal fitness.

Ernest N. Allen is scoutmaster of the troop.

Bayside Junior Hi School Is Publicized

BAYSIDE — The Bayside Junior High School was featured in the September issue of the Virginia Record Magazine. The school has just been completed at a cost of $1,819,000.

Covering 142,250 square feet, the single story building has exterior walls of masonry with block interiors. The roof is a combination of wood, metal, and fibre. Windows are aluminum and floors are terrazzo.

Architect was Bernard B. Spiegel Vassant & Guster was mechanical and electrical consultants. E. B. Small was structural consultant, and Robert R. Marquis, Inc. was the general contractor.

"Lady Bird" Visit Sparks Special Bus

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Democratic Women's Club of Virginia Beach will sponsor a "Lady Bird Special" bus trip to Norfolk today to herald the Tidewater visit of the nation's First Lady.

The bus will leave from the Alan B. Shepard Civic Center at 11 a.m. and will make the following stops: Princess Anne Plaza, 11:15 a.m.; and Aragona Village, 11:25 a.m.

The round-trip fare for the participants will be $1.25 per person, according to Mrs. Elwood Hudson, president of the Democratic Women.

Historical Group Gains New Support

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Princess Anne County Historical Society has received tremendous support from interested persons and organizations since the society's efforts on obtaining the old Pembroke Manor house was made public last Thursday.

Immediately after a story on the society appeared in this paper last week the president, M. F. Fogler, was asked to speak to the Colonial Dames of the 17th Century on the society's aims and works.

The meeting will be held October 24 at the White Heron Motel with Mrs. B. F. White as program chairman.

A spokesman also said that officials of the historical group have been besieged with requests for memberships and estimated that at least 30 persons have asked to join the group.

The society recently elected a new slate of officers and has rejuvenated its program schedule for the coming months in order to attract more new members.

Much emphasis will be put on assisting the city in obtaining the historical Pembroke Manor which is located in the center of one of the city's largest housing developments. City Council appropriated $10,000 for its purchase last year but the sale has not yet been consummated because of a few legal technicalities.

Kellam Will Speak Before U.N. Group

WILLIAMSBURG — Sidney Kellam will head up the United Nations Observance Program at the Colonial Williamsburg Lodge for the Tidewater-Richmond Food Service Executives Association, Int. on Thursday.

This is the fourth year the organization has saluted the United Nations. Past United Nations Day programs by the Food Service Executives have been considered to be among the top social events of Virginia.

Cocktails and hors d'oeuvres will be served from 6:30 p.m. to 7:45 p.m. The fabulous Champagne Plantation Dinner, prepared by the Colonial Williamsburg food staff, headed by George Farback and Ray Kief, will be served from 8 to 10 p.m.

Joseph J. Slako, deputy secretary from the State Department in Washington, D.C., will be the key speaker. And famous entertainers will perform during dinner.

Dancing will be enjoyed from 10 p.m. till 1 a.m.

Dress for the ladies will be semi-formal, and the gentlemen may be attired in business suits.

KELLEY ELECTED DEANRY OFFICER

VIRGINIA BEACH — James Kelley of the St. Gregory the Great Parish has been elected vice-president of the Tidewater Deanery Diocesan Council of Catholic Men.

Another One For Virginia Beach Boulevard

Richard Holly of Route 1 was injured Monday about 8:30 a.m. when his car was struck from behind by a truck driven by Alvin Schlaba of Oceana. Patrolman J. M. Hughes said that Holly had stopped his car on Virginia Beach Boulevard and was checking under the hood when the accident occurred. He was knocked under the car by the impact. He was taken to DePaul Hospital with a broken nose and possible chest injuries. Hughes said Schlaba has been charged with improper look-out. (Staff Photo by Hardy)

City Seeks Help From Uncle Sam

VIRGINIA BEACH — City Manager W. Russel Hatchett has authorized Richard G. Webbon, Public Works Director, to contact the Public Works Administration in Washington for possible help with a master drainage plan.

The heavy rains which plagued the City this past month have prompted the action in asking federal aid in solving the problem.

A profile of potential trouble spots throughout the city will be presented to the federal government, but at this time, no date has been set to present the findings.

Even though Virginia Beach may eventually receive financial aid in the engineering preparation and execution of a master drainage system, with the possible addition of widening and deepening of the ditches for boating and recreational use, Webbon cautioned that it will still be a long time before all problems can be solved.

Still Raid Nets Pair

VIRGINIA BEACH — Two men have been charged with the illegal manufacture of whiskey after federal, state and city officials raided a still about noon Sunday.

Arrested at the scene were Claiborne Morris, 34, and Leroy Hunter, 50, both of Landtown Road.

The raid was organized by Detective C. R. West of the Virginia Beach Vice Squad. He said the still had a 55-gallon capacity and that about three gallons had been run off when the men were apprehended.

Morris and Hunter have been placed in custody awaiting a preliminary hearing. Their bail has been set at $1,000.

Welcome Home

The day before the USS ENTERPRISE was to dock at Norfolk Naval Base, nearly all of that ship's fire-power and striking force arrived at Oceana, in the form of 80 pilots and their super-sonic jet fighter and attack aircraft. The air wing had given fire-power demonstrations and exercises for dignitaries around the world as part of the U. S. Navy's demonstration of this country's nuclear capabilities. (Navy photo)

In Back Bay

Study Shows Salt Aid To Waterfowl

BACK BAY — Salt concentration of up to 10 per cent of sea strength appears to be a good compromise in stimulating waterfowl food production without hurting bass fishing in Back Bay, according to the results of a 6 year cooperative biological investigation conducted by the Virginia and North Carolina Game Commissions and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

A breach in the barrier dunes during the storm of March 7, 1962, introduced large quantities of sea water into Back Bay while the study was in progress, allowing careful evaluation of the effects of salinities on aquatic plants and animals.

It was long suspected, and confirmed by the study, that small amounts of salt water stimulated aquatic plant growth including many species attractive to waterfowl. It was found the major benefit of the salt was in accelerating the settling of suspended silt.

The resulting clear water allowed good penetration of sunlight which stimulated plant growth. So far, the optimum salinity for plant growth seems to be from 10 to 15 per cent sea strength.

Since sport fishing in Back Bay is primarily for fresh water fish, it was essential to know the effects of salinity on largemouth bass. Laboratory and field studies indicate that, although adult largemouths can tolerate higher salinities, their successful reproduction is greatly reduced by salinities in excess of 10 per cent sea strength. Lesser concentrations seemed to have little effect.

Studies of the high salinities introduced by storms indicated that salinities greater than 35 per cent sea strength killed plants and salinities over 40 per cent sea strength killed fish. It was also found that sea water

Swim Classes Still Open

VIRGINIA BEACH — There are still a few vacancies in the Red Cross life saving swimming classes that started last Thursday at the Cavalier pool.

The classes are open to adults over 18 years of age who are interested in continuing the life saving course into a water safety instructor course, which will follow after the present classes have been completed.

There are also a few vacancies left in the men's swimming classes.

Both classes are held Thursday nights at the Cavalier pool. The men's classes start at 7 p.m. and the life saving classes follow at 7:30 p.m.

Registration for both groups may be made through the local Red Cross office on 19th Street and Arctic Avenue.

Belmont Students

VIRGINIA BEACH — Two young men from Virginia Beach have enrolled for the first semester at Belmont Abbey College, Belmont, N.C.

Walter Drinkwater, son of Vernon Drinkwater of 31 East 45th Street, is a graduate of Virginia Beach High School, and Peter Michael Muller, son of Commander Walter E. Muller of 2324 Bayville Road, is a graduate of Princess Anne High School.

would have to be adequately mixed and dispersed throughout the bay without allowing high concentration of salt water in any one area.

Whether such controlled introductions are practical or feasible can be determined only through careful study by qualified hydrologists and engineers, the committee concluded.

Collision Fatal To Navy Man

OCEANA — A 31-year-old Navy man was killed late Wednesday night when his car went out of control and overturned in a water-filled ditch.

He was identified as Chief Aviation Fire Control Technician Max B. McHenry who was assigned to the Oceana Naval Air Station.

He resided on the base with his wife, Mrs. Melba McHenry, and three children.

The accident occurred about 11:30 p.m. Wednesday on Harper's Road near Route 615.

Police said McHenry's car left the highway and overturned in a ditch filled with water. Part of the vehicle was submerged. The Navy man was alone in the car.

A Navy spokesman said burial services were to be held in the Memphis National Cemetery.

Downing Dedication Speaker Oct. 13

BAYSIDE — Congressman Thomas N. Downing will be guest speaker at the dedication of the new Bayside Post Office October 16 at 3 p.m.

The new facility is located on Pleasure House Road opposite the present Bayside postal station.

Other dignitaries scheduled to attend the dedication are Virginia Beach Mayor Frank A. Dusch, City Manager W. Russel Hatchett, Andrew E. Newton, director of the Washington region of the Post Office Department; Howard R. Barker, assistant to the regional director; and Capt. Nelson P. Watkins, commanding officer at the Little Creek Amphibious Base.

TIPS ON HAPPY MARRIAGES GIVEN

Introduce your husband to a "new woman"—you!—by varying your hairdo, dress style, conversational topics. Clean shining hair should be your halo of beauty; a new blue shampoo has been formulated to make hair more manageable. Use make-up to play up your best features, play down flaws.

1. Squeeze the budget for an occasional evening out for just the two of you. Revisit that favorite little restaurant of your courtship days and give your husband your undivided attention—uninterrupted by demands from the P.T.A., the pabulum set, and the neighbors dropping in from next door. You may not have realized how difficult it has been for him to really talk to you—emphatically as you are in the complex details of running a household. But "the other woman"—you—knows the importance of intimate small talk.

2. Avoid that end-of-a-rough-day quarrel. You know the kind of day—when things start out badly and keep going from there. Tensions build until you're ready to explode by the time he comes home from work. Yet there are so many little ways to save the day—and evening. Could you sneak a 15-minute nap an hour or two before he comes home? Or how about a relaxing tub soak? To chase the blues, try a blue shampoo—many women have learned that a late afternoon shampoo-plus-scalp-massage can do wonders to relax tense muscles at the back of the neck—putting lights in the disposition as well as the hair.

3. Keep growing as a person. If you've always yearned to be a dancer, take ballet lessons just for fun. While you may not dance professionally, they can keep you wearing a size 10 longer. Tackle the financial pages of newspapers; join an evening class to master a subject which interests you, whether it be dress designing, modern art, or ancient Greek drama. Keep up with current events and you'll never have to worry about holding up your end of a conversation at parties; your husband will be proud of your ability to mingle easily.

4. Add sparkle to your looks. Remember how you were always trying out new hair styles and saving up pennies for that smashing new dress—the better to impress him in courtship days? Try the same black magic now! Tamed and shining hair should get top priority in your beauty plans; a new gentle blue version of Halo Shampoo, for example, incorporates an enriched formula to give hair greater manageability as well as sparkle. Don't be afraid to experiment with makeup: use dark foundation to put intriguing hollows in your cheeks! Let your next clothing purchase be in a flattering shade he's never seen you wear.

5. Respect your husband's individual tastes. Thoughtfulness counts more than drudgery with most men—and chances are your husband appreciates small things—like finding his favorite snack in the refrigerator late at night—more than having you spend all day ironing his shirts instead of sending them to the laundry. Finding that you have restocked his razor blades (when he thought he was out of them) may count more with him than a spotless floor back of the radiator.

6. Respect his mood. How can you face him with the news that he has to fix the washing machine again? The answer is not when he first comes in the door—when a few moments of peace and relaxation are often vital. The task may not loom so large after dinner, when restful feelings have been restored. The same scheme may be employed for telling him about the unexpected bill which came today, what the teacher said Johnny did, in the note she sent from school—in short anything which doesn't have a real emergency alarm bell connected to it.

7. Be thoughtful. Don't make a commitment for a late party when you know he faces a hard day on the job tomorrow. Don't keep him waiting when he has an appointment to meet, you downtown. Don't make him spend his entire weekend doing household chores. Don't build your social schedule around your friends exclusively—invite him. He'll swear he sees a halo over your head!

And whether you're 18 or 80—you can remain, in his eyes—that "other woman"—he married.

GARDEN PLANNING LIKENED TO ART

Planning your garden is like painting a picture. With the sky for the canvas, a house for the focus point, there is no limit as to how it can be planted. Gardens should be designed for the specific needs of your particular family. In it may be included the living area, the recreational area, the dining area, a children's area, or perhaps a dog yard—exactly what you need to make your home ideal for the requirements of your family.

Every homeowner, whether large or small, needs a landscape plan by which to work. Plants are not expensive—rather, it is expensive to work without a plan. Each plant, as it is set into place, fits into the overall scheme. Careful planning, wise selection of plants and skilled execution of these plans will assure you an attractive home grounds when completed.

If you need color in your garden, this is possible thru a wise selection of plant material available in your particular area, says the National Landscape Nurseryman's Association. Good taste and design is assured with proper planning, and even after the heavy blooming season is over, you will enjoy the cool, lovely effect of the various shades of green.

Roses are very lovely additions to any garden, and if you are not including some of these in your gardens you are missing a real treat. Not only are the hybrid tea roses great for cutting, but there are many attractive floribundas, a d. grandifloras that bloom almost continuously, adding accents of color. One of the prettiest patios I know included and "L" shaped beds of Valentine roses as a real color accent and conversation piece. Roses not only add color and beauty, but gracious fragrance to the garden.

Go Steady With Boy Who Is In The Service?

THE WEEK'S LETTER: "My problem is that I like a boy in the Air Force who isn't stationed where I live. I really don't want to go out on him, but when I see all the other kids going out I think I should go out. I go out with someone else and I'm sorry. I told him I wanted to break up steadily with a boy who is several hundred miles away. You should talk things over with this boy and come to an understanding. You will both be better off if you can agree to be just good friends until his tour of duty is completed. Then you will each be free to have other friends without suffering any pangs of conscience.

If you can come to a proper understanding, things may work out better in the long run. If you agree to continue being "steady"—and one of you does step out with someone else, you may break up permanently.

If you have a proper understanding and keep in touch with one another through frequent letters, your relationship will be continually strengthened.

If you have a teenage problem you want to discuss, or an observation to make, please write to: FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS, ELKS AUXILIARY, 1805 ATLANTIC AVE., VIRGINIA BEACH, VA. 23461.

For Women Only—

As I See It

by Betty Deal

Home Demonstration Agent

Sometimes I get carried away talking of interesting things to you interesting people and talk too long!

So first to-day I want to give you a real wonderful recipe.

How to Preserve a Husband

Be careful in your selection. Do not choose too young. When selected, give your entire thoughts to preparation for domestic use. Some wives insist upon keeping them in a pickle, others are constantly getting them into hot water. This may make them sour, hard, and sometimes bitter; even poor varieties may be made sweet, tender and good, by garnishing them with patience, well sweetened with love and seasoned with kisses. Wrap them in a mantle of charity. Keep warm with a steady fire of domestic devotion and serve with peaches and cream. Thus prepared, they will keep for years.

This is National Fire Prevention Week! Let's preserve our house by preventing fires. Heating Equipment and Chimneys—Thoroughly check all heating equipment and chimneys before the next heating season. Clean chimney regularly. Keep curtains and clothes away from heating equipment. Wiring and Electricity—Check all wiring, fuses, outlets, extension cords, motors and equipment thoroughly. Be sure they are the correct type, size and condition to do the job. Never leave bare wire exposed. Smoking and Matches—Be sure every match and cigarette is completely out before discarding. Don't smoke in bed, barns, or dusty buildings, or near gasoline or other flammable liquids. Spontaneous Ignition—Store oily or paint-spattered rags in a closed metal container. Be sure hay and grain are dried enough for storage. Repair barn and storage roofs. Flammable Liquids—Carry and store flammable liquids only in metal safety cans. Don't store in the house. Don't refuel a heater or machinery while it's still hot. Never use gasoline for cleaning.

It's necessary to plan for the worst sometimes. So, each family should have an escape plan. REMEMBER: It's people, not possessions, that count. If fire should start in your home, get everyone out quickly. Don't waste precious time trying to save valuables. Don't stop to dress children. . . Fire is fast—and deadly. Treat any unusual smoke or gas odor as the signal to get out at once. Never open a hot door. Feel the door first—if it's hot, keep it closed and get out another way or wait for help. Closed doors allow extra time for escape.

If there is smoke in your escape route, crouch or crawl along the floor.

PLAN at least two escape routes leading directly from every room in the house. Rehearse them with the entire family until even younger children know exactly what to do. Anticipate halls and stairs being blocked by fire. Keep exits clear. Plan to use garage and porch roofs, ladders, and even trees to escape from upper floors. Keep a flashlight handy.

Pick an outside assembly point where the family will meet. Be sure everyone understands the rule "once out—stay out."

EDITORIAL SPEAKING

SHOP OWNERS - PLEASE NOTE

They've done it again. The store windows along Atlantic Avenue have their usual cluttered, hastily vacated appearance that leaves such a poor impression in the minds of motorists and shoppers. The mass exodus of our "summer merchants" is quite apparent.

This is not a new situation but it did fall right on the heels of a plea from the Chamber of Commerce urging these store owners to please leave their windows in reasonably presentable shape before heading for the warmer climate of Florida or some other southern resort. That's why this year their inconsideration to neighboring year-around merchants and, indeed to the city itself, is so glaring. Far too few of the departing owners heeded this plea. And it certainly was not an unreasonable one. It would require little effort or expense to leave the windows attractively decorated, or at least draped, for the next few months. And the benefits to the city, and especially to the merchants still open for business, would be far more than the inconvenience such an effort might cause.

Virginia Beach Borough is, of course, predominantly seasonal but this does not necessarily mean that it must look like a ghost town during the winter months. Atlantic Avenue is certainly not "dead" until Memorial Day. We have many vacationers still enjoying the seashore. We have conventions scheduled all winter long, drawing hundreds of visitors to the resort. And the permanent residents very definitely cannot be overlooked. Why should these people see only a street lined with wide open windows filled with nothing more attractive than hastily discarded papers and racks that literally scream "we are vacant until next summer?"

Perhaps it is easier to simply turn your back on a city that has supported you for four months, take off to warmer climate for the winter and return in time to reap the summer harvest of fun-seeking tourists. But what of the year around merchant? Why should he be hindered by this vacant appearance when he maintains a well-kept establishment throughout the year? It surely must be difficult to draw business to a store that is tucked inconspicuously among obviously deserted buildings.

There are many things that could have been done to improve these windows. Military recruiting offices had offered to set up displays and local artists might possibly have consented to leave some of their paintings exhibited periodically. Certainly the Chamber of Commerce would have worked with the merchants in obtaining free or inexpensive methods of decorating the windows. It would have taken little effort... perhaps no more than a phone call. But any effort was apparently too much.

Virginia Beach is a proud city. She is attractive and growing more so every day with the increasing construction of modern hotels along her oceanfront and other new buildings throughout the business districts. She quite naturally takes on a deserted look during the winter but steps could be taken to cut down on this stark impression of vacancy.

The chamber's attempts to create pride and interest in the city apparently didn't get through to most of the 4-month merchants. This is not true of all of them, of course. Some took great strides in improving their stores and windows and to them we say "thank you." To the others we would like to give a strong tongue-lashing. This is our city and we think it is the greatest and we quite frankly resent anyone taking advantage of its virtues and offering so little in return.

We urge the chamber not to let up or its efforts to improve this situation. Perhaps it will take a stronger move than just a plea to impress on some of these merchants the importance of supporting their adopted city. But something should be done if Virginia Beach is to hold her head as high through the dreary cold days as she so proudly does through the bright warm days of the busy tourist season.

Dr. Haddock Among Fund Raising Group

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Dr. W. Kenneth Haddock, formerly a pastor of Virginia Beach Methodist Church, has been named to the staff of The Methodist Church's corps of professional fund-raisers to join with 25 full-time and six part-time crusade directors in the Department of Finance and Field Service.

Dr. Alton E. Lowe, director of the Department, announced that in fiscal 1964 (the 12 months ending May 31, 1964), the Department staff led 409 financial crusades, in which $42,776,192 was raised in Methodist churches and annual conferences.

Six Interstate Highway Sections Almost Complete

RICHMOND — Six sections of interstate highway totaling nearly 100 miles will be ready for traffic by the end of the year, pushing the completed mileage in Virginia to 350.

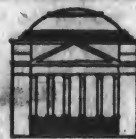

Construction on the 1,053-mile federal-aid superhighway network is at the halfway point in time. The deadline for completion is 1972. At the end of the year the State Highway Department will have better than 50 per cent of the system completed or in some stage of construction.

The sections nearly ready for traffic:

- Interstate 66 in Fairfax County—13 miles.
- Interstate 95 from Fredericksburg to Woodbridge—33 miles.
- Interstate 81 in Smyth and Wythe Counties—14 miles.
- Interstate 81 from Salem to Botetourt County—27 miles.
- Interstate Spur 581 at Roanoke—2.5 miles.
- Interstate Spur 204 at Portsmouth—3.5 miles.

NEWS REPORT FROM THE UNIVERSITY

University Broadcasting

"You are listening to 'The University Hour,' a half hour high-lighting a cultural or musical event taking place at the University of Virginia in Charlottesville."

Since 1953 the University of Virginia has been providing programs for radio stations in Virginia and other states via the University of Virginia Tape Network and program series such as "The University Hour."

With five year-round audio-tape program series, the network is used by 65 Virginia radio stations and 20 stations in nine other southern states. The average station subscribes to three series. A sixth series, "According to Mr. Jefferson," spotlights Thomas Jefferson's views on various subjects as expressed in his writings. It is re-issued each year in a 13-week sequence.

The programs are produced by the University's Radio-Recording Center under the supervision of center director Rod Collins. The center is sponsored by the Division of Special Programs of the School of General Studies which administers the University's educational services off the grounds.

The network is financed by funds from the School of General Studies, located at Charlottesville, and by limited income from recordings that the center makes around the University.

A special gift from the University's Alumni Fund permits out-of-state circulation of the tapes.

If funds and staff permitted, Collins says, the network would expand to include additional series varying from literary readings to discussions of how government works.

More immediate plans call for a new five-minute series reporting on events of general interest at the University, if it can be financed.

Besides the "University Hour" and "According to Mr. Jefferson," the current program series includes:

"Education on the March," a 15-minute weekly discussion of educational progress and problems. This series is subscribed to by most stations.

"Music and Memories," a 15-minute musical program surveying popular performers and melodies of the 1920's and '30's.

"Collector's Corner," a 25-minute weekly classical program, featuring European and out-of-print American recordings. It is linked to an extra-musical topic of general interest.

"The Scholar's Bookshelf," a 15-minute discussion of leisure reading by University faculty members.

All programs are written, produced, scheduled, duplicated, and mailed to stations by a staff of three full-time and two part-time members.

The network's popularity is evidenced by the increasing number of letters from would-be out-of-state subscribers. Only Virginia radio stations are specifically invited to subscribe to the network.

Arthur M. Gates, president of the Virginia Association of Broadcasters, said, "Your service to broadcasters is a good one and it helps many of Virginia's broadcasters to present programs, well produced and well researched, to the listeners as a public service."

An exhibit tracing the history of the Army's Medal of Honor opened Monday at G-E-X on Virginia Beach Boulevard. Before a group of civilian and military dignitaries, a ceremony was held to honor Richard T. Shea Jr. of Chesapeake who in giving his life for his country was awarded the decoration. Reading Shea's citation is G-E-X Member Relations Director Ted Fertig. Looking on from left to right are Richard T. Shea Sr., father of the winner; Fort Story Commander Colonel Jerome K. Hostetter; and Mayor Frank A. Dusch. The display was brought from New York by Specialist S. Charles R. Gallagher, who set up the exhibit and will man it during the next 10 days. From Virginia Beach the display will move to Pensacola, Florida. The Army and Air Force Medal of Honor differs from that of the Navy and Marine Corps in that it has an eagle and the latter an anchor. OF INTEREST TO VETS

(By Thomas A. Moore, Area
Director Division of War Veterans' Claims, Commonwealth of Virginia, Suite 218, Professional Arts Building, Norfolk, Virginia, at 142 West York Street)

The Veterans Administration often receives notes such as:
"Here is my check—please pay Bill's insurance. His Aunt Minnie". Delay and probably error in handling GI insurance accounts is risked each month by numbers to identify themselves.

With over five million GI policyholders and thousands of identical or similar names, the individual number assigned to each policy is the only way of assuring speedy, positive identification. Veterans writing the VA should use their policy numbers including the prefix letter H, K,
V, RH, RS, or W so that the account can be immediately identified.

In event the veteran has lost or misplaced his policy number, he should furnish his service serial number and his date of birth to enable the VA to identify his account.

Beach Man Low Bidder

WILMINGTON, Del. — The Army Engineer District, Wilmington has announced that Stockton W. Rouzie, Jr., of Virginia Beach is the low bidder for removal and disposal of a derelict barge from Perquimans River, North Carolina. Rouzie's bid amounted to $4,493.10.

Four other bids were received in amounts ranging from $4,862 to $9,950. Bids were opened in the office of the District Engineer on 29 September 1964.

The wooden derelict is situated on the west side of the Norfolk Southern Railroad Bridge near Hertford, N.C.

Under the terms of the contract, the contractor will be required to commence work within 20 calendar days after receipt of notice to proceed and to complete the work not later than 60 calendar days after receipt of notice to proceed.

Princess Will Resume Film, Book Series

VIRGINIA BEACH — The
Princess Theatre will resume its World Heritage Film and Book Program October 13 with the showing of Charles Dickens' immortal "David Copperfield."

Last spring the theatre launched this special program and presented at that time such classics as "Julius Caesar," "Captains Courageous," "Little Women," and "Tale of Two Cities."

These films were so well received and acclaimed by students and teachers that the theatre has resumed the program.

James R. Wannall Jr., manager of the theatre, said this week that he has received calls almost daily since the series ended in August asking for the names and dates of future films.

"David Copperfield" will be brought to life by 65 name stars including Freddie Bartholomew as David; W. C. Fields as Mr.
Micawber; Edna May Oliver as Aunt Betsy; and Lionel Barrymore as Dan Peggotty.

Other educational films will include Elizabeth Bennet's "Pride and Prejudice," November 18; Rudyard Kipling's
"Kim," December 9; and Pearl S.
Buck's "The Good Earth," January 13.

Special student tickets for these films will be sold through the schools and will be handled by the Distributive Education departments.

"This type of program is one of the few out of the ordinary services we can offer a community," Wannall said, "and I believe that enjoyable education is a fete in itself."

FIRING PERIODS

AT STORY LISTED

FORT STORY — Personnel of Fort Story, Va., will be firing on the Small Arms Range at Fort Story Oct. 10-17 from 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The danger area will be a sector of radius extending seaward a distance of 1600 yards between radial lines bearing 04° true and 94° true, respectively, from a point on shore at Latitude
36° 35' 00", Longitude 75° 59'

Enlisted Man Becomes Officer

Frederick D. Sears, Chief Quartermaster aboard the tank landing ship USS Lorain County, was promoted Thursday to the commissioned rank of Ensign. With the ship's company, officers and enlisted, assembled at quarters on the vehicle Deck, and in the presence of the ship's Executive Officer, Lieutenant Mahon, and a few invited guests, Commander R. J. Wallace presented Sears with a set of officers' shoulder boards, which he in turn proudly, though somewhat nervously, attached to the shoulders of her husband's dress khaki uniform. Upon completion of the transformation from the Navy's non-commissioned to commissioned officer status, the newly created Ensign was requested by his Commanding Officer to inspect the ship's crew. This he proceeded in doing. (Navy photo)

NEW TV STAR VISITING HERE

Patricia Barry, co-star of NBC-TV's new television show, "The Bristol Court," will visit Tidewater this week for a brief personal appearance tour. She will arrive at the Norfolk Airport late Wednesday evening and begin a round of local appearances on Thursday.

Miss Barry co-stars in "Harris Against the World," one of three interrelated stories on the new NBC-TV 90-minute comedy series, (Mondays 7:30-9 p.m. WAVY-TV Channel 10). Patricia portrays Kate, a modern wife whose numerous activities and plans usually bode ill for her husband, the long-suffering Harris played by veteran actor Jack Klugman.

Patricia's career includes performances on many popular television shows—"Dr. Kildare," "The Eleventh Hour," "Gunsmoke," "Perry Mason," "Kraft Theatre," "The Virginian," "Ben Casey," "DuPont Show of the Week," and many others.

Miss Barry has won Emmy nominations for her work on the "Playhouse 90" production of "Reunion" and for her performance in "Dark Victory."

Born in Davenport, Iowa, Patricia attended Stephens College in Columbia, Missouri where she trained under Maude Adams in the school's Department of Drama. She answered a newspaper classified ad to land the summer theatre job in New Hampshire.

Miss Barry won roles in several plays after her New Hampshire sojourn. Her first Broadway appearance was in another ingenue role in "Calico Wedding." She also played opposite Steve Allen in "Pink Elephant" on Broadway.

During the mid-fifties, Patricia appeared on most of the top radio and TV shows emanating from New York before returning to the stage in "A Girl Can Tell," and "The Seven Year Itch." A short time later she won "The Most Promising Actress of the Year" award for her portrayal in "The Crucible" at the Ann Arbor Festival in Michigan.

In 1957, Miss Barry moved to California with continued television success. In 1960, she made another stage appearance, starring opposite Tony Randall in Chicago in "Goodbye Again."

Another highlight of the same year was her comedy performance opposite Alec Guinness in "The Wicked Scheme of Jebel Deeks," a 90-minute special event telecast.

Patricia is married to Philip Barry, Jr. (son of the late playwright). The Barrys live in Beverly Hills and have two children, Miranda Robin and Stephanie Anne. Both named after characters in their paternal grandfather's last play, "Second Threshold." The household also includes a cocker spaniel, a Siamese cat, a rabbit, a parakeet, a hamster, a tortoise, and five goldfish.

Miss Barry will hold a news conference with representatives of the local news media on Thursday morning at the Golden Triangle Motor Hotel. Following, she will make guest appearances on WAVY Radio and WAVY-TV. Thursday afternoon, she will tour the Norfolk Naval Base and Naval Air Station. She will depart from Norfolk by air late Thursday afternoon for her return to Hollywood.

Attending the concert will be 500 members of the Medical Society of Virginia and their guests. The Society is meeting for its 117th Annual Scientific Assembly October 11 through 14 at the Golden Triangle Motor Hotel.

The concert is sponsored by the American Association of University Women. Funds raised through ticket sales will provide a Cherry Nottingham International Fellowship Grant and a Cherry Nottingham Scholarship. The Grant is awarded to a foreign woman for graduate study in this country. The Scholarship is awarded to an outstanding Norfolk high school girl graduate who wishes to attend Old Dominion College.

Tickets for the concert are available by phoning MA2-5436 JU 8-7623, MA 2-1700 and from the Center Theatre Box Office during the week preceding October 11.

"Daniel Boone"
A proud and stubborn widow, Zerelda Fiullen (guest star Bethel Leslie), and her three children choose to face a winter of starvation in the wilderness rather than accept charity, in "The Family Fiullen" on NBC-TV's "Daniel Boone" Thursday, Oct. 15 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. EDT.

"Quo Vadis" Is Back

Robert Taylor, as a Roman warrior, is put under arrest by Nero's guards in this scene from "Quo Vadis," the all-time great MGM color drama which co-stars Deborah Kerr. The film has been brought back in response to popular demand and will open here Wednesday at the Beach Theatre for a four day showing.

THREE AWARDS TO WTAR-TV

NORFOLK — WTAR-TV won three awards in the television classification at a judging of entries in an exhibition held by the Art Directors Club of Norfolk. Judging of the 350 entries from local advertising agencies, department stores, art studios, television stations and the local newspapers was made by Alfred M. Cascino of Carlini, Wilson and Acres Advertising, Richmond, and William A. Hunter of the W. B. Doner Company, Baltimore.

Approximately 60 entries were selected for exhibition at the Fourth Annual Show of the Art Directors' Club of Norfolk. Awards taken by WTAR included a 20-second spot commercial created and produced by the WTAR-TV Production Department for Pogueson Motors, Inc. Jeff Dane, Commercial Production Manager at the CBS affiliate in Norfolk, won an award for production of a commercial created by de Garmo, Inc., of New York for Seaboard Citizens National Bank, and an award for production of a commercial created by Atlantic National Advertising of Norfolk for Virginia National Bank.

Presentation of the awards were made at a dinner Monday night at the Golden Triangle Motor Hotel, followed by formal opening of the show at the Norfolk Museum of Arts and Sciences.

STATES RIGHTS BOOKS READY

RICHMOND — The Virginia Commission on Constitutional Government has just completed work on a volume of historical documents and commentaries on them, entitled "We the States." We have a limited supply of this volume, and offer it on a first-come, first-served basis.

The volume puts together, in one place, several papers in the field of "States Rights" that were published separately by the Commission in recent years. The book includes a definitive edition of the Constitution itself, together with some detailed tables on ratification by the States. For its historical interest, the text of the Constitution of the Confederate States of America also is included. Among other familiar documents are the Declaration of Independence, in Mr. Jefferson's original draft, and the Articles of Confederation. Less readily available perhaps are the full text of the Kentucky and Virginia Resolutions of 1798, with Mr. Madison's report; Calhoun's Fort Hill Address, and a collection of Mr. Jefferson's letters commenting upon the role of the States. Some contemporary commentaries are included, among them the now famous 1958 Pasadena Report of the Conference of State Chief Justices.

A copy, or copies of "We the States", at $3.00 per copy, may be ordered from the Commission at the address shown above. Check, payable to Treasurer of Virginia, should accompany each order. Please allow three weeks for delivery.

TOBACCO PARADE MOST COLORFUL

RICHMOND — The Grand Illuminated Parade of the 16th Annual National Tobacco Festival in Richmond Oct. 9 promises to be the most colorful to date, according to J. Harwood Cochran, General Chairman of the week-long festivities.

Units participating in the two-hour spectacle, which covers an eight mile route and will be reviewed at Parker Field, hail from a number of states outside of Virginia. The Ferko Wonder Bread String Band, prize winning mummerys from Philadelphia, will return for the fifteenth year with their elaborate costumes and routines. This year featuring the theme "The Three Musketeers." The Langloz Golden Majorettes of Hagerstown, Maryland will present their flashing baton acts once again in the parade. Little Johnny of Philip Morris, an all-time favorite, will be on hand with his famous "call."

More than twenty lavish floats brilliantly illuminated, a score of majorettes, high school bands, cadet corps, drill teams and cheerleaders, and strutting horse units will be featured. Among these will be the Radford "Highlanders" of Madison College, Va., in bright Setoch kilts.

Thirty-one princesses from five states, Virginia, North Carolina, West Virginia, Kentucky and Pennsylvania, will ride in open convertibles with their V.M.I. cadet escorts. The 1964 "Queen of Tobaccoland," Miss Robin Link of Danville, a junior at the University of North Carolina, will be presented on a dazzling float of the New Car World Series On WAVY-TV Wed.

WAVY-TV will colorcast the 1964 World Series Baseball games. Coverage will preempt regularly scheduled programs. The tentative schedule is as follows:

Games one and two—October 7 and 8; Games three and four—October 10 and 11 and, if necessary: Games five—October 12, Game six—October 14, and Game seven—October 15. Starting times to be announced.

Dealers Association of Richmond. The 1964 Official Hostess of the 16th Annual National Tobacco Festival, to be chosen at the opening Grand Ball Oct. 3, will ride on the float of the Retail Merchants Association. Penny Edwards, who is known as "Miss Tiparillo," will be presented, courtesy of General Cigar Co. To add to the fun, clown units will perform their antics along the parade route.

The internationally famous Tactical Air Force Band of Langley Air Force Base, will be a participant, as well as the 80th Division Band of the U.S. Army Reserve and the Bedford Fireman's Band.

Selected units from the parade will perform in the pregame show the following day at Richmond City Stadium at noon, when the V.M.I. Cadet Corps will take part. The Ferko Wonder Bread String Band will serenade the 1965 "Queen of Tobaccoland" following her coronation at halftime of the Tobacco Bowl football game between the University of Virginia and Virginia Military Institute.

Sadler Firm NEW COMPANY HAS TWO LOCAL PLANTS

VIRGINIA BEACH—James P. Sadler, who retired in 1960 as senior vice president in charge of sales and distribution for Southern Materials, wanted "something to do." So he organized the city's newest, and one of its largest, industries... the Sadler Materials Corp.

The corporation will serve the construction industry with sand, gravel and mixed concrete from two distribution plants in Virginia Beach; one located at London Bridge, the other at Little Creek.

The plant at London Bridge will serve the more populated areas of this fast-growing new city. Sand and gravel from the recently constructed production plant at Turkey Island Farm will be barged to Little Creek, 85 miles away.

If present estimates are met, Sadler Materials will sell over 75,000 yards of ready-mixed concrete the first year it is in operation and use about 100,000 barrels of cement.

Terrell W. Hudgins is second man in the Sadler organization and, like Sadler, is a former Southern Materials official. He is vice president in charge of production.

Other officers and directors include: E. R. Force, vice president and assistant secretary; J. C. Robbins Jr., vice president in charge of the Marine Division; Dudley DuB. Cocke, secretary; Roland D. Lee, treasurer; and James H. Crocker and H. M. Myers Jr.

James Sadler, the corporation's founder, is no Johnny-come-lately to the concrete industry. He started working in the construction field when he was only 13. His father, Olin Sadler, was a bridge contractor for many years and started his son off as a waterboy during summer vacations from the schoolhouse.

He later worked as rodman, timekeeper and concrete mixer operator on various jobs in Virginia, North Carolina and Delaware when he wasn't studying aeronautical engineering at North Carolina State University or serving as a cadet merchant

Dr. Whitehurst Speaker For Mission Here

VIRGINIA BEACH — Dr. G. William Whitehurst, television news analyst and a professor at Old Dominion College, will open a mission study Sunday at Virginia Beach Methodist Church at 8 p.m.

The study, entitled "The Responsibility of the United States and the Church's Mission to the New Nations," will continue for four Sunday nights.

Dr. Whitehurst will discuss the history of the new nations and give some implications of our State Department's foreign policy.

On October 18 film strips on the "United States and the New Nations" will be shown.

A skit on missionaries in the new nations will be presented October 25 and Dr. Roger Visser will moderate a panel discussion on "The Church's Mission to the New Nations" on Nov. 1.

The study is open to the public, the Rev. M. S. Felty, pastor, said.

Buses Travel To Gathering For First Lady

by Douglas Arnold Barnes

VIRGINIA BEACH — On Tuesday, the Virginia Beach Democratic Women's Club and their friends rode in two chartered buses in a motorcade which included the uniformed bands from Cox, Kellam, and Virginia Beach High Schools. Many cars followed, gaily decorated with red, white, and blue bunting, LBJ posters, and filled with snappy sport hats, and a large group of Young Democrats waving LBJ pennants.

A police escort of three guided the motorcade thru all the red lights to the Civic Center where it joined a crowd of over 6,000 waiting to participate in the patriotic rally and to greet Lady Bird and Lynda on their whistle stop in Norfolk.

Lady Bird, vivacious, in an American beauty wool dress, without hat, and wearing a high hairdo, spoke with a decided Southern accent, charming her listeners with a tribute to Norfolk's progress and its proud beginnings. She expressed her love for the South and her understanding of its particular problems. She introduced Lynda.

Lynda was clever in her remarks, and upon noticing the few scattered Goldwater-Miller placards, noted that while she didn't like the signs, she did like the privilege that Americans have of attending any rally and exhibiting their opinions. She wore a black skirt with a black and white checked wool jacket.

Lady Bird's visit further convinced all dedicated Democrats to be for "LBJ, all the way," and all present could not deny the First Lady's sincerity, charm, and admiration for her husband.

Leaving the Civic Center behind a police escort came a long line of honking cars. The Woman's Democratic Club chartered two buses to carry an estimated 80 women to hear the First Lady speak in Norfolk. (Staff photo by Hardy)

Court Hears Beach Case

RICHMOND — Three boroughs of Virginia Beach have 78 per cent of the population and provide three-fourths of the local school funds yet they are allowed only three councilmen on an 11-member council.

Pointing out these facts, Henry E. Howell Jr. suggested to the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals Tuesday that the people of Princess Anne County didn't realize the implications of their vote in favor of consolidation with Virginia Beach.

Howell then asked that the court issue a writ of mandamus compelling city council to re-district the locality.

Harry Frazier III, representing the city, contended that Howell had failed to point out that the representation arrangement was only an "expedient" to be in effect only five years.

Frazier also argued that the challenge against the city's apportionment could not be made in a mandamus action because the councilmen "are powerless to act."

He disputed Howell's theory that the Supreme Court's recently enunciated rule of "one man, one vote" in state apportionment applies also to localities. There is no authority for this, Frazier told the court.

The court recessed for the day before argument was completed. Frazier and Howell presented additional arguments Wednesday.

Mrs. LaGiglia Cancer Head

VIRGINIA BEACH — Mrs. Joseph LaGiglia has been elected president of the Virginia Beach Unit, American Cancer Society.

The election of officers took place at the unit's annual meeting last week in the Virginia Beach Methodist Church social hall. Presentation of awards to service, education and crusade volunteers were also made.

Other officers include: Mrs. R. S. Wahab Jr., vice president; Mrs. Leo Bliley, secretary; and Walton Saunders, treasurer.

The new president presented the outgoing president, Dr. Howard Kahn, with a gift of appreciation.

The following new members were added to the 30-member board of directors: Mrs. John Collins, D. L. Davenport, Mrs. John Field, J. Frank Gallagher, Dr. Alvin Jarrett, Dr. Kahn, Mrs. Sidney Kellam, Rev. J. L. Kibler, W. H. Phillips, Mrs. M. Roberts, Lawrence A. Sencilio, B. M. Stanton, Saunders, Mrs. Wahab, and Dr. J. A. White.

Guest speakers for the meeting was Dr. R. J. Faulconer, president of the Virginia Division of the American Cancer Society. His topic was "Modern Trends in Cancer Control."

LBJ LETTER TO FORMER RESIDENT

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. — Charlie Gay, formerly of Virginia Beach, and now living in Daytona Beach, Florida is the pleased recipient of a personally autographed photo of President Johnson.

It all came about when he wrote LBJ: "Dear Mr. President: I walk ten miles on the Beach every day, go swimming daily in the ocean, summer and winter, feel no older than 50 (is 73) and send you herewith my picture..."

Mr. Johnson promptly sent Charlie his picture in return!

$10-A-Plate DEMOCRATS TO DINE MONDAY

VIRGINIA BEACH — About 1,000 Virginia Beach Democrats are expected to attend a $10-a-plate dinner Monday night at the Alan B. Shepard Civic Center to support, financially, and enthusiastically, the Democratic nominees.

Guest speaker for the dinner meeting will be Congressman James C. Wright Jr. of Fort Worth, Texas.

Also among the list of dignitaries will be Senator Almer Ames, Congressman Thomas N. Downing, Delegates P. B. White and William P. Kellam and Virginia's Democratic National Committeeman Sidney S. Kellam, as well as local officials.

Tickets went on sale last weekend and members of the Virginia Beach Democratic Committee aid Tuesday that they would probably "be sold out by the end of this week."

Persons wishing to obtain tickets may contact the Democratic Headquarters, on 17th Street at 428-0868, Giles Dodd, director of the city's finance department, is in charge of the ticket sales.

Plans for the dinner, which will start at 7 p.m., got underway shortly after the first Democratic rally was held a few weeks ago at Princess Anne Court House.

The dinner is under the supervision of the city's constitutional officers, which make up the local Democratic committee. They include Treasurer V. A. (Jack) Etheridge, Commissioner of Revenue Ivan D. Mapp, Commonwealth's Attorney Robert L. Simpson, City Sergeant John Marr and City Clerk John Fentress.

The guest speaker was obtained through the efforts of Judge Robert Cromwell, Otis Walker and Richard Abasalom.

Working with Dodd on the tickets are Peter Decker, Danny Dillon and Ed Brogan.

Other chairmen include: Garland Layton, time and place; Floyd Kellam Jr., catering; Rick Stoll, literature and stickers; Richard Guy, entertainment; and Mrs. Phillip Russo, table decorations.

The meal will be catered by the Richmond, Va. firm of Texas steak, garden salad, baked potatoes, string beans, chocolate pastries and coffee or tea.

A brass band will provide rousing music prior to the dinner and recorded music will be played by the Civic Center.

BEACH EAGLES HAVE SPECIAL MEET TONIGHT

VIRGINIA BEACH — Virginia Beach Aerie No. 3204 Fraternal Order of Eagles will hold a special meeting tonight at 8 p.m. in the Lodge Home, 301 Pleasure House Road.

A film will be shown on the re-development of the Tidewater area as well as the processes taken in the printing of a newspaper.

The new Aerie, instituted early last Spring, held a grand opening last weekend, at which Paul F. Lease of Maryland, the mid-Atlantic Regional President, was guest speaker.

The Alexandria Virginia Degree Team initiated a class of candidates in his honor on Sunday.

Aeries represented at the two-day celebration, which included a dinner-dance Saturday were Newport News, South Norfolk, Portsmouth, Alexandria, Washington, Richmond, South Richmond, and Petersburg.

It has been announced that the 1965 Grand Aerie Convention will be held in Toronto, Canada, at the Royal York Hotel, August 11 through 14.

Eagle President Leonard Boetcher (right) welcomes Paul Lease, Mid-Atlantic States President, to dedication ceremonies Saturday.

ROSES PARADE IS SHOW THEME

NORFOLK — "Tidewater Roses on Parade" is the theme of the Tidewater Rose Society, for the nineteenth annual Rose Show to be held October 10 and 11, in the Administration Building of the Norfolk Botanical Gardens.

The flower show will not only feature artistic arrangements, and horticultural exhibits but also a special display by Frederic Heule and his staff in the Rotunda of the Administration Building.

Under the direction of George Bonney, Educational Chairman, a panel discussion, and a question and answer period will be held on Sunday, 2:30 p.m. to 3:15 p.m. On the panel will be Mr. Bonney, Charles Turrisi and J. W. Overton.

From 4 p.m. to 5 p.m. flower arrangements for the Home will be demonstrated by Mrs. James R. Cohen, a well-known lecturer in this field, and will be of great interest to home makers and garden clubbers alike.

All eligible rose growers, amateur growers and rosarians are invited to enter their best specimens in the horticulture classes. Entries will be received between 8 a.m. and 11 a.m. on Saturday, and the floor will be cleared after that time.

For information in entering the artistic division, call Mrs. J. E. Eller at 399-2676 or Mrs. R. L. Pruitt, 399-3682.

There are ten classes open to the public and one class for the Tidewater Society Members only.

The show will be open to the public on October 10 from 3 to 6 p.m. and on October 11 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

In the horticulture division the awards will be as follows: Tidewater Rose Society Silver Bowl, for growers of more than fifty plants of all types.

The Roy G. Nichols Silver Bowl, for growers of less than fifty plants of all types.

The George L. Bonney Trophy, the Charles Turnbull Bowl, the Esso Standard Silver Tray, the P. H. Rose Trophy and the Joseph Filipowicz Bowl.

In the Artistic Division the awards will be the Tidewater Rose Society Bowl, for the tri-color award; the Mrs. G. B. Rice Trophy, the Alice Brewer White Green Thumb Award, the Tidewater Rose Society Silver Bowl, and others.

Judging will be in accordance with the rules of the American Rose Society and by accredited judges of that society.

Admission will be .75 for adults; 25 for children over 12; and free for children under 12 accompanied by parent.

MRS. WHITLOCK IS GUEST FOR CLUB'S BIRTHDAY

VIRGINIA BEACH — Mrs. Elizabeth Whitlock will be the guest speaker at the Birthday Luncheon of the Princess Anne Woman's Club on Tuesday 11:30 a.m. at the Pine Tree Inn. She will speak on "Fads and Frauds in Foods, Drugs, and Cosmetics."

Mrs. Whitlock, Richmond housewife and educator, has served as consumer consultant for the Baltimore District of the Food and Drug Administration since 1952. She originally served in the Baltimore headquarters and has continued the work since moving to Richmond.

As a Consultant, Mrs. Whitlock serves as "liaison" between the consumer public and Commissioner George P. Larrick, interpreting FDA's programs to the community, and, in turn, reflecting consumer opinion to this Agency.

Following graduation from the college of William and Mary, Mrs. Whitlock taught in the public schools of Virginia for thirteen years. As a registered parliamentarian, Mrs. Whitlock has also served ten State organizations, teaching the groups on local and state level at scheduled intervals.

Active in civic, service, and church organizations, Mrs. Whitlock has served many of these groups in an executive capacity throughout her busy years. She has been particularly active in the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and served as president of the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs for two years.

In addition, she has taken a leadership role in several hospital auxiliary groups, the YWCA, has served as editor of the Virginia Club Woman, and has served as Dean and Director of the Conference School of Missions.

Though residing in Richmond, Mrs. Whitlock works under the direction of George Sooy, Director of the Baltimore District office. Making various types of public appearances on behalf of FDA, Mrs. Whitlock speaks before audiences interested in Food, Drug, and Cosmetics law enforcement. She creates and mans the FDA exhibits, discusses the Agency's activities on radio and TV, and travels over the district which includes Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and part of North Carolina.

Now, after ten years as Consultant for this area, Mrs. Whitlock has been cited for her outstanding performance, and the variety of the contributions made consistently throughout her years of service.

At a reception of the Geo. P. Larrick Committee Award for 1962-63, Mrs. Whitlock received the award from the Commissioner Larrick with lifelong friend and associate, Mrs.

Dexter Otis Arnold, national president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mr. Larrick said, "Mrs. Whitlock has, through her quiet efficiency and high quality performance, reached all types of consumer groups, carrying the story of FDA programs and policies forward, and, in turn, reflecting the viewpoint of the consumers with whom she meets to our Agency in a way that proved of inestimable assistance to us in our work. Her activities have been an invaluable asset to the Food and Drug Administration."

Elizabeth Whitlock was a former member of the Princess Anne Woman's Club from 1931-34. She served as Education Chairman from 1932-33, and as Program Chairman 1933-34. She is looking forward to being with all old friends.

Club Planning Fashion Show

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Cape Henry Woman's Club met Thursday at the Bay Harbor Club for a combined board and Club Institute meeting.

Following the board meeting, members and guests enjoyed lunch and a Club Institute program, conducted by Mrs. Norman L. Brown, of Hampton, Va.

In July the Club gave $1,000 to the Virginia Beach General Hospital, thus making two-thirds of their pledge fulfilled. Also this summer, three scholarships were awarded to the following students: A three year Nursing Scholarship in Norfolk General to Miss Linda Hensley, a graduate of Princess Anne High School; a third year Teacher Scholarship to Miss Barbara Jeanne Stanford to Radford College; and a first year Teacher Scholarship to Miss Sandra McNicholas, a graduate of Virginia Beach High School, to Madison College. Literary awards were given to Miss-Gail Kaplan of Virginia Beach High School and Miss Dianne Snyder of Princess Anne High School.

The regular October meeting will be held Thursday at the Princess Anne Country Club. The program will be Education and Scholarship, presented by Mrs. Robert J. Steinbiller, Chairman.

On October 21, a fashion show, "Cape Henry's Evolution of Fashion" will be held at the Cavalier Hotel, proceeds for the Virginia Beach General Hospital.

The 'Y' of It

By Jean Newnam

Today's woman in America is the subject of many articles and books. One being currently read is Betty Friedman's "Feminine Mystique". Mrs. Arline, the Virginia Beach Branch Director, recommends it for your contemplation and analysis. The introduction explains that, after observing women from all ranks of life, the author has found a certain undefinable void in women's lives. The first chapter is entitled "The Problem That Has No Name". If you have any of the feelings of many of not having developed yourself or fulfilling your potential, do "Do Something About It!" You do have the opportunity right here in Virginia Beach to learn, to create by joining the fellowship of the YWCA. It offers classes, projects and programs in which you can contribute your particular interest, talent or ability. You benefit from the fellowship as you contribute to it.

One of the next opportunities open for you is to hear Mrs. Mabel Gorenson review "Man On Fire" by Legette Blythe. Bring a carload of friends to the Eastern Shore Chapel 10:30, Wednesday, October 28; and make new friends over coffee and nibbles, served for 25c.

YOUR DRUGGIST SAYS

NO HIT-OR-MISS Rx FOR YOU

The prescription of years ago was largely a hit-or-miss affair. If one drug didn't work, the doctor tried another... then another. Often, none of the drugs did much good. But the day of the hit-or-miss prescription is no more. Now, the doctor knows exactly what each drug can do. The first one he prescribes is usually the right one—the one drug that does a perfect job of curing—that's why...

Simple motifs cut from cotton drapery fabric are applied to a quilted background for a charming still life design complemented by a black oval frame. Singer sewing experts suggest using a narrow satin stitch on your machine to applique motifs to background.

COTTON FABRICS USED IN PICTURE MAKING

You don't have to be a genius with a paintbrush to create handsome pictures, says the National Cotton Council.

An interesting new craft—and one that will satisfy your creative talent—is making pictures with cotton fabrics.

Just select an attractive print, stitch around the design, quilt, mount and frame. The result: a distinctive three-dimensional picture that looks for all the world like an oil painting.

The best place to find fabric suitable for your "painting" is in the home furnishings fabric department. Cotton drapery material lends itself well to this craft since it has an interesting texture and will "give" when stuffed. It also offers the widest range of rich colors and designs. For the traditionalist, there are scenic prints like a Grandma Moses or a Currier and Ives design. And for the modern art enthusiast event Picasso designs are now available in handsome decorator cottons.

In selecting your fabric, look for a material with a design large enough to be cut for quilting without overlapping the repeated motif.

Cut the desired picture from your fabric, lay it face down and cover with a thin layer of quilting cotton and a piece of medium-weight tarlatan or crinoline cut to the same size. Pin or baste together and quilt on the right side with your sewing machine. Stitch around objects in the picture using matchstick thread.

Then turn your picture over and make small slits in the crinoline behind the stitched objects. Use a small pick to stuff additional cotton filler in these areas for a raised or three-dimensional effect. Larger objects in the picture can be stuffed to stand out as much as one-half inch.

Now staple the quilted picture to a piece of corrugated cardboard or building board and slip into a frame. Simple, wide frames are most effective and your fabric pictures will show to best advantage when not under glass.

Two other techniques can be used to create a slightly different art form. One is a collage effect, made by combining designs from several prints into one interesting picture. For example, you might cut out animals, flowers, or a landscape scene from different fabrics. Arrange these cut-outs in an artistic collage on a background fabric which can be either a solid color or a coordinated print. Follow the same quilting and padding steps as outlined above but be sure to use a narrow satin stitch

EDITORIAL SPEAKING

Lyndon Baines Johnson Is Our Choice For President

This newspaper is proud to announce its support for President Lyndon Baines Johnson to be re-elected to the highest office in the land.

We realize full well that by announcing President Johnson as our choice to lead this nation we are joining many distinguished newspapers and magazines throughout the country in this support. However, our choice of President Johnson is based primarily on the fact that he is a very capable and qualified man and has demonstrated his ability to fill the office of President of the United States.

This newspaper does not endorse President Johnson on the theory that his Republican opponent is "too reckless" or is "trigger happy" or any of the other phrases attributed to him. We repeat that our endorsement is made on the basis that President Johnson has proven to be the most qualified man in the land for the job, in our opinion.

A review of what has been accomplished during the less than one year that President Johnson has filled the office of President is conclusive evidence that he is well qualified. The quickening pace with which he assumed the reigns of leadership following the assassination of President Kennedy and the way in which Congress responded to his leadership with a fine list of constructive legislation has indicated his fitness for the office. He has been a very effective President.

We like the way President Johnson has responded to various situations during his administration. He has demonstrated good judgment in all matters and has shown that he understands well the meaning of foreign policy. In less than a year he has grown in stature and has earned and deserves a full term as President.

We hope and believe that the people will elect Lyndon Baines Johnson President on November 3.

A Case For The C. of C.

The Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce has taken great strides in the past two years. It has nearly doubled its membership during that time and has boosted this resort city with such enthusiastic effort that the city has gained wide recognition all over the country as one of the leading resorts on the East Coast.

Yet out of nearly 2,000 licensed businesses within the City of Virginia Beach, only 500 or so have joined the chamber. There are still 1,500 business establishments who have given no support to the one organization that is devoted exclusively to the promotion of Virginia Beach.

What benefits the city, benefits the merchants, the more tourists who visit our seashore during the summer months, the more dollars that tally up on the cash registers. And, of course, the more recognition and promotion the city gets, the more people we will draw.

The chamber is the work of many, many people interested only in the betterment of Virginia Beach. The city's advertising board this year launched an outstanding campaign in northern markets, drawing some 35,000 direct mail inquiries into the chamber offices. The Innkeepers Association cooperated with the chamber in sending representatives to other cities on field trips to promote Virginia Beach. These two projects alone must be credited for greatly contributing to the largest resort season this city has ever had.

But the chamber does not devote its entire efforts to tourism. It considers the entire city and promotes equally its many other assets. The agriculture, for instance, certainly one of the most important aspects of Virginia Beach, is also boosted through a special committee and the highly successful annual 4-H Steer Show and Sale.

Although our local chamber strives to maintain the city's individuality, it recognizes at the same time that what helps Tidewater helps Virginia Beach and works closely with chambers from neighboring cities.

There are many points that should be made about the chamber—its sponsoring or co-sponsoring of such events as the Blue Fish Tournament, annual Music Festival, Easter Boardwalk Parade and the Armed Forces Day Parade, not to mention the motion picture about Virginia Beach now in the making—but its contributions to the city are too vast to cover here.

The main point that should be made, we feel, is that the Chamber of Commerce is here to boost each and every one of us and we strongly believe that more businesses should boost the chamber. A membership in this organization reaps far more benefits than the few dollars dues could ever buy.

One Of These Chamber Directors May Call On You In Membership Drive

C of C Drive Underway

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce opened its annual membership drive last week and hopes by next Tuesday to have at least 150 new members.

Under the direction of Contact Club President Roy Niel, the drive is expected to encompass some 1500 businesses within the city.

Each of the chamber's 30 board members has obtained two workers to assist him in soliciting participation from 15 businesses. The quota for each of the teams is five new members.

Deadline for the drive was originally set for today but because of the inclement weather earlier this week has been extended to 5 p.m. Tuesday.

The drive got off to a rousing start with a coffee last Thursday at the Normandie Cafeteria.

A social event will be held in the near future and admission will be one new member, Chamber Executive Director Roy LaMere said.

UNC Head Will Visit

NORFOLK — The new Chancellor of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Paul Frederick Sharp, will make his first Virginia speaking engagement in Norfolk on October 16.

Dr. Sharp will speak to the University's Tidewater Alumni Association in the Monticello Hotel following a 7 p.m. social hour and dinner. UNC's football team plays the University of Maryland in the Oyster Bowl the following day.

All UNC alumni and guests are invited to attend the meeting. Tickets and further information may be secured by calling James Howard, Alumni Chapter President, at MA 7-6225 or writing him at 612 Virginia National Bank Building, Norfolk.

JAYCEE EVENT ATTRACTS 100

VIRGINIA BEACH — More than 100 youngsters are expected to turn out Saturday for the Virginia Beach Junior Chamber of Commerce's "bunt, pass and kick" contest.

The competition will be held at the Virginia Beach High School athletic field starting at 10 a.m.

Boys between the ages of eight and 13 will be eligible to enter and may register until Friday afternoon at Emrhæ Ford on 17th Street. Only street shoes or sneakers will be allowed during the competition.

Participants will be judged in each age group and prizes will be awarded the top three winners in each group. In the eight through 10 groups prizes will be Washington Redskins warm-up jackets for first place; practice tees for second; and footballs autographed by leading National Football League players for third.

All prizes in the 11 through 13 age groups will be in the form of trophies.

Each entrant will also receive a patch and cap signifying that he has participated in the contest.

First place winners will be eligible for area, region and national competition. The national contest will be held in Washington D.C.

Jaycee chairman for the project is Bill Porter and working with him will be Bob Shelly, Fletcher Bryant, Don Fentress and Bill Gaspar.

Over V.P.I.

BEACH GROUP THRILLED BY U-VA. VICTORY

By Douglas Arnold Barnes

There may be something about an Aqua Veba man, but there is also something about the University of Virginia football team this season.

A chartered bus loaded with carfare and hopeful U. Va. Alumni and their ladies left the Convention Dome at 7 a.m. Saturday for Charlottesville, and returned, wild with joy, at midnight. The occasion was a day of fun and fellowship in visiting their Alma Mater and having witnessed the last minute victory of Virginia over V.P.I. with a score of 20-17.

Peter Holland III, president of the newly-formed Virginia Beach chapter, and his committee made arrangements for a box lunch at Alumni Hall and a hot dinner on the way home at a Richmond Cafeteria.

A sunny Fall day, amid rainy ones, found the Scott Stadium filled with 25,000 spectators and cars from many different states. The game was rated a toss-up, despite Virginia's 0-2 record, and a sound kicking of both teams by underrated Wake Forest.

Schweickert of V.P.I., who recently suffered a sprained ankle, was put in at the beginning of the game; but the Cavaliers scored 2 touchdowns and completely dominated the scene in the first two periods, only to surrender 17 points with two fumbles and an intercepted pass in the 3rd quarter, putting V.P.I. ahead.

Then came the thrilling final moment of the game when Larry Molinari made his winning touchdown pass and Virginia won 20-17.

The team and the spectators' spirit soared. Coach Bill Ellis said that "no thrill was any bigger" and the Virginia Beach Alumni were exuberant and "wahood" all the way home.

P.A., Hawks Face Tests This Week

VIRGINIA BEACH — Two of this city's unbeaten high school football teams—Princess Anne and Virginia Beach—face formidable opponents this week. Princess Anne hosts Hampton at Cox Stadium and Virginia Beach will play York on the latter's home field.

Both the Cavaliers and the Seahawks are leaders in the Eastern District race. Unfortunately the two unbeaten eleven are not scheduled to meet this season and Virginia Beach cannot win the district title because they play too few conference games.

Virginia Beach leads the district in total offense and Princess Anne leads in total defense. Each team has played four games.

The Seahawks are the surprise of the Eastern District race. The smaller Hawks only this year stepped into the higher classification and the total number of boys on the squad is 22. Only about 15 see action each week. They have been most impressive.

Virginia Beach also boasts the two leading scorers in the Eastern District in Russell Chaplin, who leads with Chris Hanson just one point behind.

The successful Coach Carlton Bowyer of the Hawks says "I wouldn't trade this bunch of boys for any in the whole district. They give 100 per cent of themselves at all times and they stay in top condition."

The two other city high schools—Cox and Kellam—face each other in a Friday night game at Kellam.

Huddy In New Job

NORFOLK — Donald C. Huddy of 508 W. Plantation Road Virginia Beach, has been appointed as the Information Officer for the Naval Supply Center at the Norfolk Naval Station.

He was recently transferred from the U.S. Army Transportation Center and Fort Eustis where he has been the Command Information Officer for the past year. Prior to that time he had served two tours of duty as the Information Officer at Fort Story.

He has been an information specialist for the past 15 years.

Crawford New Amphib CO

LITTLE CREEK — Rear Admiral Earl R. Crawford, USN, will assume command today of the Atlantic Fleet Amphibious Training Command, during a ceremony at the Naval Amphibious Base.

Rear Admiral Crawford replaces Brigadier General John C. Miller Jr., USMC, who had served in this capacity since May 11, 1964. General Miller will continue to perform his military duties as commanding general of the Landing Force Training Unit, Atlantic.

Among the distinguished guests present at the change of command ceremony will be Mayor Frank A. Dusch of Virginia Beach; Mayor Howard R. McPherson of Chesapeake; and Mayor R. Irvine Smith of Portsmouth. Rear Admiral W. K. Romoser, USN (Retired) who served as commander of the Amphibious Training Command from 1958 to 1960, also was present at the ceremony.

Local Red Cross Aids Korea Plan

VIRGINIA BEACH — The local chapter of the American Red Cross is participating in the recruiting program to provide Automobile Workers for Korea.

Single girls with a yen for travel may find the Red Cross offers an opportunity to bring a "touch of home" to the troops in isolated parts of Korea. To qualify, applicants must be U.S. citizens, ages 21 to 25, have college degree, some experience in working with people, and have an interest in social recreation, music, art, or hobbies.

The girls travel from one military unit to another in canteens, clubs, and present skills, talent shows, quizzes, and discussion panels on current subjects.

NEWS REPORT FROM THE UNIVERSITY

Population, Economic Research

In addition to Virginia population trends, a major interest of the Bureau of Population and Economic Research at the University of Virginia is economic changes in the state.

An information source for government, business, and industry about population, economic, and sociological trends in Virginia, the bureau is a public service agency of the University.

Founded in 1944 as a merger of two earlier state research programs, the Virginia State Planning Board's Population Study and the University's Bureau of Industrial Research, the bureau is financed primarily through the University budget.

Analysis of income patterns which are related to and influenced by population changes is emphasized.

The bureau prepares estimates of personal income for Virginia cities and counties to assess the areas of the state in which income is expanding, remaining stationary, or contracting.

"Change in the relative importance of income sources can serve as a basis for assessing the prospects of future growth or decline," explains bureau director, Dr. Lorin A. Thompson.

"Increases or decreases in relative per capita income reflect the vitality, stability, or decline in various parts of the state," says Dr. Thompson. "Continuous observation of the economic changes of an area indicates the probability of sound growth and/or development."

In addition to dispensing data, the bureau also takes on special research projects for agencies such as legislative committees.

An example of this is the bureau's role as active research staff and advisor to the Commission on State and Local Revenues and Expenditures in drafting its 1963 report.

Often the bureau makes economic forecasts in conjunction with its research for such agencies, as in the forecast of the state's economy through 1970 which accompanies the revenues and expenditures commission's report.

The bureau generally is reimbursed by agencies requiring special research.

Past studies by the bureau have dealt with the impact of Virginia ports on the state economy, prospective Virginia college enrollments, and Virginia unemployment compensation programs.

Currently the bureau is engaged in a study of the impact of water-borne commerce on Virginia's economy.

REV. MOORE GUEST SPEAKER

LONDON BRIDGE — Rev. Paul Moore, pastor of Campostella Heights Baptist Church, will be the guest speaker for revival services at London Bridge Baptist Church, Oct. 11-16, 18, beginning at 7:30 each evening.

Rev. Moore is a native of Pennsylvania. He has received degrees from Texas Christian University and Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth, Texas. He has pastored Baptist Churches in Virginia since 1948.

Mr. Harold Smithson, the Educational Director of the church is organizing the pack the pews effort. A pew captain has been designated for each pew and the church organizations are working to fill the pews each night of the revival.

The members of the congregation have already begun preparation for the revival. The Women's Missionary Union has sponsored a week of visitation and prayer for the revival. Each night during the week preceding the revival, prayer services will be held in the homes.

Mr. Luttrell Sawyer, director of the church choir, is to be in charge of the music for the revival.

A nursery will be provided during the revival services. London Bridge Baptist Church is one of the oldest churches in the city of Virginia Beach, having been organized in 1784.

A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend the services.

Plaza Civic League Seeks Play Areas

PLAZA — The Princess Anne Civic League will try to reach a satisfactory solution to the Plaza's lack of recreational facilities when they meet with John Aragona and city officials this week. It was Aragona who built the development.

"If this meeting is fruitless," league president Joseph Cyr said, "we will request an immediate meeting with the Virginia Beach Recreation Commission and plead our case there."

"We want an immediate hearing," Cyr added, "so that we don't lose our steam."

"There are at least 2,300 homes occupied in Princess Anne Plaza; recreational facilities which currently exist in the Plaza are those belonging to the Bow Creek Country Club . . . This committee does not consider these facilities described herein as public facilities in the sense that public parks are considered public facilities."

Celenza Trial Set Dec. 3

VIRGINIA BEACH — Accused murderer Dale John Celenza, 21, will be tried December 3 in Circuit Court for the strangulation murder of divorcee Mrs. Phyllis Beatrice Minnich, 42, in an oceanfront motel.

Celenza, a sailor, was identified and arrested shortly after the July 18 murder. Photos taken of him by Mrs. Minnich in her motel room helped lead police to Celenza.

Refusing to post $10,000 bond, Celenza has remained in the Virginia Beach jail since the time of arrest.

BEACH MAN IS TOP MARKSMAN

Competing for top honors will be Reservists and active Army personnel from Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Delaware, and the District of Columbia. The winners will represent the Corps in the Second U.S. Army Commander's matches next April, and in the August 1965 National Matches at Camp Perry, Ohio, where the nation's best military and civilian marksmen test their skills.

The October tournament, designed to increase the weapons proficiency of the participating soldiers, got underway Sunday with three days of marksmanship theory, range instruction, and firing practice. This course is aimed at improving the skills of 90 participants, called "New Shooters", who will be competing in a Corps-level match for the first time. Highlight of the six-day program will be eight rifle and thirteen pistol matches today and Friday. Award ceremonies on Saturday morning will complete the tournament.

This year for the first time the .30 caliber M-14 will be the only authorized rifle in use. In recent years both the new M-14 and the World-War-II-era M-1 rifle have figured in the tournament. The pistol contests will feature both .45 caliber and .22 caliber arms.

BEETLE QUARANTINE NECESSARY STEP

VIRGINIA BEACH — Why the white-fringed beetle quarantine? Because, says the U.S. Agricultural Research Service, the larvae feed on 240 species of plants and the adults on 170 species. The quarantine in Virginia Beach and Norfolk is designed to stop the spread of these pests into non-infected areas.

The principal damage is caused by larvae feeding on the roots and underground stems of plants. White-fringed beetles don't usually cause uniform damage over large continuous areas. Crop injury may range from just a trace in one part of a field to destruction of a crop in a nearby field.

On root crops, such as potatoes, carrots, and turnips, the larvae burrow directly into the roots, or tubers, and destroy the market value of the crop.

Origin and Spread
White-fringed beetles are native to Argentina, Brazil, Chile, and Uruguay. Infestations have but may crawl up to one-fourth mile during their lifetime.

Spreading into new areas is done primarily in commerce. The adults may attach themselves to seed cotton, hay, agricultural implements, or even to man.

Larvae may spread by the movement of soil, sod, nursery stock, and root crops, such as potatoes.

Food
Larvae have been observed feeding on 240 species of plants. The most common feed is alfalfa, beans, carelessly, carrot, chrysanthemum, chufa, clover, cocklebur, corn, cotton, cowpea, curled dock, Irish potato, lupine, mustard, oats, peanuts, peas, ragweed, soybean, strawberry, sweet potato, tobacco, and velvetbean.

Woody plants such as peach, pecan, tung, and willow roots been reported, however, in New South Wales, Australia, and the Union of South Africa. They were first found in the United States in 1936 near Svea, Oklahoma County, Florida.

These pests have now established themselves in Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, New Jersey, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, and Virginia.

These beetles can't move any great distance on their own. The larvae are legless, and move only a few feet in the soil while they are feeding. The adults can't fly, are favorites of these larvae.

Adults feed on more than 170 plants, including field, garden, and truck crops, weeds, ornamental shrubs, flowers, wild bushes, vines, and trees.

Development
The white-fringed beetle passes through the following stages: egg, larva, pupa, and adult. Usually only one generation a year is produced, and it spends all except three months in the soil.

The adults are dark gray, about 7/16 inch long, and have a white fringe, or band, along the outer edges of the body. All adults are females and capable of laying fertile eggs.

The number of eggs depends on the adults feed. Feeding on grass, it lays an average of four eggs. One beetle fed on peanut foliage and laid 3,258 eggs!

Control
There are two methods of control—cultural and insecticidal.

The general principles of cultural control is the rotation of crops favored by the beetle with those unfavorable to it. Pasture grass and corn may thus be substituted for peanuts and soybeans.

BRITISH ELECTIONS ON 'SUNDAY'

As part of NBC News coverage of the British elections, a special program, "British Election—The British Campaign," will be telecast Sunday, Oct. 11 (NBC-TV, 5-5:30 p.m. EDT).

The half-hour special will show the principal participants, including Sir Alex. Douglas-Home and Harold Wilson, in phases of their campaign activity. Also included will be reports by NBC News' London correspondents, Joseph C. Harach and Kenneth Bernstein, analyzing the progress of the campaign and assessing the prospects of each party for victory.

As previously announced, David Brinkley will be in London during the week of Sept. 28 to cover pre-election events and Chet Huntley will follow during election week to climax his coverage by reporting the election returns on the night of Oct. 15, via Relay satellite from London.

Donald Meany, Director, News Programs, NBC News, is in charge of the British election coverage.

BASKIN IN THE SUN

By GORDON BASKIN

I have heard it said that not a living soul in America can get interested in a political struggle until the Series is over, and I believe it. I would like to add a bit to the legend by saying that after the fights for the pennant in both leagues that I suspect people will not be able to get interested in the election.

Who can get interested in the mere selection of a President when everyone's energy was used up rooting home a winner in both leagues?

I have always been a Yankee lover from way back, in spite of the fact that my wife doesn't speak to me during the long baseball season. She happens to love those White Sox—even if they were stupid enough to sell Nellie Fox. This year, though, I was sort of hoping that the Orioles would slither home with the bunting tied around their wounds. I realize that Hank Bauer played for the Yankees at one time, and maybe that was my sub-conscious reason.

It didn't happen. The Orioles dropped dead in the stretch, and poor Mantle taped himself together in time to bomb the Yanks home again. There is something nice about seeing an old pro acquit himself with distinction, even if he does draw his check from CBS.

I guess the saddest man in the country is the manager of the Phillies. I consider it a test of his strength of character that he didn't leave a note and jump head first off the top of the grandstand in Philadelphia. This poor soul will be second-guessed by every member of the hot stove league from now until the end of time. I don't suppose that it will help him to know that all his critics couldn't have done a bit better.

There is a crumb to be gleaned from the Yankees backing into the money. Yogi was a successful freshman manager. He is a very colorful fellow, and it couldn't have happened to a nicer guy, except Hank Bauer, that is!

I see a happy future ...

Until 1884 an old stone bridge crossed Back Creek at Granby Street in downtown Norfolk . . .

then H. D. Oliver had served Tidewater for nearly 20 years.

In that year Back Creek and the surrounding marshes were filled in and reclaimed for the growing downtown area. The old stone bridge was no longer needed. H. D. Oliver was serving Tidewater in those years with the community's most respected and dignified funeral and burial services.

Today at high tide parts of the old downtown area still flood a little and remind Norfolk of its watery beginnings. H. D. Oliver continues to be the community's most respected name in its field. A capable staff backed by 100 years of experience and the most modern facilities enable H. D. Oliver to handle every type of service with complete dignity and care. A second new home serves the needs of Virginia Beach. Call on H. D. Oliver to serve you with the best in these vital services.

View Of Virginia Beach

By
Doris Padrick

When was the last time you went roller skating? Be assured that no matter how many whirls this tired old earth has made around the sun, if you ever did roller skate and enjoyed it, you still can!

Some weekend soon as you pass by the Civic Center dome and see the red flag flying, happily announcing "Roller Skating Today," stop—park your car—and stand in line with the rest of the noisy youngsters. When you come to the skate window, ask for the correct shoe size. You don't want your feet to be cramped or slipping around while you are trying to control the wheels.

The thunderous roar of the spinning skates, childish screams, piercing whistles, and unrecognizable music will hit your ears as you go through the turnstile. But don't get nervous. Scramble over the many bent-over figures and find yourself a seat. Bend over, take off your shoes and not your socks. Now slide your feet into the shoe skate and start lacing. Tie them firmly but not too tight. As you life your feet, they will feel heavy and tricky. And you may wonder about the blob of rubber at the toe of the skate. You will realize its value when you subconsciously drag one foot behind to slow down—it's a brake!

No doubt you will hug the wall and the rail for the first few faltering pushes, but then, from some deep memory track, your muscles will respond and your balance goes into gear, and you are off! Round and round you go, faster and faster, rhythmically bending and swaying. You may even hear yourself singing and yelling with the rest of the "kids"—what fun!

Saturday afternoons seem to be taken over by the children and it is amazing how small some of them are but how well they skate. They seem to have a natural ability to stay on their feet and to weave in and out of the swirling mass. There are many tumbles taken, but the watchful eye of the master of ceremonies keeps you informed and blows a warning to slow down by a shrill whistle blast.

If the fallen one is in the middle of the pack, he seems to have enough sense to squat with arms and hands protecting the head, and as soon as the skaters slow up and thin out around him, he scuttles on hands and knees to the safety of the wall or rail. Sometimes they get right up with hardly losing a step.

Since you will probably be one of the few "big people" on the rink, be prepared to be a steady "holder-upper". Many of the small ones are apt to grab you as they get near and their skates take a different direction from what they intended.

You will be pleased to find out there is a flexible program of skating events. Sometimes only girls skate, then only boys, then "everybody skate". Also to break the monotony, you may be instructed to change direction. It is harder to go clockwise than counter-clockwise, but it is a nice change of pace.

The center area of the rink is reserved for the skaters who like to practice figure skating and the outer area is for the straight go-ahead skaters.

It costs only 85c for skate rental and admission to the rink. And only 50c for children under 12. If you can't get another adventurous soul to accompany you, take a child (yours or someone else's). You know, you can do all kinds of foolish-feeling activities under the guise of chaperoning the kids!

PERSON CAN LEARN THROUGH CD

VIRGINIA BEACH — "Everybody in the city ought to be a Civil Defense Volunteer," stated Deputy Director Ivan Mapp. "Because by volunteering they learn self-protection, home medical procedures, and many other helpful things."

City's Active Civil Defense Network Moving Ahead

GETTING AGENCIES INTO ACTION IS BIG JOB

VIRGINIA BEACH — Coordinating all the heads of the various agencies that make up the Civil Defense network across the City is handled by Graham White. All agencies have a specific mission to accomplish and it is important that in their zeal to help no services overlap, and, even more importantly, that none are overlooked.

While all rules and regulations for relief are outlined so that the agencies can swing into action immediately, oftentimes the emergency calls for trained know-how on the part of the workers and they must "play it by ear," as was the case during the Ash Wednesday storm.

The Federal government provides the Civil Defense coordinator with a list of specified shelters that should be used, if necessary, and they will stock the shelter with food, water, and medical supplies. However, the contribution from the Federal government will take care of only about 10 per cent of the City's population; therefore, it is up to the community itself to provide for itself.

It is important that all heads of the various agencies be employees of the City so that no delay and no unnecessary problems could arise.

All the Civil Defense agencies know what to do, where to go, and how to help. It is the people themselves who need to take more interest in their own survival who are disorganized and disinterested, commented Mr. Graham.

FIRE AND RESCUE UNITS ALWAYS READY

VIRGINIA BEACH — By their very nature, the Fire and Rescue Units are always prepared to cope with any Civil Defense emergency, and all types of disaster, big or small, personal or city-wide.

The Virginia Beach Fire Department and the Volunteer Fire and Rescue Units have organized systematically and all areas kept alert 24 hours a day. An officer and an assistant are always on call.

The City has been divided into four districts in order to be kept at top efficiency and readiness. Districts have been mapped out according to accessibility to the units, and not necessarily by the borough system.

District one, which covers most of Bayside and parts of Lynnhaven, Princess Anne and Virginia Beach, is headed by G. M. Atwater. F. E. Quist is in charge of District two, which is part of Bayside and most of Lynnhaven. Parts of Kempville, Princess Anne, and Bayside comprise the Division three headed by James Roach. And District Four, with Elton Swartzentruber in charge, covers Blackwater, Pungo, and the rest of Kempville.

CD MEDICAL PLANS LACKING

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Virginia Beach Medical Society had a meeting Tuesday night to discuss Civil Defense plans. "There are now about 50 members in the society from less than 20 only two to three years ago," said Treasurer Dr. William Stallings.

When asked about CD plans last week, Dr. Stallings replied, "No body knows what to do, frankly. There have been no assignments—only talk."

Under the overall city CD plan, the society would be expected to take charge of medical and surgical triage at the scene of disaster, and to staff the hospitals.

Regional Headquarters Are Here

VIRGINIA BEACH — Civil Defense headquarters for the Hampton Roads Region is located in the Mayflower Building at Virginia Beach. The state is divided into five regional offices. The Tidewater region is made up of 22 cities and counties.

Regional Deputy Coordinator Francis J. Geiger said his function is to coordinate emergency planning activities in these 22 political jurisdictions to build up their operational capabilities to handle all emergencies.

"The Virginia Beach Civil Defense organization was prepared to meet all emergencies during the recent hurricane threat," said Geiger.

"Civil Defense is government operating under emergency conditions. In Virginia, this means that the State Office of Civil Defense assists state agencies of government in planning, and coordinates operations under emergency conditions."

Geiger urges all adults to take both the Adult Education and the Medical Self-Help courses. Information on these important courses may be had from the local Civil Defense Office, 426-6111.

RADIO HAMS TEST PLANS

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Virginia Beach Amateur Radio Emergency Corps conducted a simulated Civil Defense emergency test Sunday. It was part of a nationwide drill to test the speed and reliability of communication with other parts of the city, state, and nation under simulated emergency conditions.

The local group has volunteered its time and radio stations to assure that the city will never be without communications as a result of failure of telephone and telegraph lines. The operators are a part of the nationwide Amateur Radio Public Service Corps.

This week's test emphasized cooperation with Red Cross chapters and Civil Defense agencies throughout the nation. These agencies reported to their area and national offices through amateur radio's National Traffic System and other nationwide facilities.

Participating were Virginia Beach residents: Vito Traino Jr., Steve Finkle, Don R. Greenwalt, Milton T. Holland, William M. Holland, Clyde Bell, Jack Drew, T. R. J. Harris, William R. Jennings, Curtis H. Lumsden, Wallace A. Burkett, John Lee Wilson, Willy Harrell, and Fred W. Kreps.

The club's CD building is located in London Bridge. Inside are several high power stations plus high and low power frequency sets. Outside is a special antenna that can withstand high wind. All this plus their own generators and mobile units insure communications under most any conditions.

If necessary, the club could even take over police and fire communications.

The organization is now in the process of getting a school bus to be converted to a mobile communication center.

VIRGINIA BEACH SUN-NEWS

"SERVING THE WORLD'S LARGEST RESORT CITY"

VIRGINIA BEACH, VIRGINIA, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1964

SECTION B

In times of crises, such as the Ash Wednesday storm, the mayor is one of the first Civil Defense volunteers to go to work.

MAYOR LAUDS CIVIL DEFENSE

VIRGINIA BEACH — Mayor Frank A. Dusch said "Our Civil Defense people are being trained to handle many types of natural and man-made disasters. We have some short comings, but we're doing everything to rectify these. The overall picture is very good."

Dusch had special praise for the auxiliary police. He spoke of their excellent training and high interest. "I'm very pleased with how we're set up."

The mayor is administrative head of Civil Defense in Virginia Beach. "If I'm in the area when a disaster strikes, I'm on the scene. If I'm not, then Ivan Mapp takes over. All would be under my supervision."

Dusch said outside help in emergencies might be expected from the area military and Red Cross.

MASS FEEDING IS IMPORTANT

VIRGINIA BEACH — Mrs. Elizabeth D. Deal, Home Demonstration Agent, serves the Civil Defense program under the direction of Mr. Mapp. Her office endeavors to protect the family group with training before an emergency. And is set up to cope with any disastrous event by providing emergency food supplies and sanitary procedures to keep the families together and well cared for.

Government publications are available to all Woman's Clubs, Home Demonstration Clubs, Ladies Auxiliaries, and the like. The Home Demonstration agency will train any group, and will send material to anyone requesting information.

School lunch programs, auxiliary groups, volunteer fire departments will all be mobilized to work together keeping the population housed, fed, and clothed. Water supplies would be checked for contamination.

Whether it be temporary emergency or stark survival, the Home Demonstration office contributes much to the Civil Defense effort.

CD POLICE ACTIVE UNIT

VIRGINIA BEACH — The auxiliary police is what most people think of when Civil Defense is mentioned. These volunteer workers are often seen in action by the public. They help out at local football games, direct traffic, assist in parades, perform rescue and patrol work at disaster scenes, and keep regular Virginia Beach police company in squad cars.

These men receive the same training and often face the same dangers as the regular police—but receive no compensation other than the satisfaction of helping their community.

CD Administrative Officer Donald T. Fantone is head of the auxiliary police.

"Our standards are set by the city police department and all auxiliary police must live up to these standards," said Fantone. "Each man must be over 21, and be cleared by the local and state authorities and the FBI."

"We'd like 100 men. At present we have 80. These are divided into nine squads throughout the city. Prior to September of 1963, we were organizing. Now we are active in police work."

"Our monthly meetings have a planned program of 50 percent CD instruction and 50 percent police work. Attendance is about 90 percent at all meetings. To be a volunteer and not get compensation, they have to be interested.

"When this year is completed, we expect to have about 5000 hours of volunteer work in addition to the training classes the men attend."

WEEK REMINDS OF GREAT FIRE

While the nation's newspaper headlines screamed the news of the great Chicago fire of October 8, 1871, a greater loss of life by fire in and near tiny Peshigo, Wis., went virtually unnoticed the same day.

Whipped by high winds, the flames raced through the dry forests and destroyed 17 towns, including Peshigo. Nearly 1,200 people were killed and two billion trees were destroyed. More persons died in the Wisconsin tragedy than in any other fire in American history.

Despite the holocaust in Wisconsin, Chicago's fire got all the publicity. Everyone has heard the story of Mrs. O'Leary's cow. But few remember Peshigo.

The Chicago fire destroyed more than 17,000 buildings and killed 250 people. It did damage estimated at $168,000,000—the greatest property loss in U.S. history up to that time.

To commemorate the Chicago fire the week of October 8th is set aside as Fire Prevention Week. Stories are written about fire safety and fire departments work to enlist public support for the never ending battle against fire.

The true or untrue story of the cow that kicked over the lantern has been retold for almost a century. But the story of the Peshigo fire remains a dry statistic in the record books, because so few remember Peshigo.

But, points out J. C. Mack, Mid-Atlantic Regional Manager of the Allstate Insurance Companies, regardless of which city gets the ultimate dubious recognition, Fire Prevention Week is a worthwhile reminder to all to eliminate the causes of fire.

Fire snuffs out 11,000 American lives each year, over-shadowing by far the combined toll of the Chicago and Peshigo fires.

Order Out Of Chaos Is CD Aim

VIRGINIA BEACH — While most residents are flopped in front of the TV or out enjoying themselves, a small group of dedicated volunteers are putting in long hours of class room study and work to safe-guard their unconcerned neighbors if and when the need arises. These unselfish people are our local Civil Defense Workers.

"Any man-made or natural disaster would cause the Civil Defense program to go into full swing," Deputy Director Ivan Mapp told Sun-News.

"Civil Defense has as its purpose to bring order out of chaos and confusion. The CD people have been trained in their respective functions to act when needed."

In the last hurricane threat, Civil Defense people were alerted and prepared to put on a strong program. Of course, the foundation of the whole program is based on city employees and the fire departments. These would be the first to be called during an emergency.

"All heads of the various Civil Defense services are people already on the city payroll. Therefore the mayor and council can direct them as needed."

Mapp was appointed Civil Defense director for Princess Anne County in 1948. When the county and city merged, he became deputy CD director.

"The mayor of a city is automatically the CD director, but a county may appoint anyone," Mapp said.

"We're trying to organize a good sound Civil Defense program here. Just completed is an auxiliary police training course. People are a little slow to volunteer though."

The Virginia Beach Civil Defense Program includes the auxiliary police, firemen, medical workers, home demonstration clubs and anything people would be needed for during an emergency.

PUBLIC HEALTH CIVIL DEFENSE PROGRAM SET

VIRGINIA BEACH — Preventing an epidemic is the main function of the Public Health Department, said Assistant Director Dr. Mages May. "We've been interested in seeing that a Civil Defense and disaster program be set up. There's a definite procedure now for hurricanes."

"The Red Cross is supposed to take care of all medical, food, and clothing supplies. We're mainly anxious to see that there is safe water, sewage disposal, trash collection—anything that might effect the health of people."

"Once the initial shock of a disaster is over, there comes the problems of broken sewage lines. We'd issue warnings as to what shots to get. Remind people to boil their water, etc. Food and water supplies would have to be checked to see if they're safe."

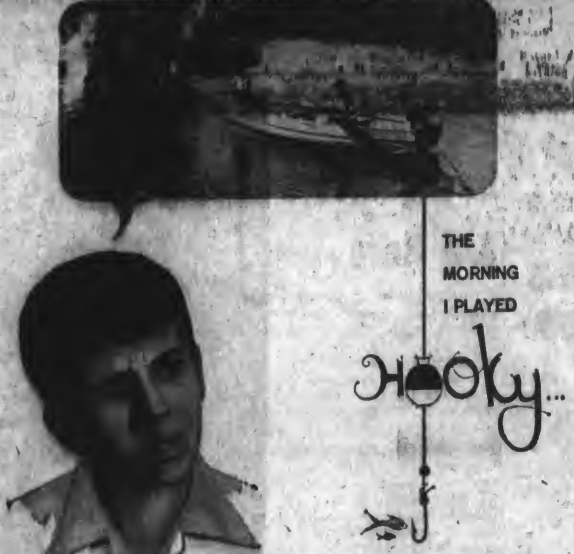

"Actual care of patients belongs to the medical profession. We're trying to divide the city into areas where certain doctors would work with certain rescue squads. And then we'd have other doctors waiting at the hospitals."

"The state has 200 bed hospitals stored throughout the state. Our closest is probably Suffolk. These hospitals can be set up anywhere they're needed. All equipment necessary for an emergency hospital is there. A good description would be INSTANT HOSPITALS."

THE CHURCH FOR ALL

The Church is the greatest factor in the building of character and good citizenship. It is a source of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

The Mixing Bowl

It's Fun To Cook
By LUCILE CLARK
SUN-NEWS FOOD EDITOR

Two years ago I bought "Favorite Recipes of American Home Economics Teachers", an interesting recipe book on meats and including seafood and poultry recipes.

Just a few weeks ago I was the recipient of another recipe book by these fine people, "Salads".

You hear so often the question, "May I have your recipe?" Now these food experts have answered the question for you by compiling their favorite recipes in an attractive bound collection of recipes. You can contact your home economics department of most of our high schools if you would like to buy one.

Here are some of the recipes from both the meat edition and the salad edition. I'm sure you'll find them interesting and you'll want to try them.

Casserole Chicken
2 to 2½ lb. chicken (fryer)
1 cup flour seasoned with salt and pepper
½ cup French Salad Dressing
1 cup hot water
½ cup cooking oil

Prepare chicken for frying. Coat with seasoned flour, brown quickly in the hot oil in skillet. When well browned place chicken skin side up in casserole. Pour French dressing slowly over each piece of chicken. Add water; cover casserole and bake at 325°F. for 1 hour.

This comes from Juanita Patton, Achille Public School, Achille, Oklahoma.

Chicken - Ham Supreme
3 whole chicken breasts
8 slices home baked ham
2 packages frozen broccoli
3 tablespoons butter
1½ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
½ cup chicken broth
½ cup either wine or sharp cheese

Cook chicken in small amount of salted water until tender. Remove skin and bone, use in long thick pieces. Cook broccoli in salted water and drain. Make white sauce, add the ½ cup chicken broth and either the wine or cheese (which ever you have chosen). Cover each serving of broccoli with slice of ham, place pieces of chicken on top, cover with sauce, garnish with browned almonds.

This comes from Armitage Coburn, Calhoun High School, West Homestead, Pennsylvania.

Honeydew Surprise Salad
1 pkg. lime gelatin
1 cup boiling water
1 cup pineapple chunks (drained)
1 cup Mandarin oranges
1 medium honeydew melon cottage cheese salad greens
French dressing

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water, cool until partially set. Add pineapple chunks and oranges. Peel whole melon. Cut a slice from one end; remove seeds. Fill with the fruit gelatin. Wrap in cellophane; refrigerate until gelatin is firm. Slice; place on bed of greens. Spoon cottage cheese on top, serve with French dressing.

This comes from Rhoda M. Grushkin, Union High School, Union, New Jersey.

Sour Cream Potato Salad
6 cups cooked potatoes chopped or minced onion to your taste
¼ teaspoon celery seed
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
4 hard-cooked eggs
½ cups sour cream
½ cup mayonnaise
¼ cup vinegar
1 teaspoon mustard
¼-¾ cup pared and diced cucumber

Combine cooked and cooled potatoes, onions, celery seed, salt and pepper. Toss lightly. Chop egg whites and add to potato mixture. Chill. Mash egg yolks; add sour cream, mayonnaise, vinegar and mustard. Mix well. Pour dressing over potatoes, toss lightly. Let stand 20 - 30 minutes. Just before serving add cucumber.

This recipe comes from Peggy W. Jones, Lakeside High School, Lake Village, Arkansas.

SEVEN NAMED

VIRGINIA BEACH—Seven candidates for N.R.O.T.C. training have been named from the 1964 graduates of Princess Anne High School.

They are Terry Schmidt, Oregon State; Peter Atherton, University of Virginia; Randy Burwell, University of Texas; Charles Caldwell, University of South Carolina; Walter Lee Danna, University of North Carolina; John Richard Fernstrom, University of North Carolina; and Richard Conway, University of Virginia.

When one sheet has two different looks

it can only be Pequot's new Tri-Tone Turnabout sheet. In stripes or dots, there's a different solid color hem at each end. Pamper your mood in any of the wonderful combinations of blues, yellows, pinks and lilacs. All Tri-Tones mix and match with solid color sheets or all over Tri-Tone print bottom fitted sheets. And, not only will they give twice the look, but they will last longer too, because the wear is more evenly distributed.

Sinclair's New 3-Year Heating Service Plan now offers you a New Oil Burner Free, if you need it

We like to make warm friends... and keep them warm. Then, the good word gets around, and we make new friends. That's why we make this unusual offer.

Under Sinclair's new 3-year Heating Service Plan, you get: year-round burner service, inspection, adjustment and cleaning when needed, plus replacement of worn or defective parts, even a big 275-gallon above-ground tank.

In addition, if your present oil burner becomes defective and beyond repair during the three-year period, you'll get, absolutely free, a new, modern, high-efficiency, residential-type burner (one of the finest gun-type burners available). You pay only for installation.

You'll like new Sinclair Heating Oil, too. It's the clear, clean oil with the clean, hot flame to give you more heating comfort per dollar.

For peace-of-mind and trouble-free heat this winter and every winter, take advantage of Sinclair's generous offer now.

Sea Cadet Still Has Openings

NORFOLK — The Navy League Sea Cadet Squadron ("The Top Hatters") has a few more openings in their training program. The "Top Hatters", commissioned in June 1964, is sponsored by the Hampton Roads Council of the Navy League of the United States. The Navy League is the civilian arm of the Navy which assists the Navy in promoting educational programs.

Retired Naval officers, Naval Reserve officers, and enlisted men, who are commissioned as Navy League Sea Cadet Officers, are the teachers who train the Sea Cadets in this program which parallels the training given to Naval Air Reserve recruits. Weekly training is conducted at the Naval Air Reserve Training Unit's (NARTU) facilities aboard the Naval Air Station, Norfolk. No service obligation is incurred by enrollment in this program.

Young men between 14 and 17 years of age who would like to receive training should contact Commander B. F. Black, Service Information Officer, NARTU, Naval Air Station, Norfolk. Phone 444-2414.

It's no secret...

HISTORY-MAKING SPORTS COVERAGE SAT. ON NBC

The most widespread live sports coverage in the history of television—with origins in two hemispheres—will be seen on NBC-TV Saturday, Oct. 10, in a schedule which will take viewers from the opening Tokyo ceremonies of the Games of the XVIII Olympiad to the U. S. ballpark where the day's World Series game will be played, and then to Dallas for the Texas-Oklahoma football game.

In addition, through NBC International, sports viewers in Mexico will be able to see the Olympic ceremonies live, as NBC's affiliated station WOAI-TV in San Antonio, Tex., routes the first broadcast received via satellite to all Mexico through Telesistema in Mexico City.

The fact that each of the three major sports events will be seen live as they happen makes the NBC-TV sports schedule of Oct. 10 one of the most significant in the last 25 years to sports fans. It was 25 years ago when NBC-TV presented the first live broadcast of a sports event—the baseball game between Columbia and Princeton.

At 10 a.m. NBC-TV schedule (EST) begins at 1 a.m. with the opening ceremonies of the Games of the XVIII Olympiad, which is being broadcast direct from Tokyo. The broadcast, which is scheduled to last until 3 a.m., will feature the entrance of Japanese athletes at the opening ceremonies, as well as the parade of nations, the address by Avery Brundage, President of the International Olympic Committee, the raising of the Olympic flag, the arrival of the Olympic flame, and the athletes taking the Olympic oath.

NBC-TV has set up its own cameras at the site of the Games in Tokyo, at the broadcasting facilities of NHK, the Japanese Broadcasting Company. The cameras, from which the TV tape editors will be working, are already on the spot.

At 10 a.m. NBC-TV will resume its regular programming at about 8 p.m. with "The Famous Adventures of Mr. Magoo," after the unprecedented scheduling of the largest and most far-reaching one-day sports programming.

In her own inimitable fashion, Carol Burnett plays the role of an idol-worshipping reporter interviewing an up-and-coming Shakespearean actor in his dressing room, on "The Entertainers" Friday, Oct. 9 (8:30-9:30 p.m., EDT) on the CBS Television Network. Jack Cassidy, who appears with Miss Burnett in the popular Broadway musical, "Fide Out—Fide In," portrays the actor.

Canadian Bob Newhart delivers one of his original monologues on happenings in everyday life.

International singing star Caterina Caselli sings "It Might as Well Be Yours," accompanied by the Cuban Trio Dancers and the Los Flamencos. Following this, she sings "Mania de Maria."

Tommy O'Shea, British musical star, performs "With a Little Bit of Luck," from "My Fair Lady," and "Toots-Loose."

Young singer John Davidson, a regular on the show, solos "Tonight," from "West Side Story." Canadian Don DeLaine is seen in a sketch about a sleepwalker.

"The Entertainers" is produced by Joe Hamilton and directed by Dave Geisel. Bob Baran is executive producer. Music is under the supervision of Harlan Howard. Vincent Bogart is writer. The program is a weekly production in association with the CBS Television

NEW MOVIE IDOL STARS IN 'HONEYMOON HOTEL'

(Opening at the Princess Theatre.)

With movie matinee idols in short supply, finding a tall, dark and handsome new star is a tall order. But Robert Goulet, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's exciting new star personality, more than fills the bill. He overflows it.

He's a good-looking, black-haired six-footer with a baritone voice that flatters every kind of song, whether it's the Broadway musical variety (as it was during his two-year tenure as Lancelot in "Camelot") or popular numbers (witness his flock of record best-sellers).

Goulet also possesses a suavity and sophistication that is tailor-made for his MGM motion picture debut as a gay young bachelor in "Honey Moon Hotel." His colleagues-in-comedy are Nancy Kwan, Robert Morse, who later delighted Broadway himself in "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying," and Jill St. John.

It hasn't always been honey and roses for Goulet, even though the actor's recent three-year history sounds as if his fairy godmother were working overtime.

At the age of thirteen he moved with his mother from his hometown of Lawrence, Mass., to Edmonton, Canada. Here he demonstrated a prowess in both football and high-school dramatics and also organized a dance band. After becoming a dance band leader, he won a scholarship to the Toronto Conservatory of Music. His success in the school's dramatic presentations led him to try his luck on Broadway in 1955. No luck.

But Canada had something for him, the lead in a television production of "Little Women." This launched him into the top Canadian TV variety program, "Showtime," in which he succeeded to the sole star spot and reigned triumphantly as "Mr. Television" for three years.

Meantime, back in the States, the famous Lerner-Loewe team was preparing "Camelot" for Broadway and searching for someone to play Sir Lancelot opposite Richard Burton's King Arthur. A friend of Goulet's arranged an audition for him in New York and he won the part. When he stepped onto the stage on opening night he was an unknown, but after the following morning's reviews his was a name to be reckoned with.

During Goulet's two years with the musical he made several guest appearances on leading television programs. Then, in October, 1962, he left the cast of "Camelot" to spread his fame via night clubs throughout the country. Last summer, he starred in a series of concerts before reporting to MGM to start his movie career in "Honey Moon Hotel." Concurrent with all this he recorded several albums and single disks which hit the best-seller class.

His commitments for films, television, night clubs and records stretch from Hollywood into the far distance, prompting one observer to comment that Goulet had become a four medium-star in three years, a feat it takes most entertainers close to a lifetime to achieve.

When Goulet is not "on," he's off golfing, hunting or tramping through the woods with his bride, stage star Carol Lawrence. In Hollywood he may substitute the beach for the woods but on his 33-acre estate in Westchester County, New York, his three-story fieldstone house is surrounded by trees.

There is a tennis court and, in true star tradition, a 60-foot swimming pool. Why not? Hollywood doesn't find a tall, dark and handsome new matinee idol once in a blue moon!

Bit Of Rome Comes To Richmond

RICHMOND — The roads that lead to Richmond will lead to a little bit of Rome the fortnight of October 12-24 as the capital city salutes Italy in music, dance, art exhibits and numerous other special events during "Bravissima Italia."

Nearly two years in the planning stages, the festival is being held by Thalhimer's in cooperation with the Italian Embassy, Italian Cultural Institute and a number of civic organizations. The best of Italian commerce and culture will be presented in a series of continuing and special programs.

Mayor Crowe, Italian Commerce Minister Morabito and William R. Thalhimer, Jr., will launch "Bravissima Italia" by cutting the red, green and white ribbons at the Grace St. entrance Monday, Oct. 12, at 9:30 a.m. Other special events include the Ambassador's Ball sponsored by the Junior Board of the Crippled Children's Hospital for the benefit of the hospital to be held at the Hotel John Marshall Wednesday evening, Oct. 14; an Italian fashion show and film showing for the Career Club in the auditorium of Thalhimer's, Friday evening, Oct. 16; "Pinocchio" puppet shows Saturday, Oct. 17; the all-Italian concert by the Richmond Symphony at the Mosque Monday evening, Oct. 19, and an illustrated lecture and demonstration on "Italy's Heart" by Dr. Gene L. Adrean in the Thalhimer's auditorium Friday, Oct. 23 for the benefit of the Fellowship Fund of the Richmond Branch of the American Association of University Women.

Italian artisans, couturiers, and art specialists will come to Richmond to participate in the two-week festival. Thalhimer's fifth-floor auditorium is being transformed into an art gallery for the occasion and every department will present wares and exhibits from Italy during "Bravissima Italia."

There is a tennis court and, in true star tradition, a 60-foot swimming pool. Why not? Hollywood doesn't find a tall, dark and handsome new matinee idol once in a blue moon!

You'll wonder how you ever managed without a kitchen phone

When you answer the phone without leaving the sauce... or visit with a friend while you sample the soup... or check that recipe right in the middle of mixing... you'll wonder how you ever managed without a kitchen extension phone. And when you see the cheerful color, and count the steps it saves you every day, you'll wonder why you didn't order one sooner. So why not call your C & P business office, and ask for an extension phone for your kitchen?

Wodehouse on Wheels . . . page 8

P. G. Wodehouse, who has 68 extraordinarily popular books to his credit and who is (in his own words) "handsome—perhaps even too handsome—more charming and intellectual than you would think possible," has never had a driver's license. In fact, he doesn't even drive. (Have you ever heard of such a thing in the suburbs?) But Jeeves' famous creator goes right on to tell you what he thinks about driving or being driven—from the seat on the right which he shares with his boxer who doesn't drive, either.

Hardtops 1965 . . . page 16

When you want a rakish convertible look without sacrificing all-weather comfort and quiet—and you want today's most popular model—you buy a hardtop, of course. And here they all are for the new season, each packed with polish and pizzazz.

The "Coolest" Car of All . . . page 22

A car is a car is a car? Don't you believe it. Any teen-ager (and who knows more about it?) will tell you that each car is unique. And they'll tell you what they want in their own first good car, down to the sparkles on the hubcap. Driver-trainer Jean Lee interviews 10 of them, wild and tame, male and female, on their favorite subject.

When the Japanese perfected a garden to meditate in, they made it easy to care for, too—more time left to think and all that. With winter on its way (what a thought!), Garden Editor John Brimer tells how you can design your own Oriental garden for easy maintenance and year-round enjoyment.

On the Cover

Laura Jean Allen shows the suburbanite going about the business of driving. And a business it is, pleasant as the new cars make it. Commuting is just the beginning. On the home front, there are trips to market, cub scout, garden club, and dancing school and then home to an easy chair that has four legs, no wheels.

GETTING AROUND

. . . to Our Pleasant Places and People

If you're the type of woman who loses her car when she parks it, Mrs. T. W. Wirths of Rockville, Maryland, may have the perfect solution for you. She attaches a bunch of artificial flowers to the antenna of her car so she can always spot it no matter how big the parking lot may be.

With autumn wedding bells ringing out loud and clear, a friend in La Habra, California, tells about attending the marriage of Mr. James Hirst of Long Beach. It seems that when the young groom knelt at the altar with his bride, Sue Ellen, two words which had been chalked on the soles of his shoes by his magnified best man became visible to everyone in the church. HELP was written on the left sole, ME on the right.

The old problem of getting congregations to occupy the front pews has been solved by the Trenton, Michigan, Community Presbyterian Church. The first three rows—and only the first three rows—are temptingly equipped with foam-rubber cushions.

When the grandson of Martin S. Pickell of Newport Beach, California, was taken to his first ball game recently, the band, as always, played the National Anthem, and everyone stood up and started to sing. The little boy, who was only three years old, looked around and then at the top of his lungs began to sing "Happy Birthday to You." It was the only song he knew.

NOW—THE '65 CHEVROLETS

'65 Chevrolet Impala SS Coupe

'65 Chevelle Malibu SS Coupe

'65 Chevy II Nova SS Coupe

'65 Corvair Corsa Sport Coupe

Let Chevrolet put you in beautiful shape for '65

'65 Chevrolet Impala SS Coupe

The Chevrolet has it all over lesser cars like never before. It's new from the frame up. Cradles more lavish interiors in an equally lavish new ride, then wraps it all up in inspired new styling. With V8's up to 400 hp at your order. And things you can order from air conditioning to AM/FM Stereo radio—in body styles from wagons to that new SS coupe with Sweep-line roof!

'65 Chevelle Malibu SS Coupe

Suddenly Chevelle's a young swinger! You can equip it with a 300-hp V8 now—enough to make a swinger of any car, but especially Chevelle. It always looked and rode like it had a big edge on the rest; now it looks even more so. And rides like the road was broadloomed.

'65 Chevy II Nova SS Coupe

With a name like Chevy II Nova Super Sport Coupe, you expect something fancy. Just as well; Chevy II repeats for '65 as America's best dressed practical car. Best fed too now that you can order a 300-hp V8 to go with all the money-saving features that made it famous!

'65 Corvair Corsa Sport Coupe

Corvair's all-new Corsa sports a flair for the dramatic. Its standard 140-hp Six is topped only by a Turbo-Charged 180-hp Six you can specify. Shoulder room is roomier. Handling is handier. With looks in every series—Corsa, Monza and 500—that make you wonder if other cars just aren't trying. . . . Chevrolet Division of General Motors, Detroit, Michigan.

Yes, even dried-egg spots

At last! A dishwasher detergent that really does both!
(1) cleans difficult food stains (2) ends water spots

You need a dishwasher detergent that does more than stop water spots. Now it's here!

No matter what the stain—dried-in grease, sticky chocolate, gooey syrup, filmed-in milk, smudged lipstick, stubborn tea stains—even dried-up egg spots—now you can have gleaming, silver, dishes, pots that are cleaner, brighter than any other dishwasher detergent can make them—and without water spotting.

Electrasol's even-flow formula cleans without clinging. This is due to an extraordinary wetting agent that makes water "wetter" so it cleans even the most difficult stains—then rolls right off your dishes. Will not spot, film or streak...no matter how hard the water...no matter what make your dishwasher. No wonder Electrasol is recommended by every leading dishwasher manufacturer.

Like most youngsters, Lois, the three-year-old niece of Marcella Klein of Smithtown, New York, has always had a violent dislike of spinach. One day her mother said, "Lois, just pretend it's ice cream and eat it all up." Lois regarded the hated vegetable on her plate and then said, "Mother, let's pretend it's all gone!"

In Scottsdale, Arizona, youthful traffic offenders are paying their fines in free work hours rather than money. City Magistrate Tom Felke thought up this plan early in the summer, and the members of Scottsdale's Teen-Age Court decided to carry it out, since they believed that most fines were paid by the parents anyway and had no effect on the teen-ager. The boys (girls haven't been included in this program yet) are given a choice of being tried by the juvenile or by the adult court. When they are tried as juveniles, no traffic violations can be piled up against their record, and consequently their insurance rates won't go up. So naturally the boys usually choose the Teen-Age Court, even with its strict work penalties. And the penalties are rigid.

One boy, who ran through a red light, was given four hours work a day for 15 days. Another young man said that his hardest task was cleaning up after the Goldwater barbecue rally this summer. "Man, there were paper cups and other trash scattered all over the park," he said. "I've learned my lesson. They should try this idea on the adults; it might stop everyone from speeding."

A reader from St. Matthews, Kentucky, tells us that a man by the name of Den Spaulding has recently completed a new subdivision near Louisville which is going to be called My-lanta. Sound unusual? Romantic? Suburban? Well, Dan claims it's the name of his ulcer medicine.

Librarians, take note: Mrs. Glen McClain, librarian at the municipal library in Arlington, Texas, reports that one day a year she schedules a "Forgiveness Day." On that day guilty bookworms can return overdue books with no penalty.

With all the talk about Comet durability | you might overlook Comet beauty. | Don't.

Sure, Comet became World's 100,000-Mile Durability Champion. (Remember Daytona last year?) But now see what we've added to all that ruggedness. Shiny good looks from every angle. Clean, crisp beauty. And luxury? It's almost scandalous how much there is inside. Walnut-toned panels in the Caliente, thick carpeting, richness everywhere. Just impossible to overlook!

You can't kick the tires... so look under the hood!

If you're a tough customer, welcome! If you're a person who kicks tires, squeezes melons, taps plaster... we especially invite you to "look under the hood" of the Conn Organ.

On the outside—you acquire authentic console styling in genuine hardwood with beautifully hand-rubbed finish; overhanging keyboard for comfortable, easy playing; tapered solid plastic, non-sticking keys.

On the inside—you find gold and silver plated key rods; top quality transistors; individual tone generators for each pitch; large amplifier; voltage regulator which prevents changes in line voltage from affecting pitch; big stationary speakers; built-in Leslie speaker for unique pipe-like quality.

By any measurement, the Conn Organ is truly a professional-quality instrument... from the world's largest manufacturer of orchestral and hand instruments. Since 1875.

Look under the hood of any Conn model. There are nine, each handsomely crafted. Prices start at $995. Convenient terms are available. And Conn's new learning method, "Instant Music," will have you playing familiar tunes in minutes!

Handy Guide to Series E U.S. SAVINGS BONDS

Makes an ideal gift for graduations, birthdays, communions, bar mitzvahs or any occasion when you want to be especially nice to someone, by sharing yourself. Sells for $18.75

This one is tailor-made for the investment of income, tax refund, and other windfalls. As maturity it grows into a tidy five-cent egg, yet the cost to you is only $150.00

Lots of businessmen buy these as a good safe investment for company surplus funds. Also ideal for widows who suddenly find themselves with a large sum. $750.00

Actually there are 7 denominations, but all U.S. Savings Bonds have these things in common:

They're one of the most widely held investments in the world—owned by tens of millions of American families. They're replaceable in case of loss. They return $4 at maturity for every $3. They're cashable at any time. They help make your individual future, as well as your country's future, secure. Buy the ones that fit your budget—at your bank, or through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work.

When Annette Palazzolo, now of East Detroit, Michigan, first arrived in this country, she was dazzled by the endless shelves of goods in American supermarkets and often found herself loaded down with more "bargains" than her budget allowed. To make matters worse, her husband would wander off and bring back his own contributions for the shopping cart. Mrs. Palazzolo was beginning to doubt whether she would ever get the hang of shopping in the States until one day she overheard a young woman saying to her husband as he approached her from the opposite direction, laden with packages, "John, are you shopping for me, or against me?"

Mable Sims of Doraville, Georgia, has a simple trick for keeping her trips to the supermarket well organized. She jots her grocery list down on the outside of an envelope, and inside she puts the coupons she wishes to exchange on purchases. After she has finished shopping, she puts her new trading stamps away in the same envelope. This way she doesn't have to rummage around in her pocketbook to find them when she wants to paste them in her stamp book.

Still on the subject of shopping, Mrs. Edward Alstead of Barrington, Rhode Island, tells us about the time she asked her 16-year-old son to add anything he wanted to the grocery list she had left in the kitchen. Later at the market, after checking off meat, potatoes, bread, etc. she found one item added in his neat, small script: "CART"

Dr. Alfred Fleishman of Ladue, Missouri, owns his own town, complete with a sorghum molasses mill. A few years back the doctor's enthusiasm for antiques rose from spinning wheels and gold-rimmed chamber pots to greater things, like old buildings. Soon his collection found in and around Missouri grew to 13 buildings, including a 135-year-old cabin, an inn, an old-time saloon, a dance hall, a weaver's cabin, and a sawmill. As soon as a building was his, Dr. Fleishman would have it dismantled and shipped to his 700-acre tract in the Ozark foothills on the St. Francois River, where it would be reassembled.

Just this past July the doctor's "village of yesterday" was officially declared the village of St. Francois (admission $1; children, 25¢; the 107-year-old village inn serves meals). More relics have been acquired to put up there, but there is a problem in moving them. As Dr. Fleishman puts it, "I have to wait for my financial resources to catch up with my enthusiasm."

SUGGESTIONS FROM
MRS. GAN GEMER

Here's cereal magic with a fruitful viewpoint: Gerber Strained Oatmeal or Mixed Cereal with Applesauce and Bananas. Each cereal is cooked with the fruit and ready to serve. The flavors are delightfully subtle... the texture marvelously moist and smooth. In the nutrition department, both are enriched with iron and important B-vitamins. Why not try a jar soon and watch your baby's appetite rise to the occasion? Serve "as is" or top with milk for added nourishment.

Sunny baby specialty. Doctors recommend egg yolks in the infant diet for the iron and other important nutrients they supply. Gerber Strained Egg Yolks are high in iron and vitamin A and a good source of body-building protein. And, they're specially processed to make them delightfully palatable for babies. The happy result? A creamy, custard-like texture, a delicate, fresh-egg flavor.

Help-at-hand-dept. When teething troubles beset your baby, extra rations of loving care and comfort are in order. Help at hand is yours in the shape of Gerber Teething Biscuits. Extra-hard, they're specially designed for good biting satisfaction. Scalloped edges and wafted surface make for easy graspability. Gerber Teething Biscuits are individually wrapped in cellophane so you can slip them in pocket or purse when you and baby go gallivantin'.

License?

BY P. G. WODEHOUSE

Author of "Miles of Millions" and 67 other extraordinarily popular books

IF SOMEONE were to ask me whether I preferred living in the country as I now do, to living in the city, as I once did, I would have no hesitation in replying in the affirmative. I like fresh milk and fresh eggs, and it is pleasant to breathe air with no carbon monoxide in it.

But there is one drawback to the rural life that has had a damaging effect on my prestige: when people point me out as I pass by and say, "There goes P. G. Wodehouse," it is not with admiration but with scorn. I am like the man in the Irving Berlin song who attracted some attention when he found the Fourth Dimension but was shunned by one and all because he had not got rhythm. I am all right in every other respect, handsome—perhaps even too handsome—more charming and intellectual than you would think possible, but I have no motor license.

I don't mean that I am like the gentleman I employ to cut my lawn, who has been driving for 20 years without one. I mean I don't drive a car, and the result is that in a community where all God's chillun do, I am looked at askance. My more charitable neighbors think I am weak in the head, while the others assume that I am hiding out from the cops and daren't run the risk of being stopped and questioned.

I started out in life as a bicycle man, and so at heart I have always remained. I feel at home on a bicycle. Sixty years ago it is not too much to say that as a cyclist I was the talk of London. If you had not seen me pedalling down the Strand to the offices of the Globe newspaper, where I was at the time employed, frequently using no hands and sometimes bending over to pick up a handkerchief with my teeth, it was pretty generally agreed that you had not seen anything. My introduction to the automobile came later—in 1907, when I bought a secondhand Darracq.

I was trying at that period in my career to get an impression of musical comedy to give me some lyrics to write for his forthcoming entertainment, and it seemed to me that if I were to buy a car from him, it would just turn the scale. He had this Darracq which he was trying to unload on some innocent bystander, and I had managed to save 400 pounds, so we made the deal. I suppose what was in my mind was the thought that he would say to himself, "I had no idea this chap was so rich. Better keep in with him. If I let him write a few lyrics, he may put money into the show." So I got the car, had it delivered at my country address, took it out for a trial spin, and drove it into a ditch some 120 yards from my front door. I sold the remains and for the moment abandoned my dreams of becoming an owner-driver.

Ten years later I felt the urge again. This was when I was living in Great Neck, New York, and this time I got on much better. Those were the great days of automobiling. You didn't have to have a license—or, if you did, nobody told me—and there was practically no traffic on the roads, so I skipped hither and thither and had an enjoyable time. (I made money at it, too, because I once gave a man a lift and he tipped me 50 cents.) I was never what you would call expert, but I knew enough to get the thing started and was sometimes able to stop it. I might have become really proficient had I not gone back to England and found it congested with other people driving cars, far too many to make things comfortable, so I gave it up and handed the wheel over to my wife, who most fortunately is a superb driver. Like Jeeves, I know my place, and it is on the right-hand seat with two dogs on my lap.

What, I have often asked myself, has become of the old-fashioned dog who used to be satisfied with making the journey on the back seat? The dachshund and the boxer who run the Wodehouse home never dream of doing anything like that. Scarcely have we started when both are on top of me, and going from Remsenburg to Westhampton Beach on a sunny afternoon with one's face buried in the ribs of a hot boxer is, as Robert Benchley said of going by train with children, roughly equivalent to traveling third class in Bulgaria. "Air! Give me air!" is what I would be saying if I were able to say anything. And if you say, "Why take the dogs?" I reply, "Just try leaving them behind." The moment the car is outside, they are inside. They don't need to have doors opened for them, they get in somehow through the woodwork, like those Indian fakirs who disembodied themselves in Bombay and a moment later are reassembling the parts in Calcutta. It is the sort of thing Houdini used to do, and I respect them for it, but I wish they wouldn't.

I REALIZE that I am missing a lot by not motoring more often, my motoring consisting of a weekly trip to Westhampton Beach and a there-and-back to New York about three times a year. The papers are always full of stories of dashing drivers running in headlong collision with other dashing drivers or having sneezing fits as they are approaching the house and passing through picture windows into sun parlors and smashing two chairs, a table with a bowl of roses on it, and a closet containing china and a photograph of their Uncle Max, and I feel that these are men who live. Whereas what am I? A mere nonenterprising vegetable. I say to myself that I ought to be more like them, living life to the full.

Nevertheless, I intend to continue as strictly a passenger. After all, I do my bit. My wife, concentrating on the driving, needs someone at her side to shout abuse at passing motorists who have cut in on us, and this I am good at. The only trouble is that so many of the best things are lost owing to my having my mouth full of boxer.

Another point on which I would touch . . . But I must leave you now. I hear the dogs yapping, and I must be off to Westhampton Beach.

The gourmet spirit of fine French cuisine is expressed in this photo of Filet of Venison with Hot Brandied Cranberries.

INSPIRED BY MENUS OF FRANCE

MELANIE DE PROFT
Food Editor

FILET OF VENISON

- 8 venison filets, cut 2 in. thick
- Instant meat tenderizer (seasoned)
- Olive oil
- 1 clove garlic, split
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 3 tablespoons Madeira
- 1 banana, cut diagonally in slices
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice

1. Prepare the meat as follows: moisten each side of meat with water and sprinkle evenly with the instant meat tenderizer on all sides, using about ½ teaspoon per pound. Pierce meat deeply with a fork at approximately ½-in. intervals.

2. Heat the olive oil in a heavy skillet along with the split garlic clove. Remove garlic before frying meat. Fry the meat on all sides in the hot oil until the filets are brown outside but rare inside, about 20 min. Transfer them to a hot platter and keep them hot while preparing the wine sauce.

3. Add the butter or margarine and the 1 tablespoon olive oil to the skillet with the Madeira. Simmer about 2 min., stirring constantly. Pour over the filets just before serving.

4. Sprinkle the lemon juice evenly over the banana slices and fry slices in hot butter or margarine until thoroughly heated.

5. Garnish each filet with a banana slice and serve with Hot Brandied Cranberries or Chestnut Purée.

6 servings

Note: Pieces of round steak the same size as the venison filets can be treated with the seasoned instant meat tenderizer and prepared in the same manner as the venison.

HOT BRANDIED CRANBERRIES

Combine 1 cup sugar, 1 cup water, and ¼ teaspoon salt in a saucepan. Heat to boiling and boil, uncovered, 5 min. Add 2 cups (about ½ lb.) cranberries which have been washed and sorted to the saucepan. Continue to boil, uncovered, without stirring, about 5 min., or until the skins pop. Remove from heat and stir in 3 to 4 tablespoons brandy. Serve hot with the venison. About 2 cups sauce

CHESTNUT PURÉE

Shell about 2 lbs. chestnuts by making a small slit in the shell of each chestnut. Put in a saucepan and cover with boiling water. Boil about 20 min.; drain. Remove shells and inner skin from chestnuts immediately. Return nuts to saucepan, cover with water, and bring to boiling. Boil, covered, about 5 min., or until tender. Drain. Force chestnuts through a sieve or food mill. Season with salt and pepper and beat in a small amount of butter or margarine and hot cream. Serve hot with venison.

SALAD PROVENÇAL

Cut 2 green peppers into strips; fry in $\frac{1}{4}$ cup olive oil until partially tender, about 5 min. Remove strips to a bowl. Add 2 medium-sized ripe tomatoes and $\frac{1}{4}$ Bermuda onion, cut in pieces, along with whole pitted ripe olives. Toss lightly. Shake well in a covered jar 4 parts olive oil and 1 part white wine vinegar, salt and pepper. Pour over salad; toss gently until well coated with the dressing. Marinate at room temperature about 1 hr., turning occasionally. Chill thoroughly before serving; sprinkle generously with freshly ground black pepper. About 6 servings

MUSHROOM-STUFFED TOMATOES

- 6 tomatoes
- $\frac{1}{4}$ cup butter or margarine
- 1 lb. chopped fresh mushrooms
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
- 1 tablespoon chopped parsley
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon basil
- $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon salt
- $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon black pepper
- $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon sugar
- 1 egg yolk

1. Cut off stem ends of the tomatoes leaving about a $\frac{1}{4}$ -in. diameter; scoop out (reserving pulp) and invert tomatoes to drain.
2. Heat most of the butter or margarine in a skillet; add and cook mushrooms until tender.
3. Combine in a saucepan the remaining butter or margarine, next 7 ingredients, tomato pulp, and slices, cut in pieces. Simmer, uncovered, about 30 min. Force through a sieve. Return about $\frac{1}{2}$ cup of the hot tomato sauce to the saucepan. Add a few tablespoons of the hot sauce to the egg yolk. Return to saucepan; cook 3 min., stirring constantly.
4. Blend thickened tomato sauce into skillet with mushrooms. Season inside of drained tomatoes with salt and pepper. Fill tomatoes with the mushrooms. Top with about 1 tablespoon buttered fine bread crumbs. Place tomatoes close together in a shallow baking pan. Pour some of the remaining sauce around tomatoes in pan.
5. Bake at 375°F until tomatoes are cooked and crumbs are browned, about 30 min. Serve with sauce spooned over tomatoes. 6 servings

Note: Leftover tomato sauce may be refrigerated and used as desired with vegetables, casseroles, meat, fish, or poultry.

PEARS FLAMBE

- $\frac{1}{4}$ cup dried apricots
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup water
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 6 firm ripe pears

1. Set apricots with the $\frac{1}{4}$ cup water over low heat; cover, and cook slowly about 25 min., or until tender. Turn into a sieve and purée. Set aside.
2. Prepare a thin sirup by combining the 2 cups water and sugar in a large saucepan. Bring to boiling and boil about 5 min., stirring until sugar is dissolved. Remove from heat and stir in the extract.
3. Rinse, halve, and carefully remove the core from the pears. Poach them in the sirup over medium heat, simmering about 5 min., or until just tender. Carefully remove from sirup. Allow 2 halves per serving, spoon into individual dishes.
4. Blend the apricot purée into the sirup. Simmer, stirring until sauce is of desired thickness.
5. Spoon apricot sauce over pears. Heat $\frac{1}{4}$ to $\frac{1}{2}$ cup brandy. Ignite and pour while flaming over the pears. 6 servings

Note: The poaching of the pears may be done in a chafin dish at the table if desired.

PETITS LEMON SOUFFLES

- 4 egg yolks (about $\frac{1}{4}$ cup)
- $\frac{1}{4}$ cup butter, softened
- $\frac{1}{4}$ cup sugar
- Few grains salt
- $\frac{1}{4}$ cup lemon juice
- $1\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoons ground lemon peel
- 4 egg whites (about $\frac{1}{4}$ cup)
- $\frac{1}{4}$ cup sugar

1. Stir the first 6 ingredients in top of a double boiler. Cook over simmering water, stirring constantly, until thickened and cooked, 8 to 10 min. Remove from heat and beat well with a wire whisk for 2 min. Set aside.
2. Beat the egg whites until frothy. Gradually add the $\frac{1}{4}$ cup sugar, beating well after each addition. Continue beating until stiff peaks are formed.
3. Using the wire whisk, gently stir the egg yolk mixture into the egg whites until blended.
4. Spoon into six 4- or 5-oz. soufflé ramekins. Place in a shallow baking pan and pour in boiling water to a $\frac{1}{4}$ -in. depth.
5. Bake at 350°F for 25 to 30 min., or until tops of soufflés spring back when lightly touched at the center. Sprinkle lightly with vanilla confectioners' sugar before serving. 6 individual soufflés

Evening at Home

"We're so proud of him. Two thousand words a minute and he isn't even breathing hard."

"Maybe that's the trouble with our marriage—we don't have a theme song."

"I often wonder if there's life on this planet!"

WHAT'S A MAN to do on an insurance-executive's income to provide the good life for his wife and 17 exceedingly lively children, all under 18 years old and living at home? Paul Madden of Merion, Pennsylvania, solves this wholesale puzzle by housing his family in a grand old 32-room mansion that would easily cost a quarter-million dollars to duplicate today but went at a fraction of that price when he bought it five years ago.

Built by a wealthy industrialist in the 1930s, "Chaminade" has formal French gardens, a gymnasium, a four-car garage, two tennis courts, library, breakfast room, sitting room, chapel, six master bedrooms, and four maids' rooms. How many domestics are there on the Maddens' staff to run this impressive establishment? None at all. By choice, Paul and Ann Madden and their children do all the work—cooking, cleaning, baby-tending, the works. The five oldest children even have their own plots in the gardens to tend and, except for the weeding, which brings moans, they do it cheerfully.

There's plenty of room for everything. Little Rita, 4, has a "hall of mirrors"—her parents' immense dressing room—to see how she looks in costumes. Patrick, 12, has a living-room organ to play. And when any of the little Maddens have excess energy to spill, they run upstairs to the thick-walled gymnasium. "What parent," asks Paul Madden, "wouldn't be delighted with a soundproof playroom for his kids?"

Four of the boys show what they can do in the gymnasium. They use the old mattresses in the foreground for jumping, tumbling—and (rarely) resting.

30-by-30 Feet of Garden of the James McConaughys is a fine example of how to adapt Oriental ideas. The owners find it easy to maintain, admire the natural curves, and enjoy the tiny pool beside steps in foreground, right. Even when iris and day lilies are not in bloom, there is plenty of color and texture in the myrto pines, junipers, yews, and deciduous plants like the winged euonymus. (Rendering from plan by Sam Zehrung.)

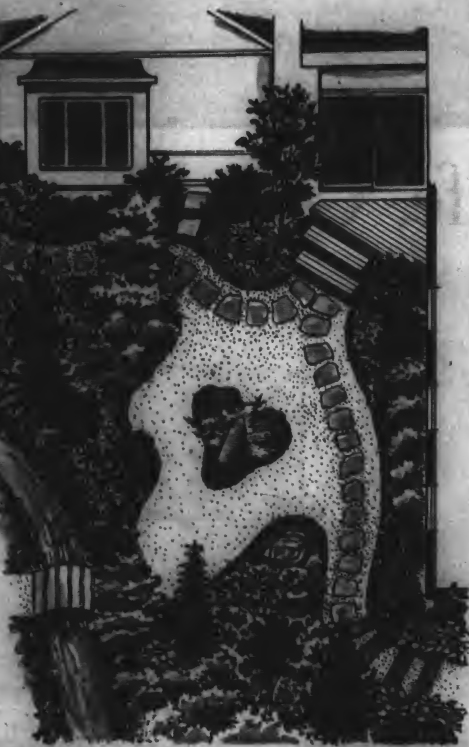

ILLUSTRATION BY THE AUTHOR

ONCE UPON a time there was an indifferent back yard in Kettering, Ohio, more trouble than it was worth in summer and a dreary sight from the end of the long living room in winter. Today, summer or winter, it is 30 feet by 30 feet of order and tranquility, according to the James McConaughys, who recently had a garden in the Japanese style laid out in the space.

"It's a great garden," Mr. McConaughy reports, "for the following reasons: first, it's different; second, it's an all-season garden, designed for enjoyment in winter as well as in summer, fall, and spring; and third, its maintenance is pretty close to nil—literally, a few minutes a day pulling up weeds.

"To me," he goes on to say, "there's something infinitely restful in the gravel areas which accent the green areas. There is a pond with a pump-fed stream running over the rocks at the end of the garden and just enough bloom to catch the eye here and there."

This 30' x 30' back yard has become "a great garden" because, wisely, it was the principles only of Oriental gardening that were adapted. We are not Zen Buddhists, nor are our houses often of Oriental inspiration, and for our purposes it is a mistake to copy too literally.

By studying carefully, however, we can discover, as the McConaughys did, the good common-sense compositional rules that lie behind the window dressing of philosophical strictures which govern Oriental garden design. By sticking to composition and choosing plants for their Oriental effect, we will do better than if we get bogged down in religious and philosophical considerations.

Oriental gardens are founded on nature, often simulating a whole landscape in a small area. This means that the flowing curves of nature, three-dimensional hills and valleys, as well as the flat areas of ponds or "oceans" are featured. Heaped up earth simulates hills with rocks set to indicate cliffs or outcroppings and to lend interest to a too-flat area, while a garden pool or paved terrace can serve as the "ocean" or pond area. The trees and shrubbery should be chosen to be in scale and to stay within bounds without constant pruning and shaping.

Flowering material is found mostly in shrubs and trees, other flowering plants being used sparingly and where they will mean the most, cutting maintenance still further. By using dwarf types or plants that grow only to moderate heights and by using them simply and with economy, by spotting evergreens among deciduous material to give year-long effects, and most of all, by limiting the lawn area to a small space, we can have garden work and still have a well-kept, well-ordered garden.

WHAT MIGHT BE spent on a greater amount of shrubbery for conventional treatment may be spent on more unusual, more picturesque, more worthwhile plantings, which will show to better advantage when widely spaced.

Let the paths curve according to the dictates of the lead contours, gently or sharply. Surface them with pebbles and not flat stepping-stones at easy paces apart so as to assure certain footing for the walker. By placing heavy plastic beneath the paths (well punctured to assure good drainage) we can eliminate weeds and weeding. Mulch shrubs and trees with about four inches of pebbles; they'll keep the soil cool and allow moisture to run through easily. The few weeds that have the temerity to poke through can be picked out quickly and easily. Moss—most often occurring in acid-soil areas—can be brought in from the woods and need to cover rolling contours between widely spaced shrubs.

The Japanese hill garden is not always successful in the West because it was designed to relate to steep slopes in the Island Empire. This means, though, that it adapts most easily to hilly sites here. All Oriental gardens feature subtle relationships of texture: smooth and rough stones, feathery and bold-textured leaves being played against the stone and wood textures of houses, fences, and walls. For this reason, this style adapts readily to our modern architecture, where honest use of wood, stone, and other materials has become almost a fetish.

Shrubbery in rounded round forms may be used to simulate hills, being kept in shape by shearing every few yards to thicken growth. Trees should be moderate in size, selected for—or deliberately trained into—picturesque shapes that highlight and contrast with the simple masses of shrubs used so sparingly. In addition to creating a miniature world, the expert Japanese gardener can use these carefully sculptured trees and his shrubs and stones and clear streams and immaculate winding paths as parts of a symbolic language in which he discourses poetically on heaven and earth. The average American gardener cannot translate the language or bewitch himself into seeing a majestic landscape in his own back yard, but he can be reached by the beauty of the Oriental gardener's symbols and the soothing effect of his orderly arrangements.

THE SIMPLICITY of the garden and its beauty of subtle textures which may be admired at close range, the flowing curves and natural effects, make this style admirably suited to the small home garden where everything is seen at close quarters. Unless the house is of Japanese architecture, it may be wise to forego the lanterns, bridges, and brightly painted fences that are so right in Japan, so false a note in most other places. Adapt and use, instead, the economy of material, the good balance, and above all, the restraint that is everywhere evident in Oriental gardens.

See how many practical Western ideas you can add to cut maintenance work to a minimum, creating a truly care-less garden.

of a 1941-model Cadillac called the 60-Special, so highly prized by collectors that it costs more today than it did when it was new. An interesting Cadillac feature is a steering wheel that moves in and out as well as up and down. A new automatic transmission is much smoother than the Hydra-Matic unit that it replaced. Another feature is a pump which automatically levels the car when it is loaded.

Chevrolet Division is practically a General Motors within itself, offering a total of 45 models in five different series. For example, the senior Chevrolet is offered with a choice of six engines and four transmissions. It is three inches longer, one inch lower, and more significantly, the tread has been widened by two inches in front and three inches in the rear. This enhances the car's ability to corner. The successful Chevelle, new in 1964, is continued with little change, as is the Chevy II. Though completely restyled on the outside, Corvair remains the only car built in this country with a rear-mounted, air-cooled aluminum engine. In the top-line Cora sports hardtop, this engine may be ordered with supercharging and will produce an amazing 190-hp.

Oldsmobile has a brand-new V-8 engine that weighs nearly 200 lbs. less than its predecessor but produces more power. The sportiest bears the somewhat unwieldy name of Dynamic 88 Delta Holiday Coupe. A comfort feature is a bench-type front seat with hinged center armrest. All of the bigger Oldsmobiles have new frames of a perimeter design. The top line is practically Cadillacized, and this is not exactly unintentional. The smaller F-85's are available with a choice of V-6 or V-8 engines.

Most observers credit Pontiac's fast rise in the world to trend-setting styling plus the well-publicized "wide track." People seem to like the appearance of solidity created by moving the wheels outward (the car itself is really no wider than others), but the feature is much more important from a stability standpoint. Until GM gave up racing a few years ago, Pontiacs were favorites on the track, and the association lingers with the name of its top-line hardtop, the Grand Prix. The Hydra-Matic transmission, vintage 1939, has been dropped in favor of the new, smoother GM design. Electronically modulated air conditioning is available (the only other make to offer this is Cadillac). Tempest, the junior Pontiac, has grown three inches in the year. Again, it is sometimes trifles that stand out. Did you ever notice the wind-whistle from your radio antenna? Tempest has cured this by making the antenna an airfoil shape instead of the conventional round.

Chrysler Corporation. Chrysler's flagship, of course, is the Imperial, which is available in Crown and LeBaron models. All are powered by a big V-8 that requires premium fuel, and almost every accessory except air conditioning is standard equipment. The noteworthy feature of Imperials is the attention engineers have paid to silencing. (As an aside to Rolls-Royce, this includes the clock as well as considerable worry over the slight hiss that emanates from the device that releases the parking brake automatically when you put the car in gear.)

Interesting features include a light to warn the driver if any of the gauges indicate a malfunction and easy-to-clean, tempered

THE MATCHLESS FACILITIES OF 30 GENERAL MOTORS TRAINING CENTERS

Owner satisfaction is essential to the continuing success of General Motors and its dealers. That's why GM established a unique nationwide network of thirty Training Centers ten years ago. Since then, servicemen from Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Buick, Cadillac, GMC Truck and United Delco dealers all over the U.S. and Canada have logged more than 19,000,000 hours of instruction in modern maintenance methods. In Training Center classrooms they keep up to date on the use of special new tools and equipment; the skills and service techniques needed to care for your GM car swiftly, surely, economically. This special GM training is unequalled anywhere. It's an important part of the consideration General Motors has for its customers . . . why we believe you'll be happier with a new GM car or truck.

Who needs Jet Dry?

Anyone who owns a dishwasher and wants it to dry her dishes spot-free and shiny, needs Jet Dry. If you have a recent model, deluxe dishwasher equipped with an automatic dispenser for Jet Dry, be sure there is liquid Jet Dry in the reservoir at all times. Otherwise water will shoot off dishes instantly after the final rinse and unsightly water spots will form on your glasses and silverware.

If your dishwasher does not have an automatic dispenser for liquid Jet Dry you can now get spot-free drying by placing a handy bar of solid Jet Dry in your machine.

Many grocers, department stores and dishwashers dealers carry both liquid and solid Jet Dry. If not available in your neighborhood write to: Economics Laboratory, Inc., Dept. 133, 280 Park Ave., New York, New York.

DOES YOUR CHILD HAVE LORDOSIS?

If your child has "round" shoulders, jutting "wings," or other signs of poor posture, he or she may be suffering from lordosis—or simple curvature of the spine.

Many thousands of American school children suffer from lordosis—and their parents don't even know it.

Lordosis is correctable—and vigorous exercise plays a vital role.

Chryslers are offered in Newport, 300, and New Yorker series. The cars are three inches longer for 1965 and are powered by two sizes of V-8 engines. All Chrysler makes feature torsion-bar front suspension and the industry's only 50,000-mile or five-year warranty on major mechanical parts. Push-button shifting, though, was dropped for 1965 in favor of a conventional lever.

The Dodge line has been broadened to include everything from the compact, 111-in. wheelbase Dart to the top-of-the-line Monaco hardtop. The more familiar Dodge on a 117-in. wheelbase is now called Coronet. All but the biggest Dodges offer a choice of six and V-8 cylinder engines that range up to a brutish 425-hp.

Plymouth has expanded to a total of 60 models in four lines, a range that the company claims will give it access to 74 per cent of the market. New for 1965 are three Fury series on a 119-in. wheelbase, cars that put Plymouth well into the medium-price field for the first time. The compact Valiant line has been augmented by the popular Barracuda sports hardtop. But noteworthy is an increase in gas-tank capacity to 25 gallons for uninterrupted long-range cruising.

Ford Motor Company. Ford connected solidly with the public early in 1964 when it introduced the Mustang, a car that turned out to be the hottest selling individual model ever to be marketed by anyone. Mustangs come with either six or V-8 cylinder engines and a wide choice of transmissions.

Most critics rate the Galaxie series as one of the best of the new styles. Along with the new body comes a new perimeter frame (for better protection in a side collision) and coil springs fore and aft. The six-cylinder engine offered as standard in the Galaxie is new for 1965, but in addition there is a wide range of optional V-8's available at extra cost. Foot controls are suspended from the cowl to eliminate dust, noisy, openings in the floor board.

Both the intermediate-sized Fairlane and the smaller Falcon are continued with less change. A useful improvement on the Falcon is an alternator sealed for life. All Ford products require lubrication only every 36,000 miles in ordinary conditions.

Thunderbird and Lincoln-Continental are also Ford models that continue their existing and successful styling themes. Lincoln carries luxury many steps further by even offering power-vent windows and seats as standard.

The Mercury line has for the first time in many years been given a truly distinctive styling of its own. The sector series is now three inches longer with a wheelbase of 123-in. A 250-hp. V-8 is standard, but power options available can boost this figure to 425-hp. A Mercury so powered won the 1964 Pikes Peak hill climb. A trifle, but a useful one, is an ignition key with serrations on both edges so that it can be inserted either side up.

The Comet uses Ford's new 120-hp. six as standard equipment, but several V-8 options are available including a sports package for the top-line Cyclone hardtop.

American Motors Corp. Ramblers as usual come in three sizes—American, Classic, and Ambassador in order of girth.

Former AMC president George Romney, now governor of Michigan, once decreed that cars 200 inches in length or less were "compact" and that anything bigger by even one inch was not, so in upgrading the top-line Ambassador for 1965, his heirs at AMC dutifully chopped it off at exactly 200 inches and even competitive stylists applaud the results. The Ambassador is one of the few cars in its class that offers a 145-hp., six-cylinder engine, and it is an all-new design with seven main bearings for durability. However, most buyers of this car prefer the V-8 options that run up to 250-hp.

The Classic model has also been completely restyled. A wide range of six and V-8 cylinder engines is available up to 198-hp. All Rambler models offer noteworthy features such as two master cylinders to preclude brake failure, along with an option of disc brakes on the front wheels. Rambler builds what is considered to be the best heater and air conditioner in the business at the price, and pays thorough attention to rustproofing.

Leaving well enough alone, AMC has done little to the American, a peppy, conveniently sized car, especially with the optional 145-hp. six-cylinder engine.

The '65 hardtops make a winning appearance but they're serious workers, too. For week-in and week-out suburban use (housewives average 26 miles a day, commuters even more) the hardtop is in.

dearest friends and severest critics*

My dream car would be a powder-blue, large sports car with Moroccan-leather interior.

I would want it to have wire wheels and white-wall tires (about a four-inch wide white strip). The steering wheel should be of Bavarian walnut. It would be a convertible with a stick shift.

The horsepower would not have to be too high, but I would want the carburetion to be high.—Margaret Kleiman, 17½, Hyattsville, Maryland.

My dream car is long and low-slung, made of nonshattering fiber glass, and powered by a turbo-jet engine.

Safety, comfort, and economy should not be sacrificed, however. For safety, such things as an electric eye which puts on your brakes automatically when danger threatens; shoulder harness which would be required by law; and punctureproof and blowoutproof plastic tires would be desirable.

For comfort, bucket seats for all passengers, a soundproof firewall, and a television set for the back seat would be a necessity.—Clark Caff, 15, Edina, Minnesota.

I'd want to own a long, sleek foreign sports car. Maybe it's because I like things that are expensive or because I appreciate things that are different. I don't know.

But I do know that any car that hits top mileage of 170 mph in just a few seconds at the Grand Prix must be special. Also, I like the idea of a handmade car, and with so few produced, it's an oddity to see one.

It's a real cool car!—Paul J. Abe, III, 16, Olivette, Missouri.

living (only three more years!).

Certainly any dream car worthy of the name should have a built-in hair dryer. Who wants to curl up with a bundle of hot air at home? A quick electric shoeshiner under the dashboard would also be handy. And what could be nicer than a vibrating seat to relax tight nerves and bring a glow to the cheek after a hard day's shopping?

After my beauty needs are satisfied, I'd want my dream car to have a rumble seat for my dog—a special, comfortable compartment, not merely a trunk with an air vent. —Lynn Champlin, 18, St. Louis Park, Minnesota.

I have a dream car, and I can spiel off its specifications by heart:

It's a two-seater sports car with a stock chassis and a body similar to the famous 1930 Mercedes-Benz SSK. It is powered by a supercharged R-2 engine, has disc brakes, four-speed gearbox, and modified close-ratio steering. The engine will be located 28 inches toward the rear but will be standard in all other respects to simplify service and repairs.

The body is of classic design, with the traditional windshield, roll-up top, and flex pipes on the outside of the hood.

With a dream car like this I wouldn't be tempted to accept challenges in highway driving, as other drivers of average cars would realize I could outdrive them.—Leroy Calautti, 19, Hollywood, Florida.

The Dreamboats They Want

Another reason for my choice is that it is an all-around car. What I mean by this is that it gives a nice appearance either for a casual or a formal date.—Marilyn Self, 19, Shrewsbury, Missouri.

I would want a hand-built car made of aluminum. It would have a plexiglass roof, and the windows would be colored with a green film to keep the sun from discoloring my interior, which would be of rolled and pleated diamond tuck.

As for the engine, I would like to have three deuces for carburetion and dual-exhaust systems. It would have a hydro-stick transmission, hooked up to a 456 rear end.

Tires would be specially made, recessed on big magnesium wheels. Color would be a cross between iridescent and metallflake gold and blue.

I guess that's enough to ask for, if I could have a dream car!—George Wayne, Jr., 15, Pearl River, New York.

My family now owns a standard, large-model American car, and too often I've found myself driving around with too many people in the car—or running a taxi service. More than a few times I have missed my curfew because my friends didn't have a ride home, and I had to take them. There were other times when I have wanted privacy with a special girl friend in the car and ended up with a carload of people to chauffeur around.

For this reason I will want a small car when I buy my own. It should be powerful, have bucket seats, be a safe machine to drive, have a four-speed shift on the floor, get low gas mileage, and call for no more maintenance than any standard compact.—Tim Gray, 17, Baldwin Hills, California.

I find myself having a difficult time choosing any one car as my dream car, for I have grown up with the automobile since I was a little girl. My dad designs cars and has raced sports cars as long as I can remember.

My real choice of a dream car would be a racing car with green hardtop and black leather. However, at this time I am more than satisfied with the car I have now. It is a convertible, designed by my dad.—Sandra Alice Stevens, 17, Fox Point, Wisconsin.

PLANT TREES AND SHRUBS

Now's the time to move that treasured tree where you've always wanted it. Or move in big trees (why wait years for trees to grow?). Trained Davey crews can move big trees safely, economically, with special equipment. Plant shrubbery now, too.

SPRAY AND FEED

In the fall, as well as in the spring, professional spray application for Dutch Elm disease can protect your trees. And deep-root feeding keeps trees luxuriant for their big fall show!

CABLE, BRACE, PRUNE

Let Davey pros inspect your trees for needed cabling and bracing of heavy limbs, weak V-shaped forks. And now's the perfect time to discover new vistas by planned expert pruning.

LAWN FEEDING

Be sure to have Davey specialists give your lawn its fall feeding—with special Davey-Green Lawn Food—keeps lawns greener longer!

The Great Merlini—magician, writer, a member of Society of American Magicians—has given hundreds of shows, mystified thousands of young people with his magic.

HOW TO Entertain Children With Magic You Can Do

101 easy but mystifying tricks with ordinary household articles—by the Great Merlini

HAVE YOU ever wanted to be able to do a magic trick for a child? Here are one hundred and one easy-to-do, yet really mystifying, facts of magic that anyone can perform—and they're guaranteed to make friends of and influence kids. This is the first book of easy, practical magic written especially for parents... grandmothers... aunts... teachers... clergymen... leaders of cub scouts, girl scouts, campfire girls—everyone who has, or works with, children. And it's an excellent introduction to magic as a hobby for the young beginner, too.

The Great Merlini not only explains in detail exactly what to do. He shows you photographically how to perform in the most effective and entertaining manner. Even if you are "flat thumbs," you will be able to do many of the tricks right away. Others require rehearsal, but none need any special apparatus—the magic is all done with common, everyday articles found right in your home.

Here at last is the book that gives you quick, mystifying mastery of Magic Magic... Conjuring with Coins... Rope and Knot Magic... Magic with String... Tricks with Everything... Self-Working Card Tricks... Easy Sleight-of-Hand with Cards... How to "Read Minds"... Magical Party Stunts. Anyone who can do even one or two tricks for kids instantly becomes Superman, Merlin, and a fairy godmother all-in-one. But once you've read this magic book, you will be able to perform not just one but a HUNDRED-and-One tricks.

HERE'S JUST A SAMPLING OF THE 101 RAPIDLY TRICKY THE GREAT MERLINI HAS YOU DOWN IN MINUTES

This correctional, learn-by-example "Case Book" shows you how other parents have met problems that are typical of your child's ethical and general development...

Teaching Your Child RIGHT from WRONG

By Dorothy K. Whyte, Consultant to One of the World's Largest Insurance Companies

LEARN FROM THESE ACTUAL CASES AND HUNDREDS MORE WHAT OTHER PARENTS DID TO HELP THEIR CHILDREN
LEARN BY EXPERIENCE.

Troubled BERTHA JACKSON finally came out with it: "George, I'm a little concerned with all this happiness talk. Of course we want CAROL to be happy, but I also want her to learn right from wrong." (Page 16)

HILARY STERN, thirteen, returned a gold watch she found on the bus, even though no one had noticed her pick it up... (Page 18)

After he entered the fourth grade, JOHNNY MORAN began to contradict almost everything, saying, "You're wrong, you don't know." He was obviously more intent on making a good impression on his pals than on his parents... (Page 22)

THE GRAYSONS had hopped on the "togetherness" bandwagon early. The family spent practically all of its free time self-consciously doing things together. JANIE, three, told her aunt: "I love to go somewhere alone. It makes me feel like my own real self." (Page 25-26)

With the curiosity of a three-year-old, TEDDY was found by his mother in a neighbor's yard undressing little Joan to find out how she was made... (Page 30)

Mr. AND MRS. LEVIN the idea of sixteen-year-old MARGIE "going steady" has a frightening ring of permanency about it... (Page 35-39)

All of us, new and not-so-new parents alike, are living in times entirely different from those of our grandparents, or even of our own mothers and fathers. The problem of how to develop a sense of social responsibility in children was complex and seldom solved in their day. Many of today's parents are uncertain about their own roles in relation to the behavior of their children.

Your child's appreciation of what is right can be his key to a happy life. It's natural and important that you should want to learn more, know more, understand more about what you can do to help.

From her years of experience in parent education, Dorothy K. Whyte has selected for Teaching Your Child Right From Wrong actual "cases" that are typical of the problems in which she has been professionally involved. With each "case" example you'll find a warm, sympathetic, easy-to-understand discussion of general principles, correlated to children from the very youngest age to mid-teens.

"How can I teach ANDY to mind without being too tough on him?" (Page 44)

MRS. EVANS thought she could teach sixteen-month old ROBIN not to touch forbidden objects by repeatedly slapping her hands and saying "No no." (Page 49)

Six-year old MARTHA ROTH wants to stay up until nine or ten o'clock at night watching television or reading or having fun with the rest of the family... (Page 54)

BRIAN COOPER had been told many times to put his bicycle in the garage at night instead of leaving it on the front lawn. He invariably "forgot." (Page 58)

ANN thinks her parents are unreasonable for not letting her stay out until midnight or go to a party on an occasional Friday. Her 15-year-old point of view deserves consideration... (Page 61)

Six-year old PRUDY KORT, after a week at school, simply refused to return... (Page 67)

Ask yourself, "Is what seemed right for me necessarily going to be best for him?"

ERNEST MARX, at eight, had just moved with his family to a new town and a new, strange school... (Page 76)

The new baby was a new member of the family who demanded much of his mother's time. Five-year-old CHRIS BRADY, like all children, wanted not only to be loved; he wanted to be loved best... (Page 95-96)

"Show me the kids who never fight!" says MR. HARWOOD of his two boys, aged eight and ten. "It's natural for brothers to quarrel..." (Page 100)

Twelve-year-old ALICE GILLESPIE was painfully aware that her older sister EILEEN was an honor student. "Why can't you get grades like your sister's?" was an all-too-familiar refrain at home... (Page 103)

Try not to be discouraged if you do not always understand all the reasons behind your teenager's varied behavior. He does not understand them all himself... (Page 134)

WENDY's "need to belong" developed into a "need to look down upon" as she acquired feelings of prejudice from her parents, relatives and friends... (Page 111)

His mother was shocked to discover that seven-year-old DAN THORNTON had been going on "swiping" sprees at the supermarket with his boy friend... (Page 140)

SALLY BROWN, at twelve, enjoys spending her allowance as soon as she gets it... (Page 144)

When MAUD and ALLAN HELLER decided to tell their two sons that they were getting a divorce, they told the children exactly what the future plans were... (Page 154)

When six-year-old EVIE COLE's grandmother died, her mother could not bring herself to talk about it... (Page 156)

Mrs. Ellburg insists that eight-year-old TONY take his five-year-old brother along wherever he goes... (Page 106)

JOEL CARTON never felt like a "real father" until his seven-month-old baby son started looking toward the door evenings when told it was time for Daddy to come home. (Page 124)

"Mommy, I've just got to have that new walking, talking doll we saw on TV!" announces eight-year-old KATHY... (Page 130)

When MR. ELLIS lost his job, he and his wife decided not to tell the children... (Page 159)

Buick
Buick

We changed the Buick a lot this year. And you may never be the same again yourself.

We doubt you'll want to be the same. Not once you set eyes on our new Buicks.
On the Buick Special and the Skylark. The LeSabre, Electra 225, Riviera.

And on the sleek, modified fastback of the wild, wilder, Wildcat in the picture.

True, there's a new high-style touch. But that's hardly all. Engineering still has the emphasis. It's a Buick tradition. So are the extras Buick spends a little extra on. Like brakes that do a little better. And smoother drivelines. A tuned suspension to smooth ribcage roads. Now add Buick's Super Turbine transmissions—and you have an idea of what Buick owners have always liked about Buick. We think you'll feel the same.

Wouldn't you really rather have a Buick?

Play Facility Urged By Civic League Group

By Cleve Cleveland
Plaza Correspondent

PLAZA — The efforts of the Princess Anne Plaza Civic League to obtain more recreational facilities for the plaza area were highlighted in the report of the recreation committee at the October meeting of the civic league.

The report included presentation of a petition to the City Council containing over 700 signatures of plaza home owners, and plans to meet with the City Recreation Committee. Joseph Cyr, president of the civic league, also reported that he had been contacted by representatives of Aragona Enterprises, developers of Princess Anne Plaza, and a meeting had been arranged for later in the week to discuss the recreation problem.

Following the business meeting, Richard Webbon, Virginia Beach Director of Public Works, discussed various items of interest to plaza residents. He covered such things as drainage, population growth and its effect on school facilities and enrollment, and other problems being considered and acted upon by appropriate divisions of the city government. A question and answer period followed. Mr. Webbon's informal talk.

The second speaker of the evening was O. W. Richardson, who described the activities of the Loyal Order of Moose and stated that a membership drive was being conducted in this area. Mr. Richardson said that the new club facilities being constructed on Mapleton Road are expected to be ready by Thanksgiving. Civic league members were invited to consider joining the Moose club.

BLOOD VISIT WEDNESDAY

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Red Cross Bloodmobile will make its monthly visit to Virginia Beach Wednesday at the Alan B. Shepard Civic Center from noon to 6 p.m.

The unit "desperately needs B positive type blood," according to Mrs. Lois M. Nelson, chairman of the blood program for the local Red Cross Chapter.

Barbecue, sandwiches and other refreshments will be served to the blood donors.

NAVY CONTRACTS

NORFOLK — Two Virginia Beach firms have been awarded contracts by the Purchase Department of the Naval Supply Center in Norfolk. The contracts were: Services Inc., 500 Dorset Avenue, rug and mattress cleaning services, $121,329; and Accredited Nursery, 1444 Kempsville Road, lawns, trees, etc., $37,323.30.

White Buddy and Mike Vick were riding their bikes along the beach just behind the amusement park, Friday, they discovered this turtle. At this time it's still unknown whether the excellent Chamber of Commerce advertisement influenced his visit or not. (Staff photo by Hardy)

Ballots On Their Way

Surfing Film Here Oct. 23

VIRGINIA BEACH — "A Cool Wave of Color," a surfing film by Greg MacGillivray, will be shown at Virginia Beach High School auditorium Oct. 23-24 at 8 p.m.

MacGillivray will be on hand to personally narrate the film. The following review on the dialogue was well expressed, "A Cool Wave of Color" is a film worthy of the surfer's viewing.

"Greg is a young man and has a high-pitched voice. Except for the sound of the narration (the dialogue was well expressed), 'A Cool Wave of Color' is a film worthy of the surfer's viewing."

Group Planning Tour Of Area Recreation

RICHMOND — The Virginia Outdoor Recreation Study Commission will tour several Tidewater recreational areas Oct. 28 prior to holding the first in a series of public hearings in Norfolk Oct. 29.

The group, headed by State Senator Fitzgerald Bemiss, will tour such areas as Seashore State Park, Back Bay, Dismal Swamp and the Eastern Shore.

Details of the tour are being coordinated by Walter Clement of Virginia Beach, a member of the commission and vice-president of the Norfolk and Western Railway, and Marvin M. Sutherland of Richmond, an executive member of the commission and director of the Virginia Department of Conservation and Economic Development.

The Norfolk public hearing, first of five scheduled in various sections of Virginia, will be held at the Admiralty Hotel starting at 10 a.m.

"We expect that the Norfolk hearing will be unusually active and productive," Sen. Bemiss said. All persons interested in the program have been invited to attend the hearing.

Several meetings among mayors, recreation directors and other officials of the several political subdivisions in Tidewater have already been held.

CITY DOUBTS N.C. OPPOSITION TO CANALS PROCEEDS WITH PLANS

VIRGINIA BEACH — The city plans to go ahead with its proposed canal system despite published reports over the weekend that the North Carolina Wildlife Commission opposed the plan.

City Council Monday gave City Manager W. Russell Hatchett the nod to proceed with plans and stated that the city would absorb the cost itself if it must.

"We have had no official word that North Carolina disapproves of the canal system," Hatchett said. "The only notice we have had of such intentions has been through newspaper reports."

The North Carolina wildlife officials had said that the project, which involves a series of drainage canals throughout former Princess Anne County, would drain into Back Bay which in turn empties into Currituck Sound and the silt and salt would hurt the fresh water fish and waterfowl in the sound.

"Wildlife is very important to our city," Hatchett said, "and we don't want to do anything that would not benefit the wildlife and the city's sporting and recreational facilities."

He asked council to give him the authority to proceed with the plans so that the city could go ahead and get started on canals that seem more important.

Hatchett also took exception to another published story in a Norfolk paper recently claiming the city would like to obtain Camp Pendleton for recreational purposes.

"To my knowledge, the city has never even discussed such a proposal," he said. "The National Guard and Gen. Boothe have been very good friends of the city and we have had no intention of making any changes."

"They (the National Guard) have given us the rights-of-way through the property for a highway and have said they will beautify the area for recreational purposes."

Still speaking of newspaper articles, Hatchett showed council a clipping from a Rome paper of a picture of a Virginia Beach fireman rescuing a woman from a flooded area during the recent storm. It had been sent to him from someone in Saudi Arabia, he said.

At the beginning of Monday's meeting, Mayor Frank A. Dusch presented the city with a flag given to him by the First Lady on behalf of President Johnson.

The city also took two definite steps toward improving its public recreational facilities.

Council agreed to terminate the lease of the City Farm and to seek ways to obtain a former NIKE site.

The City Farm, located on about 68 acres near Dam Neck Road, would be used by the Recreation Department for a public park with picnic tables and by the Fire Department for fire drills.

The NIKE site is located on Salem Road and would also be used as a park by the Recreation Department.

In other action, council:

● Approved a resolution submitted by Public Works Director Richard Webbon, seeking federal aid for a topographical survey to obtain ways to alleviate the city's drainage problems. The resolution will be sent to Congressman Thomas N. Downing who will submit it to the House Public Works Committee.

● Approved a loan of $19,500 to the Thalia Fire Department for a new fire truck.

● Approved an appropriation to complete the tennis courts at Kellam High School.

● Approved a use permit to Shell Oil for a station at the southwest intersection of Baker Road and Northampton Boulevard.

● Gave the Bayshore Development Corporation the go-ahead on a motel on Shore Drive just east of Greenwell Road.

● Denied an application by the Cape Henry Motors for a used car sales lot which the Planning Commission claimed would "not enhance the area."

● Postponed for two weeks a decision on whether or not a service station should be built on Providence Road adjoining Westview Village.

● Approved the building of a Coast Guard Flotilla Auxiliary building on Great Neck Road near the site formerly occupied by the Seven Seas Restaurant.

● Approved renaming applications by James A. Murphy Jr. on property on Virginia Beach Boulevard just east of Plaza Trail and by Sol H. Snyder for property in Kempville Borough.

● Monday's meeting was recessed until Oct. 22 at 11 a.m. when the council will read bids on the water bond issue.

Summer Tax Take Tops Last Year

VIRGINIA BEACH — The August total of the special tax collected in Virginia Beach Borough indicates that business during all three summer months was even better this year than last. This August's collection was $44,373.18 which is $1,499.58 higher than the same month in 1963.

This special tax of three per cent on restaurant meals, lodgings, and beach equipment and five per cent on admissions is used to defray the cost of combating beach erosion.

Total tax collected for June, July, and August, $138,269.02, is $12,934.33 more than for the same period last year. The tax is considered a good index to business conditions in the resort section.

Dredge operations and other projects are being supported by a similar tax which went into effect this year in the other city boroughs. During the same three month period this came to $74,940.39—June, $22,545.89; July, $27,261.93; and August, $25,132.57.

Fashion Show Set For Cavalier October 21

By Douglas Arnold Barnes

VIRGINIA BEACH — A person is known for that for which he stands, and the matter of admission to this is a powerful force. Every person, or group of persons, should have a purpose.

The Cape Henry Women's Club most sincerely has a purpose in giving its "Evolution in Fashion" show which will be modeled by club members, and followed by a showing of Florence Wilson's latest fashion creations, with commentary by Mrs. James H. White.

The Sarah Sadler dancers, Lloyd Kitchin, Karen Brown, and Virginia Biggs will present "Satire of a Character," especially choreographed for this show.

Complimenting the Florence Wilson fashions will be shoes and accessories from Norfolk, and by L. L. Leland of Norfolk, and the cultural will be tied by Rafael and Cynthia.

The purpose of this fashionable production, which will be held on October 21 in the ballroom of the Cavalier Hotel at 10:30 p.m., is to raise money

Fishing Rodeo Here Sunday

LYNNHAVEN — The Virginia Beach Anglers Club will conduct a Speckled Trout and Rockfish Rodeo Sunday at Lynnhaven Inlet. This event is opened to the public at $1.00 registration fee. Fishing will be 6 a.m. to 4 p.m., with weighing in to follow. Contestants may register at Poole's Fishing Center, Lynnhaven Inlet, which will be headquarters for the event. Registrations will be accepted until 11 a.m.

Fishing will be restricted to Lynnhaven Inlet and its tributaries including Linkhorn and Broad Bays. Contestants may use only one rod and reel at a time and fish must be caught on artificial lures. No fish will be accepted under 12 inches. Catches should be kept on separate individual stringers.

Prizes will be awarded to the anglers catching the largest of each species and the heaviest strings. Special prizes will be given to the female and junior anglers recording the largest or unusual catches. These prizes will be presented to the winners at the regular monthly meeting of the club, November 5 at the Virginia Beach High School Cafeteria.

SAILING GROUP HEARS DESIGNER

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Broad Bay Sailing Association held their October meeting in the Colonial Room of the Cavalier Hotel last night.

Guest speaker was George O'Day, designer of O'Day sailboats and winner of a gold medal in the 1960 Olympics. His subject was "Sailing in the 1960 Olympics" and he included color movies and slides of Olympic sailing events.

Sponsor of the program was Glass Marine Industries, Inc., makers of Columbia Boats.

Things bring worries...unless—

It's true that possessions may bring worries as well as satisfaction.

As you acquire a house, a car, furniture, jewelry and a bank account, you can (and should) start to worry about what may happen to 'em.

Your house may burn up or blow away. You may hit somebody with your car or a golf ball and get sued for big dough. Or somebody may steal your car or diamond ring. And so on.

The only cure for such worries is to carry plenty of fire, windstorm, theft, liability and other insurance to protect you in case of any kind of loss.

And, that's WHERE WE COME IN to help you.

P.A. Tied By Hampton

VIRGINIA BEACH — In the world of large crowds and impossible traffic jams that belongs to Princess Anne football the first tie-up Friday night developed on the gridiron. The Cavaliers were held to a 6-6 stalemate by Hampton and thus lost their hold on a winning streak which had reached 13 games.

Hamstrung often by penalties and more often by crashing Hampton linebackers, Princess Anne was forced to endure a most frustrating Homecoming.

When Pete Sachon Jr., son of the coach, broke through the center of the line an ran 41 yards for a touchdown in the first period the Cavaliers appeared to be right on schedule. The objectives of course, were victory number five this season, extension of the longer string and retention of a share of first place in the State Group One-A standings.

But Ed Vennik missed the place kick try for a conversion and Princess Anne never got within 15 yards of another touchdown.

Cox Beats Kellam

VIRGINIA BEACH — Cox cranked up its potent ground attack here Friday night and handed Kellam its fourth straight Eastern District loss of the year with a 20-0 pasting.

It also was Kellam's fourth loss to Cox in four meetings. Cox now stands 1-4 in district play.

Tackle Curtis Jeffries started the Falcons on the road to victory in the first period when he picked up a Kellam fumble and rumbled 39 yards for a touchdown.

After battling through a scoreless second period, the Falcons struck again, as quarterback Don White capped a 61-yard drive with a five-yard scoring sprint.

Fullback Jim Podlesni plunged one yard for the final Cox score in the fourth period, in addition to kicking two extra points.

Booker T. Defeats U-K

VIRGINIA BEACH — Booker T. Washington of Norfolk defeated Union-Kempville, 13-7, in a Eastern District VIA football game here Friday night. Booker T. now is 2-3 and Union-Kempville 3-2.

Roosevelt Cornick scored the only touchdown for Union-Kempville on a pass interception in his own end zone, running 102 yards for the score.

Leonard Charity scored the Bookers first touchdown on a 30-yard run. On a punt by Union-Kempville in its own end zone, Stephen Massenburg returned the ball from the five-yard line for Booker T. Washington's second score.

Academy JV's Tie Kempville

Gun Club Will Hold Sight Day

DAM NECK — The Dam Neck Gun Club, located at the U.S. Fleet Anti-Air Warfare Training Center, will hold a sighting-in day for hunters in the area on October 17.

The club range will be open from 8 a.m. to noon. Members of the club will assist hunters to sight-in their rifles and pattern their shotguns.

The club is offering this service as part of a nationwide program conducted by the National Rifle Association.

Detailed information on sighting-in techniques and firing points for zeroing-in will be available at the range. Hunters are required to have all firearms unloaded and actions open when entering the range area.

Civilian hunters will be required to sign "responsibility waivers" prior to entering the range area.

Direction to the range can be obtained at the station's main gate.

Turkey Shoots Each Sunday

CHESAPEAKE — Virginia Beach residents have been invited to the Norfolk County Rifle Pistol and Gun Club to try their luck at winning a Thanksgiving turkey during the turkey shoots to be held each Sunday from noon until dark through November.

The turkey shoots will open after a ceremony dedicating the new club house. On hand will be Miss Virginia, Carolyn Lee Edly; Chesapeake Mayor H. R. McPherson; and Assistant City Manager Robert Klepper.

The gun club is located 1.5 miles west of Norfolk on Route 13 to the right just beyond the Route 17 overpass. Chesapeake police officers will be at the turn-off to direct Virginia Beach residents and others.

We Choose Johnson

For the Presidency: Lyndon B. Johnson. Travel and torment go into those simple words, breaching as they do the political traditions of a long newspaper lifetime. But we find ourselves, as Americans, even as Republicans, with no other acceptable course.

For many Republicans, this has been a season of soul-searching—whether, out of loyalty to the party and the two-party system, to embrace Goldwater; whether to defect to Johnson; or whether, caught between two unpalatable alternatives, to abstain from choice.

For us, as we suspect may be true for others, these considerations were decisive: Abstention is impossible. Office-holders and candidates for office, beholden to the party, are limited by their obligations in what they can say. A newspaper cannot take refuge in this; and no agony of indecision can make the choice go away, unless we maintain that the White House should be vacant for the next four years. One or the other has to be elected; the choice is only which, not whether.

We opposed Barry Goldwater for the nomination. We felt that his simplistic views on world affairs, and his appeal—whether calculated or not—to ugly racial passions in this climactic year of the struggle for equal rights, were alone enough to rule him out as the Republican standard-bearer.

But he won. We then hoped that he might prove our fears unfounded, rise to his responsibilities as nominee, show himself equal to the office he sought, and thus make it possible to close ranks behind him.

He didn't. At every step of the post-nomination way, two things became ever more evident: 1) that Senator Goldwater, for all his obvious sincerity, simply does not have the combination of personal talents necessary for the Presidency of the United States; and 2) that his course, if pursued as he has pursued it, would wreck not only the Republican party but the two-party system.

The more he discusses foreign affairs, the clearer it becomes that his vision is limited; that he has no grasp of the infinite complexities of a dangerous, frustrating and volatile world. The constant confusions over what he really means suggest little talent for the nuances of diplomacy. He has shown himself, in sum, a poor risk for what must be personal and most awesome of a President's responsibilities, the conduct of foreign relations in an age when survival may, in crisis, depend on his judgment—and his judgment alone.

His whole Southern strategy, his embrace of Senator Thurmond, his thinly veiled equations of Negro rights with violence in the streets—these have been a mackery of the fundamental Republican dedication to equal rights. However pure his own heart, his tactics dishonor the heritage of a century.

At San Francisco his first response to victory was one of unabashed arrogance. He rejected all moderate counsel; worse, much worse, he raised a banner for the extremists, the bigots, the implacable "antis," even while issuing, in effect, a manifesto for a new party, taking the Republican name but excluding the Republican soul. His first great responsibility was choice of a Vice-Presidential candidate. He passed up every man of Presidential stature within the Republican ranks, to choose instead a party functionary of little distinction then, and distinguished since only for the vigor of his vituperation.

Goldwater's unity gesture at Hershey was utterly superficial and soon forgotten (he himself was quick to insist that he had made no concessions); his carefully selected lieutenants, taking over the party machinery, sought ruthlessly and at once to convert a great national party into a narrow ideological faction.

If Senator Goldwater were to succeed in transforming the Republican party into a narrow Goldwater party—which is clearly the intent of the men behind him, and in which the Senator at least acquiesces—he would reduce a great political organization to a permanent, ineffectual opposition. By destroying the inner balance of the party, he would destroy the balance of political power in the nation.

The mass defection now evident from the Goldwater ticket can't be laid simply to sour grapes, or disgruntlement by poor losers. It's a nationwide, grass-roots defection; a mass exodus based on lack of confidence and respect. Senator Goldwater could have made it possible for many, even most, of these people to support him; instead, he made it extraordinarily difficult, if not impossible.

We believe, strongly, in Republican principles; we feel that the Republican party is best fitted to govern a free nation. And we urgently want to see the Republican party already dangerously diminished, grow stronger.

But this, in our judgment, does not justify making Barry Goldwater President of the United States.

In supporting Lyndon Johnson, we do so with our eyes open and our fingers crossed. We hold no brief for the Democratic doctrine of ever-encompassing Federal authority; we fear a continued spending spree; we deplore the traditional Democratic practice of buying votes by the bloc, with special-interest legislation wrapped in compassionate slogans.

But in Mr. Johnson we are offered a man of vast experience and manifest competence. In the Senate he proved himself one of the ablest legislative leaders of the age. As President, he has moved with sureness and responsibility through almost a year of crises—not least of these, the crisis of assassination and succession.

Moreover, Lyndon Johnson's greatest talent is the one needed now as seldom before in our history: that of reconciling the seemingly irreconcilable, and pulling opposites into a consensus. In a nation torn by racial and sectional strife, its divisions exacerbated by the ugly passions stirred up (on both sides) by the Goldwater candidacy, the nation needs a President who can bind up its wounds and let it find its soul again.

Senator Goldwater says he is offering the nation a choice. So far as these two candidates are concerned, our inescapable choice—as a newspaper that was a Republican party, has been Republican ever since and will remain Republican—is Lyndon B. Johnson.

He is a graduate of the Alexander Smith School of Interior Design. Hereafter he has served in buyer, business manager and president of furniture establishments.

The former Camp Furniture Co. store, acquired recently by Wills-Camp, will expand its lines under Ford's direction to include French, Modern and Italian, as well as Early American. A modernization and remodeling project will be undertaken as a part of an expansion program.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Sir:

The practice of merchants of permitting change accounts to be opened by dependents under twenty-one years of age—without the consent or even knowledge of their parents is becoming more and more prevalent. This, to my mind, is a deplorable and even criminal practice that very definitely undermines the morale and training of the youth of our wonderful country. These young people are the future of America. They will be the leaders tomorrow. Unless they are given every opportunity to practice frugality and abstinence there will be no need for our merchants to sell anything to anyone.

Selfishness and greed are two of the least desirable traits of men in our present day society. Until we all realize that there are values and things more important to live up to than will no longer be a United States of America. Until we can begin to think of the welfare of others—to transfer our desires from self to our associates we will never live a successful and worthwhile life.

It is glaringly apparent why the practice of allowing change accounts is so prevalent—encouraged—so that the merchants can make money in a most expeditious and unethical manner.

Not many years have passed since "cash and carry" was the rule. Just because the U.S. and State Governments indulge in deficit spending there is no reason or necessity for all families and communities to be so indulgent.

We, the people, do America and until we do what is right

Aube Retires After 20 Years Navy Service

BAYSIDE — M. H. Aube of 1409 Pearl Street, retired as an aviation machinist's mate first class after 20 years active military service. He plans to work for a firm in the Virginia Beach area.

Aube began his military career in 1944. His duty stations include duty aboard the USS John Land, Sand Bay, Alaska; NAS, Niagara, New York & NARTU Norfolk.

During the retirement ceremony at the Norfolk Naval Air Station, a letter of commendation for outstanding performance was read by Captain G. R. Critchfield, NARTU's Skipper. In carrying out his duties as Aviation Safety Assistant, Aube assisted in the conduct of the safe driving program which resulted in a perfect score, safety wise.

As Chairman of the Enlisted Safety Committee, Aube submitted associated reports that were recognized by the Chief of Naval Air Reserve Training and promulgated to all NARESTRACOM stations as an example to be followed. Aube's efforts materially supported the safety record of this command and were a definite factor in winning the coveted Naval Air Association Safety Trophy Award for 1964. Captain Critchfield added his personal thanks for an outstanding job well done.

Service In The News

Boys and girls—how about joining Uncle Sam's team? How? Well, each week, take a dime or quarter from your allowance and buy a United States Savings Stamp at the post office, or on Stamp Day at school. Savings Stamps lead to Savings Bonds—and they lead to big things in your future. With your first stamp, you will become a Junior Astronaut. When your album is filled, and you exchange it for a Savings Bond, you receive a beautiful certificate making you a "Space Minute Man." Buy Savings Stamps!

Mother—here's a good way to get that youngster of yours interested in saving money. From his allowance, encourage him to buy a United States Savings Stamp each week—either at the post office or on Stamp Day at school. The first stamp purchased makes him a Junior Astronaut—and with his first filled album turned in for a bond, he will receive a free "Space Minute Man" certificate. Start your children saving this exciting way—with U.S. Savings Stamps.

Say, boys and girls—that spare money of yours can buy United States Savings Stamps—and Savings Stamps can buy a Bond. Buy Savings Stamps at the post office or at school—and become a Junior Astronaut!

Maine Lance Corporal Samuel E. Tillitt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel E. Tillitt, Jr. of 536 Sharp St., and Second Lt. Patrick G. Mitchell, son of Navy Captain (ret.) and Mrs. S. G. Mitchell of 917 Bobolink Dr. participated in a three-day live weapon firing exercise with simulated combat conditions as members of the First Battalion, Seventh Marine Regiment, First Marine Division, Camp Pendleton, Calif.

Say, Boys and Girls—a little saved out of your allowance each week can mean a lot someday. Buy United States Savings Stamps at your post office or your school—and be a Junior Astronaut.

"New Interns" At Princess

The "NEW Interns," exciting new Columbia Pictures release, arrives Wednesday at the Princess Theatre, reportedly a breathless and exciting drama of young people—whose world is continually rocked by the explosive excitement that is to be found in their own work, and which directly affects their days and nights.

Produced by Robert Cohn, "The NEW Interns" is said to be a swiftly-paced screen entertainment whose frank compelling story, really a composite of many, details the private and professional problems of young doctors struggling to complete their year of internship, and the nurses about them. It examines, too, such sensitive topics as sterility, rape and juvenile delinquency.

Starred in "The NEW Interns" are Michael Callan, Dean Jones, Telly Savalas, Barbara Eden, Stefanie Powers, Kay Stevens, Inger Stevens as Nancy and newcomer George Segal. Callan plays a brash young girl-chaser, a would-be wolf who runs into—and is delightfully tamed by—pert blonde Barbara Eden, as a student nurse who knows more about man-woman excitement than the medical text books.

Telly Savalas appears as the hard-bitten chief of staff who reserves his biggest growls for a rebellious young intern, but is perfectly willing to fight with anyone. Miss Powers is seen as a young nurse wed to an obstetrician, played by Dean Jones, who is unable to give her the babies they both desire, their marriage is headed for the rocks.

Kay Stevens, also appearing as a nurse, hostesses the "baby party" which turns into a wall-to-wall brawl and newcomer George Segal also stars, as a rebellious young doctor in love with Inger Stevens as Nancy. Miss Stevens plays a social worker who is raped by three young hoodlums and loses her sanity.

The task of giving unity and depth to such a story, with its plots and sub-plots, was entrusted to John Rich, one of Hollywood's most promising new directorial talents. The screenplay was written by Wilton Schiller, based upon characters from the best-selling novel "The Interns," by Richard Frede.

SPECIAL TV SHOW FILLED WITH STARS

Dean Martin, Al Hirt and special guest Eydie Gorme will share the star spotlight in "Your All-Time Favorite Songs," a full-hour Thanksgiving Day special, to be broadcast in color over the NBC-TV Network Thursday, Nov. 26 (7:30-8:30 p.m. EST).

Mohasco Industries will sponsor the program, marking the fifth consecutive year the company has sponsored a Thanksgiving special on NBC.

The program will be devoted to 25 of the public's all-time favorite songs, which have been selected by persons from all 50 states in a poll conducted by Reader's Digest.

"Your All-Time Favorite Songs" will be produced by Roger Gimbel and directed by Dwight Hemion. Don Van Atta is the associate producer. Frank Peppiatt and John Aylesworth are the writers, with the orchestra under the direction of Jerry Fielding. Nick Castle is choreographer and Carolyn Raskin, production associate.

Banker Will Hear Hardy

VIRGINIA BEACH—Bankers from Virginia Beach will join with those from Norfolk, Portsmouth, Chesapeake, and Suffolk in attending a dinner meeting on Wednesday, October 14 at the Lafayette Yacht Club.

Guest speaker for the meeting will be the Honorable Porter Hardy, Jr., Congressman from the Second District. Mr. Hardy has chosen for his topic "Viet Nam."

The meeting is being co-sponsored by the Forum and Seminar Committee of the Women's Committee of the Norfolk-Portsmouth Chapter, American Institute of Banking.

K. James Crouch, Jr., Citizens Trust Company, Portsmouth, is Chairman of the Forum and Seminar Committee. Chairman of the Women's Committee is Mrs. Donald Rudy of the Southern Bank of Norfolk.

Youth Attend "Fall Rally"

BAYSIDE — The Youth Fellowship of the BaySide Christian Church attended a "Fall Rally" October 4, at Oakland Church, Chuckatuck. They were accompanied by the pastor Rev. Earl Farrell and their adult counselors, Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Smith, Jr. At the rally which included 35 churches in the Eastern Virginia Conference, Bayside was cited for reaching all but three of the goals set by the conference.

Sunday night the Youth Fellowship held their regular meeting at the church with Circle No. 2 serving sandwiches, cookies, drinks. Games and prizes followed. Mrs. Earl Farrell is the leader of Circle No. 2.

The Official Board of the Church met October 5, with the chairman, W. D. Nagg, presiding. A nominating committee was appointed to bring in new church officers.

Circle No. 1 met October 6, at 10:30 a.m. with Mrs. James DeCreny, 837 Lin Bay Drive. Mrs. Doris Liverman is the Circle leader.

The Churchmen's Fellowship held their regular supper meeting October 8, at 7 p.m. The Youth Fellowship of the church served the supper to the men.

Mrs. Margaret Trouland, choir director of the children's choir of the church, has rescheduled choir practice to Saturdays at 1:00 and 2:00 p.m. for the Carol and Chancel choirs.

The Bayside Christian Church is back on two services scheduled on Sunday mornings. The first worship service is at 9:45 a.m. and the second worship service at 11 a.m., with Sunday School at 9:45 a.m.

The church will observe "Christian Missionary Association Sunday in the Eastern Virginia Conference. This organization helps new churches get started, helps with building churches and also helps older churches whose membership often moves in newer sections.

Membership in the conference is $10.00 for men and organizations. $5.00 for ladies. Each year a goal is set by the church for this particular Sunday.

Rotarians To Hear Automobile Exec.

VIRGINIA BEACH — H. D. Richardson, Richmond Ford district sales manager, will address the Virginia Beach Rotary Club at the Black Angus restaurant on Thursday evening, October 15.

Richardson will discuss automotive marketing strategy for the 1965 model car year just getting under way. Title of his talk will be, "We're Getting Younger All the Time." The meeting will begin at 6:30 p.m.

A 17-year sales veteran of Ford Motor Company, Richardson was appointed to his present position in mid-1963. He is responsible for the sale of Ford cars, trucks and replacement parts in southern Virginia and the eastern half of North Carolina.

Trantwood P-TA Meets Wednesday

GREAT NECK — Trantwood Elementary School PTA will hold an open meeting Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the school cafeteria.

The agenda will include the adoption of by-laws and the election of officers.

An open house will also be held so that parents may meet the teachers in the classrooms.

UCF Goal Exceeded

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Virginia Beach Borough United Community Fund has drawn to a close. It ended this week with $5675 collected. The goal was $5500. This marks the first time that the borough has gone over the goal.

The restaurants were able to collect 112 per cent of their goal. The hotel-motel drive made 97 per cent, and the 31 small business unit workers collected 105 per cent.

UCF Co-Chairman Joe Crosswhite attributes the huge success to one of the best business years, more enthusiasm, and the fact that the UCF is a good investment. "Over $200,000 are being spent in the city each year by the various UCF agencies," said Crosswhite.

Totals for the drive came to $2300 for small business, $1078 for restaurants, and $2297 for the hotel-motel drive.

The Virginia Beach Borough drive started and ended before other area drives have begun because of the seasonal nature of its business.

Church To Hold Revival Meeting

LYNNHAVEN — Lynnhaven Presbyterian Church of 2718 Potter Road, will hold a revival 18-23 October, each evening from 7:30-8:30 p.m.

The Revival Services will be conducted as a Joint Father-Son effort. Reverend Marion R. Webb, Jr., will deliver the nightly message and Mr. Marion R. Webb, Sr., will lead the gospel singing.

Lynnhaven Presbyterian choir will also take part in the services under the direction of the church's organist, Mrs. C. Jacobson.

The Virginia Beach Fire Department's DUWK pulls alongside the burning "Ruby Ann" in Broad Bay Tuesday about 3:30 p.m. Flames had already consumed the entire cabin. (Photo by Reed Godfrey)

Sheets of flame leap upward from the 35-foot boat, curling into dense black smoke. (Photo by Reed Godfrey)

Co-owner E. K. Voliva volunteered to wade back to his destroyed boat to take this photo of the aftermath for Sun-News.

JINXED BOAT BURNS IN BAY

BROAD BAY — The 35-foot "Ruby Ann," valued at about $6,500, burned in Broad Bay Tuesday afternoon. Aboard were co-owners E. K. Voliva of Princess Anne Plaza and Colson Brothers of Oceana.

"We bought the boat on a 13th of a month," said Voliva, "and here this happened on a 13th. We'd just taken the boat off the railway and were heading to Long Creek to tie-up. I noticed gasoline leaking. Turned the bilge pump on and she just flared-up."

The two men beached the boat near No. 5 buoy in the Narrows. They tried to extinguish the fire with CO2. But the fire was out of control.

The Virginia Beach Fire department was unable to get a truck close to the burning boat, so the city's fire-fighting DUWK had to go it alone. This was the first time the DUWK had been used to fight a boat fire.

Pumping 500 gallons of water a minute, the DUWK soon had the fire out and the boat sunk in two feet of water.

There were no injuries to either man aboard. However Voliva told Sun-News that his legs were stinging from the intense heat.

BOND ACT TO BE AIRED

NORFOLK — The Commission studying the state Revenue Bond Act has scheduled public hearings in Hampton and Norfolk Tuesday. The Commission was created by the General Assembly of Virginia at its 1964 Session, and was directed to study matters relating to toll charges on projects financed under the State Revenue Bond Act.

The toll projects included in the study are: Robert O. Norris, Jr. Bridge, George P. Coleman Bridge, Hampton Roads Bridge-Tunnel and the James River Bridge System. The members of the Commission recently conducted an on-sight inspection of these facilities.

The hearings will be held in the auditorium of Jefferson Davis Junior High School in Hampton at 9:00 a.m. and the auditorium of the Norfolk Public Library, Norfolk, at 2:00 p.m.

All interested persons, groups and organizations are invited to attend the hearings and present their views on matters pertaining to the study.

Those desiring to speak at the hearings are requested to notify the Secretary, John B. Boatwright, Jr., State Capitol, Richmond, Virginia. Those who do not wish to speak but desire to express their views may submit to the Secretary twelve copies of such information as they desire the Commission to consider.

ARE LECTURE THIS SUNDAY

VIRGINIA BEACH — A lecture on "The Psychedelic Experience—Pros and Cons" will be given at the Association for Research and Enlightenment headquarters, 67th Street and Atlantic Avenue October 18 at 3:30 p.m. by Bryant Reeve.

Reeve is an engineer, a graduate of Yale and M.I.T. Since his retirement from activity in his profession he and his wife have made a hobby of the study of psychic phenomena. They have authored a book on UFO phenomena and lectured widely on their investigations in this field. Reeve will answer questions after his lecture on his psychedelic experience.

Following this lecture in the regular Sunday Forum series, a week's Conference will take place at A.R.E. headquarters, sessions beginning on Monday, October 19 and continuing through October 24. The theme of the Conference will be "Reincarnation and Karma."

Evening lectures, at 8 o'clock, will be open to the public. On Monday evening the lecturer will be Joan Grant (Mrs. Denys Kelsey), an Englishwoman now living in France. She is widely known for her many books on psychic experiences.

On Tuesday evening the lecturer will be Dr. Gina Cerminara, author of two books on the Edgar Cayce readings relating to reincarnation. Dr. Denys Kelsey, a practicing psychiatrist on his first visit to this country, will lecture on Wednesday evening; Dr. W. Lindsay Jacob, a practicing psychiatrist from Pittsburgh, on Thursday evening, and a Virginia physician on Friday evening.

C of C Drive Ends Today

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce will end its annual membership drive today with a "producer's social" at the Alan B. Shepard Civic Center at 4:30 p.m.

Admission to the affair, which is open to the Chamber's 30 directors and their teams of workers, will be one paid membership.

"If the worker or director wants to bring a wife or husband, he or she must turn in two paid memberships," Chamber Executive Director Roy LaMere said.

The social will also serve as a "going-away" party for Mrs. Claire Ditty, secretary to the Chamber for the past two years, who will move soon to Philadelphia.

As of Wednesday morning only 12 of the directors had reported results but the chamber was already 44 members richer and LaMere predicted that the goal of "100 more in '64" would be reached by this afternoon.

Three of the directors, Roy Niel, drive chairman, Jimmy Kitchin and Jimmy Kostopoulos, have reached their goals of five new members each and head the list of "top producers."

'The Panics' To Appear Here Sat.

VIRGINIA BEACH — The city can prepare now for an outbreak of "kangaroo fever" among local teen-agers.

The affliction will probably come as an aftermath of an appearance Saturday night of The Panics, number one recording tars in the country.

The six young musicians who make up The Panics are responsible for introducing the new kangaroo dance which is now sweeping the nation.

The Panics will make a special guest appearance at the Cabaret Teen program Saturday night at the Alan B. Shepard Civic Center and are expected to teach their young audience the kangaroo dance at that time.

Cabaret Teen is sponsored by the City of Virginia Beach each Saturday night for young people between the ages of 14 and 20 years.

MOCK ELECTION AT P.A. HIGH

THALIA — A mock election will be held at Princess Anne High School on November 2, the day before the National election.

Precincts will be stationed throughout the school in order to give all students an opportunity to vote.

History 12 students will supervise the voting, and the tabulation of the ballots.

Polls indicate Johnson is favored to win.

DEMOS URGED TO WORK FOR ELECTION WIN

VIRGINIA BEACH — Nearly 1,000 local Democrats gave Rep. James C. Wright Jr. of Fort Worth, Texas, a standing ovation Monday night at the close of a talk in which he tagged Sen. Barry Goldwater as a "trigger-happy loud-mouth" and President Johnson as "one of the most honest men I have ever known."

The $10-a-plate campaign dinner drew a capacity crowd to the Alan B. Shepard Civic Center. It was sponsored by the Virginia Beach Democratic Committee, the Virginia Beach Democratic Woman's Club and the local Young Democrats.

Brief speeches were given by Virginia's National Democratic Committeeman Sidney S. Kellam and Congressman Thomas N. Downing prior to the introduction of Wright.

Downing praised the local committee for gathering together "one of the largest political turn-outs we have ever had in Virginia."

Wright also congratulated the committee for "this great outpouring of support of the Democratic nominees" and predicted that "we are going to be victorious in November."

He reminded his enthusiastic audience that in 1960 "in this very same building" the Virginia Democratic Convention passed a resolution in support of Lyndon B. Johnson for president.

Most of his talk, interspersed with humor and fact, was devoted to praise of President Johnson and the Democratic Party. Only toward the end of the program did he criticize the Republican nominee, Sen. Goldwater, claiming that the Arizona Senator suffers from a disease more commonly associated with cattle, "hoof in mouth disease."

Wright pointed out that ever since the Democrats took over the administration four years ago the national economy has flourished.

"There are one million more people at work today than a year ago," he said, "and 97 per cent of all family heads are gainfully employed. I don't think it's time to stinker with what's working so well."

He claimed that President Johnson is a man "of deep personal integrity and one of the most honest men I have ever known. He was present better than 95 per cent of the time when Congress was voting on major issues."

Wright closed his talk by predicting that the Democrats are "on their way to victory but we've got to work for it."

"Our danger is apathy and overconfidence," he warned.

Bayside P.O. Dedication Program Set

BAYSIDE — A large group of dignitaries will be on hand Friday for dedication ceremonies of the new Bayside Station Post Office.

Scheduled at 3 p.m., the program will include keynote speeches by Congressman Thomas N. Downing and Postal Regional Director Andrew E. Newton. Assistant Regional Director Howard R. Barker will also speak briefly.

Virginia's National Democratic Committeeman and state campaign director for the Democratic nominees, Sidney S. Kellam, will serve as master of ceremonies.

Music will be provided by the Little Creek Amphibious Base Band and the Color Guard from Little Creek will conduct the flag raising ceremony.

Chaplain H. T. Lavin of the Roman Catholic Church at Little Creek will give the invocation and the Rev. John E. Johnson of Bayside Presbyterian Church will give the benediction.

Immediately following the dedication ceremonies, the building will be open to the general public for tours of its facilities.

Virginia Beach Postmaster Joseph T. Crosswhite Jr. will be presented the keys to the building at the close of Downing's address.

Also on hand for the festivities will be Merrill M. Nash Jr., superintendent of the new Bayside station.

Along with the visiting dignitaries will be Mayor Frank A. Busch and City Manager W. Russell Hatchett as well as the city councilmen and representatives of the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce.

This new Bayside Post Office building will be dedicated Friday at 3 p.m. (Boice Photo)

Miss Diane Mapp christened the erosion commission's new barge Tuesday as it was launched at the end of Mediterranean Avenue. Her first swing was of the home-run variety. It completely missed and she spun around behind the champagne bottle. The second swing was right on target. But instead of the barge slipping nicely off the back of the truck and into the water, it fell sideways, digging into the sand. Eventually city employees were able to float it. In the water it handled well. General Manager of the erosion commission Worth Morse said the barge will be used to ferry supplies to the city dredge now working in Rudee Inlet. DARDEN SPEAKS ON NEW CITY

MALIBU — James D. Darden, guest speaker at the recent meeting of the Malibu Civic League, gave a brief and interesting history of Lynnhaven Borough and the new city of Virginia Beach.

Correspondence from the FHA, VA and Richard Webber, Director of Public Works, was read by R. V. Sutherland at the meeting. A letter to a Malibu resident from Congressman Thomas N. Downing concerning the canal problem was also read. The city's interest in the area was noted by a written report from Webber to City Manager W. R. Hatchett.

Mr. Sutherland requested all members to continue to bring their ideas, interests and requests to the league. "It is only by bringing your ideas and desires to the league's attention that continuing gains can be made."

It was announced that the November membership drive will be held, and that the membership dues were $3.00 per family.

Linlier Club

Awards Prizes

LINLIER — The Linlier Garden Club met at the home of Mrs. H. L. Alverson on Monday with ten members and one guest present.

Mrs. C. J. Hauser, president, distributed bulbs to the members to be planted at each entrance of Linlier in the continuation of the beautification program.

Mrs. F. L. Fentress reported visiting a convalescent home in the area, which is part of the therapy program.

Arrangements carrying out the theme of "Roadside Beauty" were brought by Mrs. W. L. Myers, Mrs. W. J. Meagher, Mrs. W. E. Montgomery, Mrs. H. L. Alverson, Mrs. F. L. Fentress, Mrs. D. A. Wood III, and Mrs. C. J. Hauser.

An informative talk was given by Mr. Hayes of the Cavalier Nursery on Planting.

After a question and answer period, the meeting was adjourned and refreshments were served by the hostess.

For Women Only—

As I See It

by Betty Deal

Home Demonstration Agent

Well, how nice to see again another section of the country. The color of leaves, the food and the people were at their peak! You know something? All those people knew about Virginia Beach!

I am always impressed by the sturdiness, ingenuity and hard work of early settlers of our Nation. While watching the slow process of making candles at old Sturbridge, Mass., on this vacation, I realized again that life required much effort then. It takes 20 dippings to get a medium size candle. Bayberries are gathered, boiled, and crushed. When cooled, the wax solidifies and is skimmed off. It takes lots of berries to make just a little wax. Fats as tallow may be used. Maybe that is why they were often thin. The fat was saved for candles, not eaten!

The exhibits of pewter, glass and furniture Mrs. Betty Deal which I saw there were outstanding collections. The old grist mill which still grinds corn, and wheat, the farmhouse, the oxen, are all visited by groups of school children. I wondered what their impressions were. I listened to a man in the gun shop explain to a group about 4th grade level the importance of a gun. He said, "When the men went out working in the fields or hunting and an unwanted Indian appeared, Mama could not pick up the telephone and call the police. What did she do? Go in and fall on the bed and cry? No! She took down the gun and pointed it out the door and said, 'Please leave.' That's how she kept her kiddies safe." The expressions on the faces of the children were something to see.

It is nice to be home again, safely.

FAMILY ROOM IS "MOST WANTED" BY HOMEMAKERS
A recent survey shows that a family room is the addition most wanted by homemakers.

In creating a family room, the first consideration is where to put it. In a new house, when the family room is built right in, it is often placed in a high-traffic area, between the kitchen and living room, or between the living room and patio.

Having a family room in an older house is more a question of adapting what is already there. It may be possible to convert a den, or even a dining room. With the addition of one of the versatile new tables that can be raised or lowered, from dining height to coffee table height, and vice versa, the family room can double very adequately as a dining room.

A basement can also be finished and furnished as a family room; so can extra bedrooms. Furnished with a sofa, armchairs or hassocks that turn into beds, it will still provide additional sleeping space.

When the family gathering place first moved out of the kitchen to become a separate room, it was called variously a den, a playroom, or a rumpus room, and it was apt to be a decorative catchall, furnished with odds and ends left over from other rooms.

Today, however, the picture is quite different, and the modern family room has emerged as a decoratively attractive room, as well as a practical one. In fact, decoratively speaking, it has become a second living room, but one which is more casual, comfortable and informal.

Chesapeake Bay Chowder

Create variety in lunchbox menus. With a little imagination and a dash of creativity, you can provide good nourishment at the mid-day meal.

A cup of chowder soup is a welcome sight to the away-from-home luncher. There's no problem toting the soup when it is carried in a convenient Thermos vacuum bottle.

This Chesapeake Bay specialty is offered in many homes well suited to bring autumn days. Tender, flavorful crabmeat is teamed with peas in a tasty chowder. Lambchop is accompanied with a sweetened and cooked sliced apple plastic sandwich bags to keep them as fresh as when they are packed. Fresh fruit is enjoyed with the cookies at dessert time.

Sea food lovers appreciate the fine quality of blue crab caught in the waters of Chesapeake Bay—an area world-famous for its excellent sea food. Meat from steamed hard crabs is removed from the shell before shipping to market. Soft crabs are transported fresh or quick-frozen.

CHESAPEAKE BAY CRAB AND CORN CHOWDER

2 tablespoons butter or margarine

2 tablespoons all-purpose flour

1 1/2 cups milk

1/4 teaspoon onion salt

1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

1/2 teaspoon pepper

1/2 teaspoon prepared horseradish

1 cup flaked fresh crab meat

1 can (1-pound) cream-style corn

Melt butter or margarine; blend in flour. Gradually add milk, cooking over low heat, stirring constantly, until slightly thickened. Add remaining ingredients; mix well. Heat to serving temperature. (Makes 4 servings.)

Judging Workshop

Is Club Program

CHESAPEAKE COLONY — The October meeting of the Chesapeake Colony Garden Club was held at the home of Mrs. Kurt Webster, with Mrs. J. P. Quinn and Mrs. M. D. Malbon as co-hostesses.

Highlighting the meeting was a judging contest by Mrs. Malbon, J. Todd, Jr., national flower show judge.

Miss Todd was welcomed into the Club as a new member, and will now be living in Chesapeake Colony.

It was agreed to continue to support the Shore Drive Convalescent Home for Thanksgiving by making homemade pies and other delicacies. This is an annual project.

Mrs. Alvin K. Crandell

Several times during registration of the YWCA Ladies' Day Out Program at LeKies Methodist Church, the women of the Kempsville - Virginia Beach Council wondered if we were going to have as large classes as we had anticipated. The instructors sat at tables around two walls; volunteers, to help with registering and cashiering, sat along a third wall. Everything went so smoothly that it was hard to realize that within the two hour period, we had registered 123.

The Christian Fellowship Class of LeKies Church served coffee and donuts, free of charge, to all who attended. Mrs. Virginia Gayle served as hostess and also will be providing coffee and a dessert, for a small donation, at lunch during the six week period.

Since I am a member of LeKies Church, I am acquainted with the other activities that meet there. Mr. Edward Smith, Scoutmaster of Troop No. 409, was contacted and graciously offered to have his troop set up tables and chairs in the various rooms on Tuesday nights for the L.D.O. classes on Wednesday morning. He also volunteered to do anything else that he could for us.

Several old acquaintances were renewed. When Mrs. Thelma Cleveland registered for the Art Class, we recognized one another and then realized that we had gone to Western High School, in Baltimore, Md., together. Too many years ago to mention, without revealing our ages.

As I wandered from class to class to pick up the roll sheets, I observed the ladies who all seemed to be thoroughly interested and absorbed in what each instructor was teaching. I'm sorry that I'm unable to attend the Christmas and Party Decorations myself, with Christmas coming up. Candle making can be fun, and an art that we can all use every year. It is also surprising how those who have never had any Art instructions and who thought they had no talent in that direction, have been able to pick up their charcoal and go right to work, getting excellent results. I do not play Bridge myself, but from the conversations going on in that room, the ladies are learning rapidly. The Sewing and Tailoring classes were also filled with questions, and the very capable instructor will soon realize amazing results from these women. And, of course, it wouldn't seem like a Knitting class if you didn't hear someone say they had dropped a stitch. But, T.V. slippers have already been made and sweaters started. As for the Cake Decorating class, what woman isn't proud to be able to set a beautifully decorated cake before her family or friends. It doesn't take long to learn how to make roses, sweetpeas, or pansies in this class.

It is really amazing, how much is accomplished each week. We are proud to be a part of giving our new members, as well as those who have been with us before, an opportunity to enlarge on their women's instinctive, creative talents. We are so pleased to have everyone of you with us, and would be happy to have you volunteer to serve on our council. There are such times as registration, making up brochures, or getting some typing out that we need volunteer workers from all of you members. Wouldn't you like to take an active part in the YWCA?

U.N. WEEK TO BE OBSERVED

BAYSIDE — The Baylake Methodist Church will observe "United Nations Week" beginning Sunday, October 18. The families of the church will hold a covered dish supper next Sunday night at 6 p.m. following which a film entitled "Harambee"—translated—"The Great Push Forward" will be shown.

The United Nations flags will be in the sanctuary for the worship service Sunday morning.

Concluding the "United Nations Week" the church will be opened all day Saturday, October 24, for prayer and meditation.

The ladies circles of the Baylake Methodist Church are meeting this week as follows:

The Nancy Lang Circle met Tuesday night, October 13, at the home of the circle chairman, Mrs. O. L. Everett, Jr. in Baylake Pines.

The following circles will meet Thursday night, October 15, at 7:30 p.m. The Mary McAden Circle with Mrs. N. C. Britt in Lakeshores. Mrs. E. M. Cooke is the circle chairman.

The Ruth Reynolds Circle with Mrs. Alfred Olson in Bayville Park. Mrs. W. L. Overstreet is circle chairman.

The Doris Bartlett Circle with Mrs. H. J. Mann, Jr. Chesapeake Beach. Mrs. J. L. Drye is the chairman.

The Quarterly Conference of the Baylake Methodist Church will meet Thursday night, October 15, at 8 p.m. with the District Superintendent, Dr. Joseph Johnston, presiding. They will vote upon the latest building plans. These plans will be presented to the congregation following worship service next Sunday morning, for their vote of approval.

BAYSIDE CHURCH'S PLEDGE DAY SET

BAYSIDE — The Bayside Baptist Church will hold their annual "Pledge Sunday" next Sunday, October 18. High attendance goals of 625 have been set for the Sunday School and 140 for the Training Union. It is on this Sunday that the members make their annual pledges to the church. Total goal to be pledged is $74,000.00.

A feature of emphasizing the day will be the "pledge march". At which time each member of the Sunday School will place his pledge card on the open bible.

Sons Guest Of Lions At Bayside Meet

BAYSIDE — The Bayside Lions Club met Wednesday night, October 7, at 7 p.m. at Shore Drive Inn. The president, Jack Tallent, presiding. This was Father-Son night and a number of Lions had their sons as guests.

Program Chairman, George Freeman, presented Vernon Bryan who showed a film which was lent by the Coca Cola Company, showing the high lights of the 1963 World Series in which the Los Angeles Dodgers won four straight games from the New York Yankees.

Lloyd Gunter, second vice president, announced that the club's annual "turkey shoot" will be held at the Walstonian Gun Club on October 31 and November 1, Saturday and Sunday. All members have received tickets which they are asked to sell in advance in order to assure success for this project. Proceeds from the "shoot" are used by the Lions in various charitable and civic activities throughout the year in the Bayside area.

LAW TOPICS

A PUBLIC SERVICE FEATURE OF THE VIRGINIA BEACH BAR ASSOCIATION

This is one in a series of articles on general topics of law which have been approved by the American and Virginia Beach Bar Associations. These are written for the general reading public. Persons with specific questions and problems should consult an attorney of their choice.

Double Jeopardy

Most likely you can't picture yourself being brought into court on anything worse than a speeding violation. Nearly everyone feels that way. Even so, it is good to know that in this country you can't be made to stand trial twice for the same offense.

"Double jeopardy" is one of the important safeguards in our system of law which makes it certain that once a court has reached a verdict of "innocent," the acquitted person may not be put on trial again for the same offense.

This right holds good, however, only if a full trial is held and a verdict is reached. It is possible to face another trial on the same charge if the first trial ends with a "hung jury" or a "mistrial," or if a new trial is requested or if the judgment of acquittal is reversed by the state Supreme Court on appeal by the State.

A classic example comes from the "Wild West" in the late 1880's. A man named Ball was charged with murder, along with two others. Ball was acquitted, but the others were found guilty. The guilty pair appealed to a higher court, and their original indictment was found to be faulty.

Once again the government accused all three men. Ball claimed his right against double jeopardy had been invaded, and the U.S. Superior Court agreed. He didn't have to stand trial again. The other two did, and paid the penalty for their guilt.

The reason for the "double jeopardy" provision is to protect the individual from being hounded all his life. In old England, where the fear of tyranny first prompted safeguards for personal freedom, one court said: "Were it not for this rule, anyone obnoxious to the government might be run down by repeated attempts to carry on a prosecution against him."

BASKIN IN THE SUN

By GORDON BASKIN

I passed my forty-fifth birthday this week, and I am surprised to note that I feel a good bit better than I did last year and even the year before that. As a matter of fact, I wouldn't be a bit surprised if I'll feel better every year. After all, the fortieth milestone almost flattened me, and after that shattering experience, everything else will be an anticlimax.

My children—at least the small ones,—are convinced that I sprang forth at my present age, and have not the slightest idea that I was once a child. They came upon a picture of me taken at a tender age—say twenty—and hotly denied that it was one of their father. As one of them put it: "If this is a picture of Daddy, where is his bald head!" My youngest daughter eased the blow somewhat when she glanced up during this exchange and noticed my stricken look. She rushed over and hugged and patted my shoulder while she said, "Daddy—don't listen to them. They're just jealous 'cause they haven't a beautiful bald head!" Any father who wouldn't feel better after a remark like that doesn't deserve to get older.

My big girl is—I think—beginning to get the idea that I was NOT born during the Victorian Age. I detect a slight—very slight—change in her attitude. She now thinks that only ninety-nine out of a hundred of my rules and regulations for her behavior were dreamed up during prehistoric times. I can remember when she thought that all of my utterances were ice age proclamations. I have hopes. Perhaps she'll be like every other daughter. Some day she'll say, "You know, it is remarkable what Dad has learned in the last six months!" I hope that she doesn't wait too long to say it. As I remember it, I was almost thirty when I said the same thing about my Dad.

My number one son was born the day after my birthday. I watched him that day and am here to state that I don't think I'd like to be that age again. The amount of energy they expend is something to behold. I might like to be younger—say about thirty. But twelve? Never!

$13,742 Congressional Assistant

Miller's Law Partner on Staff

By David Wise

Washington Bureau Chief

WASHINGTON.

Rep. William E. Miller's law partner is also his $13,742-a-year Congressional assistant, operating in both capacities from the Republican Vice-Presidential nominee's law office in Buffalo, it developed yesterday.

The law partner, John H. Stenger, confirmed a published report that he has been Rep. Miller's administrative assistant since last October. He said he divides his time between his legal and Congressional duties, conducting both in Room 1500 of the Liberty Bank Building, Buffalo, which is the suite number and address of the Congressman's law firm, Miller, Farnelo & Stenger.

In North Carolina, where Rep. Miller was hitting hard at the Johnson administration yesterday, charging that the "sleazy truth" of the Bobby Baker case had been "white-washed," the nominee had this comment on the dual role of his assistant and partner: "But it's never been any secret."

In Washington, a spokesman for Miller headquarters said the story was "old," and "an expose of the phone book." He added: "No conflict of interest exists."

In Buffalo, Mr. Stenger freely discussed his dual relationship with Rep. Miller and said: "Any suggestion of wrongdoing must be politically motivated because of the upcoming elections."

The Miller law firm represents the Lockport Felt Co., of Lockport, N. Y., a company of which the Republican nominee is assistant secretary and director at a salary of $7,300 a year.

On Sept. 15, the Federal Trade Commission announced that Lockport Felt and 10 other feltmakers, with combined sales of $50 million annually, had signed a consent decree prohibiting the com-

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

One of the most dreaded thoughts in the minds of the American people today is, that by some series of events, or twist of fate, they shall have lost their identity as individuals and as a nation. Of course, along with such an event, would go our freedom, happiness, and security. We are a natural born, nation of optimists, having lived lives for generations, in a land, bequeathed to us by an ancestry, whom could be truly called, "The True And The Brave".

This is, in some ways, an oddly fashioned world, as far as its people are concerned. Along with the cheerful optimists, fed on hope, faith, and love, you can find the pessimists too, given to brooding, which begets scheming and conquest. With such a reminder, America must always stay wide awake and strong both offensively and defensively. We must not sit in idleness, and complacency, and swing along with the chorus: "The battle's fought and the victory's won, and peace and joy's my portion." If this should happen, we could easily go the way of a Germany or a Cuba under the same type power-hungry leadership. God grant that the people of America will never permit their freedoms to be siphoned off through some fancy tube of deception.

Never in the history of our country has the "movement pattern of our people," been more constant and more group conscious. This means that our movements and our groupings can more easily be studied and we become subjected to, and bombarded with, all sorts of propaganda. No person, in his right mind, would think of our people as given to cowardice; but we do know that it is easy for happy-go-lucky people to swing along with the crowd. This natural trait is not altogether bad as it can make friends. It has another side too, which is closely tied to habit forming. It is a happy thought if the togetherness cultivates wholesome habits; but should it produce warped and twisted concepts, it can become disastrous. So while we swing along with the crowd, let us be forever conscious, that we can swing too long and too far out.

EDITORIAL SPEAKING

City Fathers Right In Planning Canal System

The North Carolina Wildlife Commission's opposition to our proposed drainage canal system has raised a few irate eyebrows among local officials and it's easy to understand why. Their opposition is not only unfounded but reports on their stand had to reach Virginia Beach via Norfolk newspapers. A poor move, we must say, between neighboring states that have been as closely associated as North Carolina and Virginia.

Members of the North Carolina commission did not contact our city on their thinking prior to published reports and they have yet to explain why they have taken this stand. It was reported that wildlife officials there claim the canals "would threaten Currituck Sound as a habitat for fresh water fish and waterfowl." Inasmuch as the proposed canal system provides locks to control the flow of salt water into Back Bay and consequently into Currituck Sound, this reason makes little sense to us.

The sound already has a fairly heavy amount of salt and the hurricanes this year have washed in even greater deposits of salt water. Yet the grass production in the areas around the sound is reportedly at an all-time high. When the March 7 storm opened Back Bay to the onrushing Atlantic Ocean waters in 1962 the bay area had more grass than it has had in the past 10 years. Long-time residents of Back Bay have claimed that the infiltration of salt into the bay after hurricane season each fall has done much to make Back Bay one of the most outstanding migratory waterfowl refuges in the country. A biologist with the Fish and Wildlife Commission reported to local authorities that salt water promotes aquatic life because it clears the silt. All of these factors were thoroughly investigated before the city launched its canal project. Yet, as a precautionary measure, the locks were still included in the plans so that the salt could be controlled if need be.

Published reports also claim North Carolina feels that the project "could adversely affect the economy of Currituck County and the economy of the whole northeastern part of the state." The economy would surely be affected but not adversely. With an economy that depends mainly on agriculture and sporting facilities, how could the area suffer from a direct connection with all navigable waters extending from Lynnhaven Inlet? It would make Currituck more accessible to fishermen and hunters via the waterway. North Carolina enthusiastically approved a proposed toll road along the coast that would direct motor traffic through its wildlife areas. How could it disapprove a system that would open its resources to boaters, fishermen and hunters who would be interested, if for no other than selfish reasons, in the preservation of its wildlife?

For these reasons we do not see, and we do not believe our city officials can see, how this proposed canal system could help but be beneficial to North Carolina as well as Virginia Beach. There may be other reasons why our neighboring state opposes our plan but they have given us no opportunity to learn why they oppose it. A complete report on their stand may have answered many questions. Such a report has never come through.

But let's consider our own city's viewpoint on this project. First introduced two years ago by the Virginia Beach Development Council, the system was erroneously described primarily as a tourist attraction that would make our flourishing city a "Venice of the East Coast." This would have made the canals a luxury. Their main purpose is to serve as a drainage system and a means of reclaiming low, swampy land now useless for development. They are greatly needed to drain farmlands between Virginia Beach Boulevard and Back Bay. Existing canals cannot adequately handle water trapped between farms and open water.

Agriculture Agent E. R. Cockrell Jr. has endorsed the system claiming a waterway network would lead to increased farm fields by providing a more continuous flow of trapped water after heavy rains or high tides. He has said that such drainage would improve land five to 10 miles from the actual canal. Aubrey Holmes, local conservationist for the U. S. Department of Agriculture, has said the system would "tend to give relief from flooding conditions which now exist in parts of the city." After the damage suffered by some of the communities during the September storms, we should take every possible step to relieve these flooding conditions. Planning Director Mason Gamage has also supported the system on the basis that well-drained swampland could be made available for homesites as well as recreational facilities. These are men who speak with authority and they support the canal system.

We congratulate City Manager W. Russell Hatcher and the City Council on their decision Monday to go ahead with the canals despite North Carolina's opposition. The canal committee had made considerable progress in obtaining federal aid for the system because of its drainage and recreational merits. The stand North Carolina has taken might well kill the city's possibilities of obtaining this federal aid. This one factor alone should have been worth the time it would have taken for North Carolina officials to confer with Virginia Beach officials before making public their opposing viewpoint. The city manager asked council to give him the authority to "go ahead with the canals, even if we have to do it on our own" and they unanimously gave him their support. We are proud that our officials had enough concern for their city to "take the bull by the horns" and stand alone in their responsibility in the face of opposition.

UCF Support Shows Civic Spirit

The small business division of the United Communities Fund drive in Virginia Beach made history this week. It not only reached its goal of $5,500 but went over the top with a final report of $5,675. It was the first time this particular division had ever reached its goal and the workers well deserve a rousing vote of thanks.

We commend these businesses for recognizing the need of the United Communities Fund. But our praise is based on a factor we believe is even more valuable—the community spirit shown in their efforts and support.

This particular division launches its annual solicitation earlier than the area-wide drive because it involves many summer businesses that close during the winter months. In previous years the participation from these small businesses, composed primarily of hotels, motels and restaurants, has been conspicuously slack. It has heaped much criticism on the shoulders of these businessmen, based mainly on "lack of interest in our city and community spirit."

Their pride in Virginia Beach has never been disputed. Each would be the first to praise its merits and attractions. But pride can only go so far in benefiting a city. It is the pulling together that makes a city of visitors a community of civic-minded residents. Pride alone can make a city cold. Mixed with community spirit, it can make a city warm and friendly. The two together can make it home—the greatest place on earth.

We believe that the success of this portion of the United Communities Fund drive is an indication that these small businesses feel a closer bond with Virginia Beach and have taken a step toward being a part of the community rather than standing apart as individuals.

FIVE CITY GRID TEAMS PLAY AT HOME THIS WEEK

VIRGINIA BEACH — Two Virginia Beach high school football teams will try to bounce back this week when Princess Anne hosts Oscar Smith and Virginia Beach take on Northampton Friday night at Virginia Beach Memorial Stadium.

Princess Anne, the Eastern District leaders, were tied last week by Hampton and they will face the once beaten Smith team. Wilson was fired up last week and topped Smith 14 to 6.

The Seahawks were soundly beaten last week by York for their first loss. They will be eager to avenge that defeat and Northampton will catch them on the rebound.

Cox will play host to a formidable Ferguson eleven while Kellam takes on Maury at Kellam. Maury has been in and out but appears much too strong for undermanned and inexperienced Kellam.

The fifth city high school, Union-Kempville, will meet Carver of Chesapeake Friday night. This game is scheduled to be played at Union-Kempville.

JAN RICHTER P.A. QUEEN

THALIA — Jan Richter was crowned 1964 Homecoming Queen at Princess Anne High School, during half-time ceremonies at the Princess Anne-Hampton football game last Friday night.

Jan is SCA secretary, vice-president of Coronet Tri-H-V, the young Republicans, co-captain of the Varsity cheerleaders, and a SCA representative.

Members of her court were Agnes McCoy, Ann Owens, Karen Parker, and Peggy Mannen.

The Drill Team and the Princess Anne Band presented a program for the crowning of the Queen. Co-captains Andy Styron and Dee Crigger were the Queen's escort for the ceremonies.

Andy Styron was presented the Outstanding Player Award by the Virginia Beach Jaycees for his exceptional playing of the game.

Parade To Highlight Homecoming

VIRGINIA BEACH — The annual Virginia Beach High School Homecoming program will begin at 4 p.m. with a parade beginning at 17th Street, on down Atlantic Ave., to 31st Street.

The Seahawks meet the Northampton Yellow Jackets for the football game. Kick-off time is 7 p.m.

Crowning of the 1964 Homecoming Queen and the presentation of her attendants will be part of the half-time ceremonies.

Following the game, students will take a trip "Around the World" in the gymnasium for the Homecoming Dance.

ALL AGES IN GRID PROGRAM

Every afternoon at Seaboard under the direction of James Schaner most boys on the playground are engaged in football in their age group. The afternoon team the Jets opened their season with a 20-0 victory over Newlight. Joseph Selby and Donnie Brock were the offensive leaders for their Seaboard team. The line play was led by Robert Mordick and Stanley Williams.

The Junior Team led by Russell Brown and David James beat Bayside Playground by a score of 31-0.

At Shelton Park all the boys are divided into four teams and play every Thursday and Friday. The league is now opening play after a period of four weeks practice.

The Princess Anne Plaza Volunteer Fire Department is holding a carnival on the Plaza parking lot. Everything except the rides is manned and operated by the firemen and the ladies auxiliary. Proceeds will go to purchase needed fire equipment. There are about 15 different games open between 6 and 10 p.m. The last day is Saturday when the carnival opens about noon. Standing before one of the booths are, left to right, William Mayo, Burton Witham, Jack Sergeant, and Harroll Armstrong. A very short time before this photo was taken yesterday these men were fighting a house fire.

Church Plans Fall Revival

If your parents had high blood pressure, your chance of getting it are higher than average. Hypertension seems to run in families, Tidewater Heart Association says.

VIRGINIA BEACH — Fall Revival services at First Colonial Baptist Church, 929 First Colonial Road, will commence on Sunday evening, at 7:30 p.m. The services will continue each evening through the following Sunday morning.

The Rev. James F. Burks, Pastor of Fort Trial Baptist Church, Bassett, Va., will be the guest evangelist. Rev. Burks, former pastor of Bayview Church in Norfolk, is well known in the area. He is a Trustee of Bluefield College, Bluefield, Virginia.

A massive visitation campaign is underway to reach people in the area for these services and the public is cordially invited to attend.

View Of Virginia Beach

By Doris Padrick

Children love clowns. And having one to meet practically every Saturday morning makes going to the Kiddie Show at the Princess Theatre on Virginia Beach Blvd. a special treat.

You will see the children begin to arrive and stand patiently in line long before the door opens at 9:30 Saturday mornings. But unless you have accompanied your child into one of these excursions to the land of make-believe, you cannot imagine the fun that awaits them.

They see a jolly, rotund figure in colorful clown attire on stage making them welcome and presenting various speciality acts geared to their liking.

UNCLE JIM They never dream he is the same dignified gentleman in the dark suit they may see at other times in the lobby of the beautiful Princess Theatre.

James R. Wannall, Jr. is the progressive manager of the newest indoor theatre to be built in this area for many years. He is also The Princess Clown!

Mr. Wannall considers his theatre to be the hub of all community entertainment activities, and he is constantly promoting his many ideas to that happy end.

Indoor theatres had declined to the point of being nothing more than movie houses where you went merely to see a movie or when you had no place else to go. Wannall decided this would not be the case with his "Princess".

Reinstating the "Kiddie Show" was one of his first new "old" ideas. But it had to be more than just another "shoot it out, good guy beats bad guy" picture show. He tried to select pictures which have a lot of colorful action and excitement that children enjoy, and to that he adds unique stage shows that coincide either with the picture being shown, a community project, or a holiday theme.

For instance, this week the movie will be "Duel of the Titans" and will feature Steve (Hercules) Reeves and Gordon (Tarzan) Scott, and on the stage will be given a demonstration of weight lifting and muscle-building, which ties in with the theme of the movie.

Sometime this month a Fire Chief will speak to the children in regard to fire prevention and fire hazards. And on Halloween a costume party will be part of the Saturday morning fun with prizes awarded to the children.

The "Heritage Films" is another of Mr. Wannall's efforts to bring to the community showing of the classics which are never out of date. Admission tickets to these are sold through the schools and the children are admitted for less than the normal admission price. One of these is presented each month, usually on a Wednesday.

An aggressively active member of the Jaycees, he offers the facilities of "The Princess" for special formal affairs featuring European films to the adult community.

Still in the preliminary stages of "working it out" with interested merchants, he hopes to be able to offer Women's Matinees on a weekday from 10 a.m. to about noon, and this would be the presentation of happy films especially for busy shoppers in the area.

"Uncle Jim" is the Princess Clown to your children, but he is anything but a clown when it comes to his desire to make "The Princess Theatre" a focal point of interest for all community affairs.

Young Woman Crusades For Better Conditions In City's Deprived Areas

Mrs. Lawrence entertains her young wards with a story during Monday morning's playschool. (Staff Photo by Hardy)

by Ruby Jean Phillips

VIRGINIA BEACH — Mrs. Gary Lawrence is a crusader. Her slight shoulders carry a huge burden for the "culturally deprived" people in this area and her small voice reflects her concern for their well-being.

And, like all crusaders, she has set about to do what she can to improve the situation.

Her first step has been to organize a playschool for youngsters not yet old enough for kindergarten. But the purpose is not to provide entertainment for the children; it is to interest their mothers in meeting, talking out their problems and seeking ways to better their communities.

An outgrowth of this move has been the formation of a civic improvement organization which now boasts about 40 members. The work it faces is enough to discourage the less enthusiastic but not enough to deter Mrs. Lawrence.

She hopes that with proper support the improvement group can work through PTA's in Seaboard and Seaboard Elementary Schools in providing textbooks, shoes and clothes to those unable to buy them, enroll youngsters in the library to stimulate interest in better education and in general upgrade some of the lower income areas.

Birth control is one of the major informative subjects the civic improvement organization hopes to stress. A public health nurse spoke to its members on this topic when they met last night at Hairston's Funeral Home. Mrs. Lawrence also issues pamphlets and booklets on birth control to those mothers who have visited the playschool.

Though Mrs. Lawrence has pretty much launched the movement herself, she does not stand alone. She has received the backing of her Quaker religion as well as much assistance from such volunteers as Mrs. Anne Bragg, Mrs. Diane Leaderman, Mrs. Virginia Wilder and Mrs. Geraldine Booth.

The playschool, though only two weeks old, has already gained in membership and support. Ben Lewis, founder of the John F. Kennedy Democratic Club, has donated the club's facilities on 17th Street. Each Monday and Wednesday from 10 a.m. to noon the children gather to play and learn while the mothers gather around a table and informally discuss various community situations and problems.

Monday's discussion, for instance, brought to light the case of a mother of eight children who keeps her family together in a converted chicken coop near Creeds. Lack of transportation prohibits her from securing a better job than digging potatoes. The little money she makes will not clothe the children, buy greatly needed blankets for the coming months, or provide textbooks for their education. The mothers, though lacking themselves, sought means of helping the woman.

Another main concern of the group is the growing number of children in Virginia Beach unable to attend school because their parents cannot afford clothes and textbooks. Apathy is one of the largest detriments in assisting these parents. Seaboard Elementary School provides a clothing bank each Saturday morning but too few parents show up to take advantage of it—and their children remain shoeless.

The PTA's in these two schools conduct drives periodically to raise funds to buy books for the libraries. But too often they are drawing from lower income families and the drives seldom bring in more than a few dollars.

"We don't have much money in these areas," Mrs. Wilder said, "but perhaps we could collect stamps to purchase globes and dictionaries and things like that for the libraries."

Lack of communication is also holding the group back. The volunteers have found it very difficult to contact some of the more deprived areas, especially in the extreme southern end of the city.

"But we are just getting started," Mrs. Lawrence said. "Maybe as more people learn of our efforts our membership will pick up and we will find more volunteers. And maybe some of the people in the higher income areas or the churches or the merchants will give us some support. We certainly hope so."

The organization can use many items in its work—clothing, books, play equipment, household furnishings. Persons wishing to make any donations may leave them at the John F. Kennedy Democratic Club on 17th Street just beyond the intersection at Cypress Ave.

Once A Scout, Always A Scout

Scouting is not limited to youngsters. These adult scouters still believe in doing a good deed and concentrate their efforts on community and civic projects. They are currently working on the United Communities Fund drive, soliciting from small business firms in Virginia Beach. Reporter Jets As Navy Guest

by Robert Hardy

OCEANA — After tons of red tape taking many weeks to wade through, this reporter finally got his ride in a Navy jet plane. It started last summer when Oceana Naval Air Station Commander Dexter C. Rumsey II asked Mayor Frank A. Dusch to recommend a local reporter for a ride. The mayor was kind enough to think of me.

Sounded like a good idea so I accepted.

A few days later, the Service Information Office at Oceana phoned. "When will you be available for a jet ride?" Lt. F. Iorio Jr. asked.

"How about this Thursday?" "Well," he replied, "there are just a few things we have to clear first."

This turned out to be the understatement of the year. Permission had to filter down from the Chief of Naval Operations himself. A thorough pre-flight physical examination had to be given. Later came a day of classes about how to use an oxygen mask, how to keep one's ear drums and lungs from bursting when and how to bailout.

This instruction ended with my being blasted up a tower in an ejection seat. But not before undergoing a pressure chamber

Before entering the pressure chamber each person must remove their watch, pen, lighter, and anything else that might be damaged as the pressure becomes less and less.

Each of us were seated on benches inside the chamber. Oxygen masks forced air into our lungs. We had to force it back out—like breathing in reverse.

Suspended in the middle of the chamber was a half deflated balloon that filled out and swelled as the pressure became less. Whatever body gasses one might have naturally react the same.

At a decrease in pressure representing 40,000 feet, a simulated free fall of about 19,000 feet took place. The balloon grew smaller, the pressure more normal on our bodies, and we had to be constantly on guard to equalize the pressure upon our ear drums. My having hay fever at the time served to make it more interesting.

The actual flight was postponed once because of bad weather. Last Thursday being a fine sunny day, we went up for a look about town.

Virginia Beach from the air is every bit as pretty as on the ground—maybe even more so when the entire city can be seen at once. As most of you know Virginia Beach is composed of five islands. Blue waters stretching long fingers over the green country side; isolated farm houses with blue, red, or shiny tin roofs; clusters of project homes laid out in neat, orderly patterns; all these and more make-up our city.

Commander C. W. Adams, piloting me around in the T-33 jet, demonstrated the flight patterns used by all planes approaching Oceana. While the actual landing and take-off directions must be determined by wind, the Navy is careful not to unnecessarily fly over heavily populated areas.

Pilot Commander C. W. Adams gives last minute instructions to Sun-News reporter Robert Hardy just before a jet ride Thursday from Oceana Naval Air Station. (Navy photo)

Local Units In Sat. Oyster Bowl Parade

VIRGINIA BEACH — Several local Virginia Beach bands and marching units will be featured in the Oyster Bowl Parade Saturday in Norfolk.

The parade will get underway at 9:30 a.m. in front of the monument on Bank and Main Streets.

It will move north on Commercial Street to Main Street, west on Main to Granby, north on Granby to 21st, west on 21st to the breaking point between Colley Avenue and Hampton Blvd. where the parade participants will board buses to Foreman Field for the Oyster Bowl game.

The Virginia Beach units will include:

- The Princess Anne High School Band, directed by George L. Bailey, and drill team, directed by Earl F. Stanley, both sponsored by Hollomon-Brown Funeral Home.

- Bethel Job's Daughters No. 42, directed by Charles H. Howard Jr. and sponsored by Progress Manufacturing Company.

- Kempville Junior High School Band, directed by John Doyle and sponsored by Simile Funeral Home.

- Three units from Floyd E. Kellam High School—the band, directed by Don S. Proffitt, and cheerleaders, directed by Miss Dorothy R. Durant, will be sponsored by C. Knight Company; and the drill team, directed by Mrs. Alice R. Hilly, sponsored by Hollomon-Brown Funeral Home.

- Frank W. Cox High School Band, directed by James E. Ackels and sponsored by Miller's Dairy.

- Virginia Beach High School Band, directed by Dale G. Browder and sponsored by "a friend."

- Bayside High School Band, sponsored by H. D. Oliver Funeral Apartments and directed by William W. Sexton.

Anne Henry Stars In Wide Variety Of Roles

by Doris Padrick

VIRGINIA BEACH — When the Little Theatre presentation of "Girls in 509" opens tonight, it will have in its cast a homemaker, school-teacher, mother, committee chairman, former TV actress, and a holder of a Master of Arts degree. Who are they? "They" are all combined in the slim vital person of Anne Henry!

When asked how she could possibly have time to involve herself in so many activities, she laughingly replied, "I stay busy to keep out of trouble!"

Anne makes home a pleasant place at 506 27th street for husband, Bob, who is a postal supervisor at Oceana, and for their two children, Leah, 17, and Bill 13. There is also another special (to them) member of the family—a dog named "Giri".

Students at W. T. Cooke school rely on her special teaching ability to learn 7th grade math and science. In addition to her teaching duties Anne is the chairman of the Virginia Beach Education Association and the recording secretary of District L Classroom Teachers Personnel Policies Committee. In her "spare time" this summer, she earned her Masters degree at Longwood college.

The Little Theatre has been in production for about 17 years and Anne Henry is a charter member having been in the very first presentation of "My Sister Eileen." More recent audiences may remember her as the mother in last year's production of "The Glass Menagerie."

When WTAR televised the popular small-fry show "Romper Room" a few years ago, "Miss Anne" smiled out at thousands of Tidewater children from their TV sets. When that program was discontinued, she travelled for the Bert Claster productions.

Her interest in Little Theatre is contagious and both Leah and Bill are active with her. Leah is the house chairman. Mother is the vice-president of the Little

Historical Group Meets Sunday

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Princess Anne County Historical Society will meet Sunday at 3 p.m. at Galilee Episcopal Church.

Guest speaker will be H. B. Caldwell who will discuss the decorations and furnishings of the Meyer House in Norfolk.

The society has rejuvenated its program to preserve antiquities in former Princess Anne County with much of its efforts placed on obtaining and restoring the 200-year-old Pembroke Manor house.

"We hope to obtain much information from Mr. Caldwell's talk on ways and means of restoring Pembroke," a spokesman said.

The Mixing Bowl

It's Fun To Cook
By LUCILE CLARK
SUN-NEWS FOOD EDITOR

MAKE A MEAT LOAF FOR EVERYBODY

Give the gourmet flavor of Blue cheese to a savory meat loaf baked in individual portions. It's juicy and flavorful, a fine family meal served with tossed salad, scalloped potatoes and milk.

It's easy to get bored with meat loaf—always the same mixture, same shape, same flavor—so why not treat your family to a brand-new meat loaf recipe? Try Individual Blue Cheese Meat Loaves and give every member of the family his own individual loaf.

Making individual portions gives this meat loaf a new look, and adding Blue cheese gives it a brand new flavor. You've probably crumbled Blue cheese on a steak, gourmet style, and considered it a great treat. Now, add this zesty flavor accent to a budget type meat, ground beef. Mmm . . . how that special, salty Blue cheese tang dresses up ordinary meat loaf!

Tomato juice and onion add their special goodness, too, and you can also garnish the top of each portion with an onion ring. Shape individual loaves and bake them all at once in a big, shallow pan, or use individual loaf pans if you have them.

Make this family meal complete with tossed salad, milk, and your favorite potato recipe. Scalloped potatoes are an excellent choice; they can bake right along with the meat loaves for a delicious, home-style dinner.

Individual Blue Cheese Meat Loaves
YIELD 8 individual loaves Baking pan, 13x9x2-inch OR 8 individual loaf pans
Preheated 350° oven
1 cup coarse soda cracker crumbs (about 20 crackers)
1/2 cup crumbled Blue cheese
2 pounds ground beef
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1/2 cup chopped onion
1 cup tomato juice
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
Onion rings (optional)

Toss together crackers and Blue cheese. In a large mixing bowl combine cracker-cheese mixture, beef, eggs, onion, tomato juice, salt and pepper; mix until well blended. Shape into 8 small loaves; place in baking pan or individual loaf pans. Press onion ring in top of each loaf, if desired. Bake 45-50 minutes.

Appetizingly good—either hot or cold—brown and juicy meat loaf is a sure mealtime favorite whenever, wherever it is served. Brimming with the good flavor of ground beef, this meat loaf truly rates its best-ever label. Onion, salt and pepper are the simple seasoning accents for the beef, and fine dry bread crumbs keep the texture light. Evaporated milk, used just as it pours from the can, is the secret of the juicy moistness. This double-rich milk deftly binds the ingredients and helps seal in natural juices during baking. Neatly sliceable, either hot or cold, this is

Best-Ever Meat Loaf
2 pounds ground chuck
1/2 cup fine dry bread crumbs
1/4 cup finely chopped onion
2 teaspoons salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1 tall can evaporated milk (1 1/2 cups)
Mix all ingredients lightly but thoroughly. Press lightly into loaf pan or dish (8 1/2 x 4 1/2 x 3 inches), smoothing top. Bake in preheated moderate oven (350°F.) for 1 1/4 hours. Cool 5 to 10 minutes before removing from pan. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Here's a recipe from Texas—sounds good and different—hope you might like to try it.

Cornmeal Meat Balls
1 lb. ground beef
2 tablespoons chopped onion
2 tablespoons green pepper
1/2 cup cornmeal
1 teaspoon chili sauce
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 teaspoon salt
Pepper to taste
1/2 cup evaporated milk
1 egg
2 cups V-8 cocktail juice

Combine all ingredients except cocktail juice; mix well and form into patties. Roll meat ball patties in flour and brown quickly on both sides in a little fat. Add cocktail juice, cover and simmer for 45 minutes. Meat Balls in Buttermilk Sauce
1 1/2 lbs. ground beef
1 mall onion, finely chopped
3 tablespoons chopped green pepper
1/2 cup diced celery
1 cup cooked rice
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1 egg
1 can (10 1/2 oz.) mushroom soup
1 can mushroom stems and 1 soup can of buttermilk pieces (2 oz.)
Put the ground beef, onion, green pepper, celery, rice, salt, pepper and egg in a large bowl; work together using hands until well mixed. Divide into 12 portions—roll each into a ball. Place in greased 2 quart casserole. Place soup, buttermilk and liquid from mushrooms in a bowl and beat until smooth. Pour over meat balls, add mushrooms. Bake in moderate oven (350°) for 1 hour. The gravy is extra good to spoon over baked potatoes.

Will Mary wear this to the party today?

Not likely when the weather doesn't cooperate. But a flameless electric dryer guarantees perfect drying weather anytime, day or night. It's fast, gentle, kinder to delicate party-dress colors and new synthetics. And right now, switching to convenient flameless drying brings a saving on installation, too. Ask your authorized Live Better Electrically appliance dealer for full details about VECO's special offer (good until December 1st) of $15 off qualifying electric dryer installation.

10,000 Pounds Suggested For Milk Cow Production

An average minimum production goal of 10,000 pounds of milk per cow is recommended.

By individual breeds, the goals should be: Holstein, 10,500 pounds; Ayrshire, Brown Swiss, and Mixed, 10,000 pounds; Guernsey, 9,000 pounds; Jersey, 8,500 pounds.

Many small herds producing under 4,000 pounds of milk per cow do survive, however, and even realize a small profit. But, the point is, this is possible only because there is so little invested in land, buildings, and equipment—and family labor is probably being used.

Extra feed could up production and profit. For example, an extra 100 pounds of purchased shelled corn, at about $1.40 per bushel or $2.50 per 100 pounds, could produce an extra 100 pounds of milk. At $3 per 100 pounds for milk, this could result in an additional profit of almost 50 cents.

I also suggest feeding cows all the high quality forage they will eat, since this is the cheapest source of nutrients. This may be supplemented by concentrates, however, because cows will consume only about 2 pounds of hay, 6 pounds of silage, or 8 pounds of green chop or pasture per 100 pounds of body weight.

One pound of average concentrates is about equal in energy value to 2 pounds of average hay or 5 pounds of average corn silage. More concentrates will be needed if forages are poor in quality; feed costs will rise accordingly.

But when an extra pound of feed results in enough extra milk to slightly more than pay for the extra feed, it's profitable.

Often 1 pound of extra concentrates in the form of grain, protein supplements, etc., will result in 2 or 3 extra pounds of milk.

If extra milk does not result from extra feed, breeding or management, or both, may be at fault.

The owner-sample dairy records program is most practical for manufacturing milk herds because it provides essential data for feeding and management decisions. Information on the program can be obtained from this office.

Controlled Drying Maintains Quality In Stored Corn

Harvest time is here again—the time for corn shocks and pumpkins in the field. The pumpkins are still in evidence, but in many parts of the state the corn shocks are slowly disappearing!

New techniques of handling corn are taking over. Among these are harvesting corn at from 20 to 30 percent moisture to avoid loss in the field, and then drying it with heated air to a safe moisture content for storage.

Many consider 15% percent moisture a safe level for storage. This may be all right in the Midwest, but with our warmer temperatures it is best to dry corn to approximately 13% percent to avoid storage problems.

For corn, of course, can be stored at a higher moisture level. Molds and insects become active when the temperature and moisture levels are favorable for their growth.

We do not want to dry corn more than is necessary for safe storage, nor at higher temperatures than can be tolerated from the standpoint of maintaining quality.

The August issue of the "Agricultural Engineering Journal" describes goals for drying corn. These are: to store grain at as high a moisture content as is safe, with a minimum of handling, zero deterioration, minimum grade change, and low overhead cost.

In addition to molds and insects, there are deteriorating processes in the grain itself—that is, the enzyme action, respiration, etc.

To understand how well the grain may store, it is necessary to know the moisture content, the temperature, treatment for insect infestation, expected storage period, type of storage bin used, and the location of the storage facility within the state.

It is important, also, to know the future use of the grain so you can determine the maximum temperature which can be used in drying. A good sampling procedure with an accurate indication of moisture content gives considerable information about the storage potential of the grain. Care in taking samples is needed to control the quality of grain in storage.

Molds, insects, and enzyme action become dormant below certain moisture levels and temperature ranges. Generally speaking, grain is safe from adverse action during storage below 45 degrees Fahrenheit and at moisture contents below 12% percent. Hence, the extreme importance of knowing the correct moisture content of grain going into storage.

If corn is to be sold, or to go into a milling process, then 140 degrees is the maximum temperature which should be used. If the corn is to be kept on the farm and used as feed, a higher temperature can be used.

Research at Purdue shows that pigs fed a complete mixed ration of corn dried up to 190 degrees gained faster than pigs fed corn dried at 290 degrees. There was no difference in the growth rate of pigs fed a complete mixed ration using corn dried at 140 or 190 degrees. In other words, the pigs fed corn dried at 290 degrees gained slower than those fed corn dried at a lower temperature.

It appears that 180 to 190 degrees is about the maximum temperature to be used in drying corn to be used for livestock. It should be emphasized that corn to be sold should be dried at a maximum of 140 degrees.

New Type Flower Bed Increased Production

A new type of flower bed which gives twice as many rose blooms per week all season and doubles production of marigolds, zinnias, and other flowers has been designed and tested at VPI.

Basically, the bed is a mass of soil enclosed in black plastic.

It has tile drainage in the bottom, on top of the plastic. Watering is done by a hose connected to a float valve that keeps a constant water level in the tile pipe. Watering of roots of plants is actually done by capillary action.

State Jaycee Leader Is Bayside Guest

BAYSIDE — James E. Douglas, vice president of Region One of the Virginia Junior Chamber of Commerce, will be a special guest at a meeting of the Bayside Jaycees Wednesday.

The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. at Charlie's Seafood Restaurant on Shore Drive.

The Bayside Chapter held an orientation meeting last Wednesday with the Suffolk Jaycees conducting the program. The Bayside group will conduct a similar orientation program for the Portsmouth Jaycees on October 21.

Betty Davis New DE President

VIRGINIA BEACH — Betty Davis has been elected president of the Princess Anne Chapter of the Distributive Education Clubs of America.

Other officers are Joe Webb, vice president; John Joyce, second vice president; Lynda Williams, secretary; Margaret Irish, treasurer; Sue Koblenz, reporter; Margie Brewton, historian; and David Kern, parliamentarian.

The Distributive Education Club is an organization for students aiming at careers in retailing, merchandising and service organizations.

Officers will be installed at a special ceremony to be held at Princess Anne High School.

AUTHOR DISCUSSES NOVEL WITH FILM VERSION STAR

(Starts Wednesday at the Beach Theatre.)

It is not often that a motion picture star, recreating the principal role of a world-famous novel, is able to get the advice and suggestions of the man who wrote the book, particularly if that man is as reserved and difficult to get at as the distinguished author, W. Somerset Maugham.

Laurence Harvey was fortunate in this respect. The actor co-stars with Kim Novak in the screen version of Maugham's novel, "Of Human Bondage," one of the most famous works of modern literature, presented by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer in association with Seven Arts Productions. The picture was filmed on locations in Dublin and during a period in which Harvey was not required in front of the cameras, he was delighted to accept an invitation to visit Mr. Maugham at the latter's home in Cap Ferrat on the French Riviera.

In receiving Harvey in his home, the 90-year-old novelist not only opened the door to a treasure house filled with memories of half-a-century of traveling around the world, he also released the spring on memories he had thought long forgotten.

"I have not re-read 'Of Human Bondage' since it was published in 1915," Maugham told Harvey over lunch, served in the vast dining room where he has entertained presidents and prime ministers, kings and consorts. "The book contains a mass of memories, some of them so painful that I have wanted to forget them."

Maugham considers the novel, by his own admission the story of his tormented youth, to be his greatest work. "I am proud of the fact that the original manuscript is in the Library of Congress in Washington," he said. The author and actor discussed at great length the character of Philip Carey, whom Harvey portrays in the film. In the story, Philip is described as having been orphaned at an early age, and he is shown as a medical student at a hospital in London, both facts of which were true of Maugham's own life. Philip is shy, withdrawn and highly sensitive because of a physical affliction. This, too, was young "Willie" Maugham. For his book, Maugham changed his affliction of stuttering to a club-foot in order to avoid too obvious a resemblance.

Harvey explained to the writer that in his portrayal of Philip he was trying to emphasize the young man's hypersensitivity and introspection and his complete submission to the cruelty of the events and persons with whom he came in contact.

Maugham proved to be in complete agreement with Harvey's ideas. He bombarded the actor with questions about how various episodes were being treated and Harvey, in turn, asked him for explanations and enlightenment on different characters.

One of the questions he asked was about Mildred, the beautiful but heartless guttersnipe from the slums of London, who so marked Philip's life. This is the character played by Miss Novak.

"Was she a product of your imagination, or did Mildred really exist?" Harvey asked.

"She did, indeed," the author replied. "She had a horrible fascination for every man who ever met her. We were all her victims and yet, in spite of her faults, we could not help but admire her for her honesty. She never pretended to be anything else than what she was."

"And, do you know," Maugham added, "she died only a few years ago."

CBS TO SHOW SINKING OF S.S. LUSITANIA

The development of the submarine as a terror weapon by Imperial Germany and its use against the S.S. Lusitania—an act that cost 1,198 lives and became a major cause of American entry into the war—is depicted with remarkable historical fidelity in "The Sinking of the Lusitania," a new CBS television production.

Robert Ryan is narrator of the WORLD WAR I series. Morton Gould wrote the musical score created especially for the series.

Outstanding among the rare films used in "The Sinking of the Lusitania" is a sequence photographed by the skipper of a German U-boat who was an early amateur movie enthusiast. The footage shows how the U-35, the undersea craft he commanded, preyed on defenseless ships and took only the captains of the sunken vessels aboard the sub as war prizes.

Equally outstanding are sequences showing what happened to the "unsinkable" Lusitania, pride of the Cunard White Star Line, from the time she sailed from New York on May 1, 1915, until a torpedo smashed into her boiler room, sending her to the bottom in 18 horror-filled minutes.

The broadcast probes the reasons why Germany turned to unrestricted submarine warfare in 1915 and shows what impact these tactics had on the rest of the world.

"The Sinking of the Lusitania," like all episodes of WORLD WAR I, is composed entirely of authentic film of the era. No scenes have been re-created or restaged for the broadcast, and no sound effects or dubbing have been added.

The episode was written by Burton Benjamin, who is executive producer of WORLD WAR I. John Sharik and Isaac Kleinerman are co-producers. The series is a presentation of CBS News.

Kiwanians Honor WCMS

George Crump (left) is presented an award from Irvine Hille, president of the Norfolk-Princess Anne Kiwanis Club, for his contributions and the efforts of Radio Station WCMS toward a recent Kiwanis fund-raising program. The plaque was presented at the Cavalier Yacht and Golf Club Saturday on behalf of the Virginia Beach and the Norfolk-Princess Anne Kiwanis Clubs.

PIANIST IN CONCERT MON.

NORFOLK — John Browning, brilliant concert pianist known for the elegance of his style, will appear with the Norfolk Symphony Orchestra in the Center Theatre on Monday, October 26, at 8:30 p.m.

Called the poet of the piano, Browning is rated among the world's top ranking young pianists. He will play Brahms' "Piano Concerto No. 1 in D Minor."

With Edgar Schenkman conducting, the Orchestra will present Weber's Overture to "Der Freischuetz," Bizet's "Jeu d'Enfants," Op. 22, "Hovhannes' Prelude and Quadruple Fugue" and Smetana's "The Moldau."

Browning has been acclaimed a master interpreter of all the diverse pianistic styles. Called a "born virtuoso" by the New York Times, and a "meteor" by the New York Herald-Tribune, in the eight years since he made his New York orchestral debut with the New York Philharmonic in 1956, he has become an international star whose records are best sellers and who appears yearly with the major American orchestras and concert halls throughout Europe and the Middle East.

The Orchestra's presentations promise an excellent season opener for a "sold-out" house. Sell-outs have occasioned a new system established by the Norfolk Symphony and Choral Association. Season subscribers, unable to attend a single concert, cooperate in making their tickets available at the Box Office prior to each concert. Thus newcomers to the area are able to obtain individual concert tickets. Additional funds thereby obtained from the sale of these tickets go into the Symphony's Sustaining Fund.

Tickets for the Browning concert may be reserved by phoning MA 2-1700.

'Rogues' Star In Norfolk Sat.

NORFOLK — Gig Young, internationally known motion picture, stage and television star, will visit Tidewater Saturday, as the guest of WAVY-TV.

According to Dick Paul, promotion manager of WAVY-TV, Young will fly to Norfolk from Hollywood to appear in the Shrine Oyster Bowl Parade and attend the North Carolina-Maryland football game. He will also make several other local appearances while in Tidewater.

Young is currently starring in the new NBC-TV series, "The Rogues" (Sundays, 10 p.m., WAVY-TV-10) and plays the role of Tony Fleming, member of the American branch of an international family of confidence men and jewel thieves who are collectively known in the offices of Interpol, the F.B.I., Scotland Yard and the Surete Generals as "The Rogues."

Ford, Hirt Guests Of Williams

Fun-pickin' Tennessee Ernie Ford and the "King" trumpet virtuoso, Al Hirt, will be guests on NBC-TV's co-sponsor of "The Andy Williams Show" Monday, Oct. 19 (9-10 p.m. EDT).

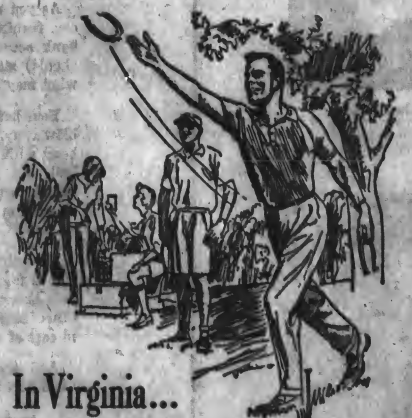

Andy Williams opens the show singing "Show Me." Then Andy, as gubernatorial candidate Harley Hirt, meets incumbent Big Bill Barnes (Ford) for a speech-making session in the Raccoon Corners. With the dancers and singers singing "Our Man's the Best Man," Ford gives a rousing speech based on his record which Andy "shoots full of holes." Andy, backed by the strains of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," matches Ford with such a resounding speech that he, Ford and the entire crowd burst into song with "What a Country."

Hirt plays "Holiday for Trumpet" and teams with the Good Time Singers for "Sugar Lips." Andy sings "The Man with the Horn" as Hirt accompanies him on the horn.

During the informal spot, Andy chats with movie producer Ross Hunter who produced Andy's latest film, "I'd Rather Be Rich," which also stars Robert Goulet and Sandra Dee. Several color clips of the film will be shown. A highlight of the informal spot will be film clips of Miss Dee modeling several outfits from her $500,000 wardrobe for the picture.

After the informal spot, Hirt simultaneously plays both parts to theme and variations on "Caravan of Venice," in an amazing display of his trumpet virtuosity. Then, with Andy on cymbals, Hirt on horn and Ford on trombone, the trio play and dance to their version of "Chicago Style." Andy closes the show singing "Once Upon a Time."

"The Andy Williams Show" is produced by Bob Finkel and directed by Bob Henry.

In Virginia... at a picnic, beer is a natural

When you're relaxing at your favorite outdoor beauty spot with friends or family, and your thirst's whetted by fresh air and exercise—that's the ideal time for a cool, refreshing glass of beer. In fact, you can name your recreation—swimming, hiking, or just watching TV—and chances are nothing in the world fits it quite as well as beer.

Your familiar glass of beer is also a pleasurable reminder that we live in a land of personal freedom—and that our right to enjoy beer and ale, if we so desire, is just one, but an important one, of those personal freedoms.

In Virginia...beer goes with fun, with relaxation

UNICEF PUTS REAL MEANING IN GIVING

When more than three million boys and girls here and in all parts of the United States go Trick or Treating for UNICEF on Halloween, only the older ones among them may fully understand the widespread effect of their evening's enjoyment. The younger ones will express their feelings by saying that having helped sick and hungry children in other parts of the world makes them "feel good all over."

Adults themselves do not always find it easy to visualize the results of their annual cooperation with the United Nations Children's Fund. For their own, and their neighbors' children, a UNICEF Trick or Treat program means fun with a constructive purpose, and the joy of sharing. But what does it really mean for the needy children in other parts of the world? An effort of the imagination might make it easier to grasp all the implications.

Let us suppose that as a result of some unnatural event of the science-fiction variety, all medical equipment in this country was destroyed overnight. The extent of such disaster is obvious, but our medical personnel could improvise emergency services immediately. Help from abroad would arrive quickly, and within six months efficient services would be operating. Within a very few years all traces of the disaster would be removed.

Now let us imagine that the medical equipment remained unharmed, but that all the medical personnel in the United States mysteriously vanished, including professors in university hospitals, doctors and nurses. As in the first example emergency action would be required to take care of the sick, but who would have the necessary knowledge, skill and experience?

Long-term aid would be needed to train new personnel, and this would involve foreign students coming in to teach, or students going abroad to learn. It might take at least thirty years, to make up for the effects of the catastrophe, not to mention the absence of any scientific progress during that period.

Immediately after World War II, when UNICEF was created for the specific purpose of saving the lives of children in the ravaged countries of Europe, the emergency aspect of aid was required. Help was rushed to the devastated areas in the form of food, medical equipment and disease control campaigns. In most cases, trained personnel was available locally, and as a result the European countries recovered even more rapidly than expected.

But what of the areas outside North America and Europe? Three out of four of all the world's children are growing up today in economically and industrially underdeveloped countries where lack of sufficient facilities, equipment and supplies not only prevails, but is compounded by lack of trained personnel.

In those lands, the joy of giving life is marred by the shadow of death. Children in need of high quality protein-rich foods are fed the nutrient equivalent of one American school lunch every two days. With their resistance to disease thus reduced, they must cope with the threat of yaws, leprosy, trachoma and other scourges which have become medical curiosities in our modern world. For those who overcome such overwhelming hardships, the school bell seldom rings. Few are adequately prepared to lead a productive, independent life.

UNICEF's task, then, is a vital and difficult one indeed. The emergency types of aid are still very much needed, ranging from disease control to health equipment, to the fight against hunger and malnutrition among some 750 million children. At the same time, long-term assistance for the training of personnel is essential.

With the generous help of our own children, and the "trick" of coins they will collect in a few days, UNICEF is working in over 100 countries through over 500 programs for better sanitation and nutrition, and better living conditions. This type of aid aims to protect the new generation from the scourges and misery still prevalent in today's world.

Our boys and girls who would "rather share than scare" on Halloween are accomplishing more than most of them fully realize. They are contributing a gift of health and hope to their world of tomorrow.

Your Social Security

A standard joshing that most every social security employee takes is a statement from acquaintances that "I'm sure looking forward to getting my social security—if there's anything left when I become 62." I'm no exception... and I'd like to have a nickel for every time someone has said this to me.

Perhaps an explanation of the method of financing the program is in order.

Of course, the number of social security beneficiaries has increased year after year and this growth is expected to continue for at least the next 50 years. Our population is growing and so is the proportion of people who have built up social security protection for themselves and their families. Then, too, most people live on for years after their benefit payments start. While they stay on the benefit rolls, other new people are added each year—and medical advances in the meantime help them to live longer.

Even so, tax contributions which are now being received and which will be received in the future, along with the interest earned on invested assets of the funds, are expected to be enough now and in the future to pay all benefits in the present law.

Only the first $4,800 of a worker's annual earnings are taxable. The rate of tax for the years 1963-1965 is 3 5/8% each for employee and employer—5.4% if self-employed; 1966-67, 4 1/8% each for employee and employer—6.2% if self-employed; 1968 (and after), 4 5/8% each for employer and employee—6.9% if self-employed. These taxes (we like to call them "contributions") go into two trust funds which are kept separate from all other funds in the U. S. Treasury—the old Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund and the Disability Insurance Trust Fund. By law, the assets in these two trust funds can be used only for payment of benefits and administrative expenses.

Congress has repeatedly reaffirmed its intent that the system should be soundly financed and self-supporting. Even when social security legislation is not under consideration, Congress continues to keep an eye on the financial operations of the OAS and DI program.

Early detection and treatment of high blood pressure can control the condition and avoid complications in a large majority of people with hypertension, according to Tidewater Heart Association.

Rotarians Hear Auto Official

VIRGINIA BEACH — Much of today's market hinges on the multi-billion dollar spending of American teen-agers, a Ford Motor Company sales executive told the Virginia Beach Rotary Club at its weekly meeting at the Black Angus Restaurant.

H. D. Richardson, manager of the Richmond district sales office for Ford Division, emphasizing the growing importance of the youth market, said that 40 per cent of the U.S. population will be under 20 years of age in 1965.

"Never has it been truer that youth will be served," he said. "These kids make up a good part of the market right now. They're going to make up even more of it in the next 20 years."

He added that "the impact of these youngsters obviously isn't restricted to automobiles."

"They buy a lot of cars," Richardson said, "but they buy even more of other things. Altogether, U.S. teen-agers spend about 11 billion dollars a year, and the figure is expected to reach 21 billion by 1970."

The entire economic climate of the country is optimistic, he said and pointed out that "every type of business is growing—and growing fast."

As evidence, Richardson noted that: telephones are being installed at a rate of better than 3½ million a year; new homes are being built at the rate of 1½ million a year; restaurants are selling a billion dollars worth of meals a month; and in the field of education, the standing-

VIRGINIA BEACH — The annual meeting of the Virginia Beach Unit, American Red Cross, will be held Thursday at 8 p.m. at the Cavalier Hotel.

The agenda will include a water show, a brief business meeting and refreshments.

Respass Praises Beach Future

VIRGINIA BEACH — "Virginia Beach is one of the most promising growth areas in the country. It has the potential of Atlantic City and other resort areas. I expect Virginia Beach in the next few years to become one of the major resort areas on the East Coast," said Candidate for United States Senator James W. Respass.

Aiding Respass to get his name before the Virginia Beach public is resident James Logan. Logan is president of the Norfolk Web Pressmen Local 54.

"The vote in Virginia Beach means something now," Logan told Sun-News. "It's not a drop in the bucket—not with about 30,000 voters."

"That's why I'm here now," said Respass. "We're trying to get my name before the public to let them know there is a choice other than Harry Byrd or Richard May."

"I've just spent several days in Newport News where the NAACP was holding its convention. I feel I now have their support."

Respass is a Democrat running as an independent for Senator Byrd's seat. "I'm backing LBJ, Hardy, and Downing," said Respass.

How did Respass happen to decide to run? He was watching TV with his wife one night when it was brought out that Byrd had no opposition. "This was before May or the others were in the race. I didn't think it was right for Byrd to run without opposition, so I told my wife I just might run myself."

Before he decided to run, Respass urged prominent Democrats in Northern Virginia and on Capitol Hill to get into the race.

The answer he usually got was, "Well, he can't be beat. Why should I stick my neck out? Why don't you do it yourself?"—so he did.

Serving in the Navy during World War II, Respass was stationed in Norfolk and often visited the Beach during that time. He now is a lawyer serving as legislative analyst to the National Education Association. He lives with his wife and two daughters in Fairfax.

Respass will again be touring Virginia Beach Monday.

Bean Guns Could Be Dangerous

VIRGINIA BEACH — Virginia Beach Police have urged parents to "disarm" their children before sending them off to school.

The plea was prompted by an outbreak of spring-powered bean guns throughout the schools last week.

Three children were hit in the eye during a play period at one of the schools, police said.

Although bean guns as such are not illegal, the shooting of any spring or air gun within 300 feet of any building or any street is prohibited by city ordinance.

P.O. DEDICATED DESPITE WEATHER

BAYSIDE — The new post office on Pleasure House Road was dedicated Friday. Because of bad weather the dedication time was changed from 3 p.m. to noon. Scheduled speakers Sidney S. Kellam, Chaplain H. T. Lavin, Congressman Thomas N. Downing, and others weren't there. Neither was the Navy Band.

However there was a flag presentation. Post Office Regional Director Andrew E. Newton presented a flag that had flown over the United States Capital to Virginia Beach Postmaster Joseph T. Chosswite, who gave it to Bayside Station Superintendent Merrill M. Nash, Jr.

Poor weather cancelled the planned program, but behind the scenes there was one group which neither rain, nor sleet, nor snow can stop—the mail carriers.

Mrs. Irene M. Martin didn't even let her sex prevent her from becoming a city carrier. In 1956 when she applied for the job, it was the policy of the Civil Service Commission that the local postmasters would restrict applications for city carriers to males only.

"This was changed by President John F. Kennedy in an executive order to prohibit discrimination in all federal career positions because of race, creed, color, or sex," Barker said. "When Mrs. Martin was hired we had a little problem," smiled Nash. "She was the first lady carrier in Virginia Beach and there were no known specifications for what type of uniform she'd wear."

And how is it being one of the few lady carriers in the country? "I like it," she grinned. "After all, I have stayed eight years."

For each of her years at the Bayside Post Office, Mrs. Martin has won a safe driving award. Recently she won the superior accomplishment award of $100.

C of C Drive Nets New Members

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Chamber of Commerce closed its membership drive Thursday afternoon with 70 new members reported.

However, only 16 of the 30 directors, who are serving as team captains, have turned in results, Executive Director Roy LaMere said.

"I still believe that once all of the captains have reported we will have our goal of 100 new members," LaMere said. High man in the drive was John Maddox with eight new members to his credit. Mike Savides came in second with seven.

The chamber now boasts 600 members. If the drive brings in 10 more new members, the chamber's membership will have doubled in less than two years.

Richard Dailey

Richard Dailey, Youth Delegate

ARAGONA—Richard Dailey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard G. Dailey of 412 Lavender Lane, is being sponsored by the Virginia Electric and Power Company to attend the 1964 National Youth Conference on the Atom scheduled November 5-7 at Chicago.

Dailey is a senior at Princess Anne High School, and has been an honor roll student since entering high school. He's a member of his school's scholastic team.

He is vice president of the school's science club, and last summer he attended an oceanography course sponsored by the National Science Foundation. He wants to attend the University of Virginia following graduation from Princess Anne and he hopes to major in biochemistry.

Purpose of the conference is to present to the nation's most gifted high school science students and teachers an authoritative and inspiring picture of the peaceful atom in its various applications. The conference also is designed to develop interest in the study of science in the United States.

Kiwanis Club "Tours" World

VIRGINIA BEACH—Members of the Virginia Beach Kiwanis Club took an armchair cruise around the world via a nuclear-powered carrier when they met last Wednesday night at the Cavalier Golf and Yacht Club.

The "trip" was made possible by Cmdr. Davis Lewis Hancock, commanding officer of Attack Squadron 66 which just returned from an around-the-world cruise aboard the Enterprise.

Through pictures and slides, Cmdr. Hancock took the Kiwanians on Operation Sea Orbit, covering about 30,000 miles in 65 days, in which they flew over many of the earth's oceans, from the Pacific to the Antarctic, and gave flying power demonstrations to prime ministers and heads of states from nations around the world.

Program chairman was Tom Follary.

JUDGE WAHAB RULES RUDEE ACT "ILLEGAL"

VIRGINIA BEACH — Circuit Court Judge Robert S. Wahab ruled Friday that the Rudee Inlet Act is "illegal" and brought to a halt perhaps temporarily, plans for a marina and hostel at Rudee Inlet.

Judge Wahab based his decision, outlined in an 11-page report, on the fact that, under the Act, the Rudee Inlet Authority is "given the absolute and unlimited right to lease or sell any and all of its real property and facilities. This is fatal to its validity."

The ruling was made in a case in which the authority was seeking to condemn property of Charles W. Bastian of 312 4th Street and five other homeowners.

The authority's master plan called for a motel on Bastian's property which he has occupied for 20 years.

About half of the property needed for the marina project had been obtained by the authority before Bastian's case came to court. If Wahab's decision is upheld, new legislation by the General Assembly will be needed before the inlet and its shores can be used for public facilities.

Wahab agreed with attorney

E. K. Voliva, co-owner of the 35-foot boat, "Ruby Ann," which burned in Broad Bay last Tuesday, said he was misquoted in the story in Thursday's edition of the Sun-News.

"I did not say that I noticed gasoline leaking just before I turned on the bilge pump," Voliva said. "Anyone who knows anything about boats would know better than to do that and I've been working around with boats for a long time."

"I said the fire may have been caused by a gasoline leak, but I did not see gasoline prior to turning on the pump," he said.

Wainwright Realty Head

VIRGINIA BEACH — Virginia Beach Realtor Robert M. Wainwright has been elected president of the Virginia Real Estate Association.

The election took place Friday during the 44th annual convention of the VREA at The Cavalier.

A native of Norfolk, Wainwright is serving his second term as president of the Virginia Beach Real Estate Board and is a past vice president of VREA for Region six.

Norfolk realtor Hunter A. Hogan Jr., vice president of Goodman-Segar-Hogan, Inc. was named Virginia Realtor of the Year at the Friday night banquet.

Christmas Already?

No, it's not Christmas yet, but these ladies of the Virginia Beach Methodist Church are preparing for the Christmas Bazaar to be held at the church November 4 between 9:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Proceeds will be used for the church building fund. Besides a midday luncheon, the bazaar will feature a gift booth, country store, bake shop, white elephant sale, dolls, fortunes, and a children's booth. There'll even be baby sitters. One of the more unusual features is the active part the men are taking making new and repairing antique furniture to be sold. Left to right are Co-Chairman Mrs. Hall Snellman, Mrs. J. A. Bessley Jr., and Mrs. J. P. Charlton. Not shown is Co-Chairman Mrs. Aubrey Holmes. (Staff photo by Hardy)

CHESAPEAKE BEACH WOMAN'S CLUB 24 YEARS YOUNG

The Woman's Club of Chesapeake Beach celebrated its 24th birthday with a luncheon at the Cavalier Hotel on Tuesday, October 13. Mrs. C. L. Powers, president, presided.

Mrs. Lonnie B. Jarvis, as the club's "Happy Birthday Girl" came dressed as a little girl complete to hair ribbons and presented each guest with a gift as they arrived—and 59 came to join in the celebration.

Mrs. H. W. Fulford, club conservation chairman, presented a program by way of a discussion with three able speakers, entitled "The Immediate Conservation of Our Natural Resources and Why." Those heading up the discussion were Mr. Fred Huette, long active in Norfolk Parks and Recreation programs and also a great promoter of the Annapolis Gardens. Mr. Mason Casement, Planning Director for the City of Virginia Beach, and Mr. Harold Whitehurst, of the Parks and Recreation Committee of Virginia Beach. Mr. Whitehurst served as moderator.

Mr. Huette poked at length on the great potential of the Dismal Swamp as a State Park. The interest of all citizens in this conservation of land was most vital, he said. He asked that all clubs extend their influence in saving this natural beauty in its natural state rather than destroy it for commercial purposes.

Speaking for preservation of land for parks and recreational purposes in Virginia Beach, Mr. Gamage named several areas as being appropriate for future parks and recreational sites.

Among these he named the property known as the "poor farm" near Oceana. Gamage also stressed the importance of obtaining access areas to beaches in order to insure more and better public facilities for bathing.

Mr. Whitehurst completed the panel discussion by relating how the City had enlarged recreational facilities at the schools, and how schools now had access to recreation which could be

Home Demo Club Having Birthday

LONDON BRIDGE—The London Bridge Home Demonstration Club will hold a birthday luncheon meeting at the Nautilus room of the White Heron, Thursday morning beginning at 10:30 a.m.

A demonstration of Tri-Chem will be presented by Mrs. B. Rogers following the luncheon.

Beach Ladies Attending State Garden Meet

VIRGINIA BEACH—Mrs. Tazewell F. Thompson, president of the Princess Anne Garden Club, Mrs. Fielding F. Jeter, president of the Virginia Beach Garden Club, and Mrs. J. Davis Reed, Jr., Admissions Chairman, GCV, are expected to represent Virginia Beach at the forty-sixth meeting of the Board of Governors of The Garden Club of Virginia to be held October 21, 22, and 23 on the Eastern Shore of Virginia.

There will be a panel discussion on Civic Planting and Beautification supplemented by reports and slides submitted by club presidents. Mrs. Lawrence F. Tucker of the Virginia Beach Garden Club will serve on the panel.

Following the formal dinner Thursday evening at the Eastern Shore Yacht and Country Club, Frederick D. Nichols, distinguished member of the faculty of the University of Virginia, will make an address on Virginia Architecture.

The Eastern Shore is traditionally famous for both its hospitality and its beauty, and in addition to the business meetings many parties and tours have been planned.

Hostess club will be The Garden Club of the Eastern Shore.

FAMILY WILL PROGRAM TOPIC

VIRGINIA BEACH—"You Can Have Your Will Made Free If You Can Afford The Price" was the topic discussed by Thomas A. Sully, Jr., of the Trust Department of the Virginia National Bank of Norfolk and Virginia Beach, at a recent meeting of the Princess Anne Business and Women's Club of Virginia Beach, held at the Bar Harbor Hotel.

Colossal slides shown by Mr. Sully demonstrated the percentage of income tax deducted when a will was not made and the savings incurred when a proper will and trust fund were set up for the family.

He said in effect the estate is the target of income tax collectors and it was a wise family who investigated and made proper provisions for family by making a will.

Helen Dickens the new president, presented a gift to Doris McKinney, former president who resigned due to pressure of other duties.

Helen Sevier, finance chairman, was in charge of program for this meeting.

The November meeting will be in charge of Ruth Newall, legislation chairman.

COX DOWNS FERGUSON 20-0

VIRGINIA BEACH — Frank Cox blocked two punts, intercepted six passes and topped favored Ferguson, 20-0, Saturday for its second Eastern District football victory.

The Falcons packed all the scoring into the second quarter. The first blocked kick came after Ferguson had stopped a 53-yard Cox drive at its three-yard line. Jim Podlesni bucked over from the three-yard line.

Then Tom Lockwood, a defensive back, intercepted a pass and ran it back 58 yards for the second touchdown. Moments later Tom Ragsdale blocked a kick, picked up the ball and ran 21 yards to score again. Podlesni twice added conversions on kicks.

Beaten and shut out four times in a row, Cox has now won two games by 20-0 scores. Ferguson took a 2-2 record into the game. Last week the Mariners topped unbeaten Kecoughtan, 3-0.

Hawks Back On Victory Trail

VIRGINIA BEACH — Russell Chaplain, the leading scorer in Eastern District football, scored two touchdowns Saturday night and led the once-beaten Seahawks to a 27-7 non-conference victory over Northampton.

Billy Doubt put the Seahawks ahead with a 25-yard touchdown run in the first quarter. Chaplain scored on six and four yard runs in the middle periods and Donnie Johnson passed to Lou Hubbard for the final touchdown.

Keith Burton passed to Andy Duer for the Northampton touchdown.

Mrs. Conant Is Title Holder In Golf Tourney

VIRGINIA BEACH — Mrs. Virginia Conant regained a title she won nine years ago Sunday when she captured the women's championship of the Cavalier Golf and Yacht Club.

Mrs. Conant scored a 2 and 1 victory in the finals Sunday over Mrs. Elizabeth Davis, a former champion who was competing for the first time in two years after nursing an ailing arm through 1963.

Mrs. Conant gained a 5-up lead over the first seven holes before Mrs. Davis rallied to square the match by the 14th hole. It stayed even until Mrs. Conant won the 16th and 17th.

Championship Flight (Finals) — Virginia Conant defeated Elizabeth Davis, 2 and 1.

First Flight — Eleanor Cohen def. Sue Miscavage, 1 up, 20 holes.

Second flight — Lucille Penner def. Helen Gifford, 2 and 1.

Third Flight — Millie Coninaki def. Geneva Hofheimer, 2 up.

Bear Hunters Have Until November 30

Bear hunters will not be allowed to hunt with dogs in the normal manner on Jefferson National Forest lands until November 30 although bear season on some adjoining lands will begin as early as November 2, according to Game Commission Law Enforcement Chief John H. McLaughlin.

Bear hunting will be permitted on Forest Lands beginning November 16, but the simultaneous opening of deer season will prevent the use of dogs for two more weeks. Further complicating the picture is the opening of small game season November 2 on the Forest and on private lands in Western Virginia.

Even though small game hunters and their dogs will be permitted on the forest during this early period, bear hunting will be prohibited until November 16.

Give The United Way In The Spirit Of Giving

The big push is getting underway with the start of the annual United Communities Fund drive to raise funds for the many fine organizations supported by the UCF.

This is a project that requires the support of all residents of the area which includes Virginia Beach, Norfolk and Chesapeake. The idea behind the United Communities Fund is to lump all contributions into one fund campaign.

In the past Virginia Beach has not exactly contributed its fair share although many divisions here have gone far beyond their quotas. For instance, in the past the small business division in Virginia Beach has been woefully lacking in its financial support of the UCF. But, not so this year. Just last week it was announced that this division had exceeded its quota for the first time.

Due to the resort nature of Virginia Beach through the small business division of the UCF drive is held in advance of the overall campaign. This year the Virginia Beach businessmen put their collective shoulders to the wheel and went over the top.

The example set by the small business division here in Virginia Beach is a good omen, we think, that this year's UCF drive will continue in the tradition of the past and that come the victory dinner about two weeks hence another successful UCF effort will be celebrated.

To insure a successful UCF drive everyone should be prepared to do his or her part. It takes that kind of effort to make it a success. We know Virginia Beach will do its part.

VIRGINIA BEACH—Members of the Virginia Beach Unit of the American Cancer Society's Virginia Division, attending the annual meeting in Richmond last week, heard Dr. Wendell G. Scott, ACS President, speak on "New Developments and Concepts in the Control of Cancer."

Attending the two day meeting of the Virginia Division were Mrs. Joseph La Giglia, President, Mrs. Robert S. Wahab, Jr., Vice President, Mrs. Leo Billey, Treasurer, Mrs. Wyndham Brown, Executive Secretary and William H. Phillips, Member of the Virginia Division Board of Directors from District One.

The following officers of the Virginia Division were re-elected during the business session Thursday morning, October 15th: Dr. Robert J. Faulconer of Norfolk, President; Mrs. Forrest Mars of Fauquier County, First Vice President, Mr. John D. Buck of Radford, Second Vice President; and Roderick D. Moore of Richmond, Treasurer. Newly elected as secretary was Mrs. James W. Long of Roanoke.

Mrs. O. F. Northington, Jr. of Fredericksburg and Mrs. James W. Sinclair of Warrenton were named honorary members of the Va. Division in recognition of their contributions as volunteers of the society.

Dr. Scott, a St. Louis Practitioner and Professor of Clinical Radiology at Washington University School of Medicine in St. Louis, was the main speaker at the luncheon session on Thursday. This was the final event for representatives of the society's 163 local units in Virginia who

Rose Society To Meet Sunday

Discussion of the Rose Show held recently and plans for the 1964-65 agenda will be made.

Amburn To Manage New VNB Office

VIRGINIA BEACH — Edward R. Amburn, a vice president of Virginia National Bank, has been named manager of the bank's new office which is to be built in Princess Anne Plaza Shopping Center. His selection was recommended by the bank's Virginia Beach City Board, as was the selection of the site on which the office will be built. Announcement of Amburn's promotion by R. Cooby Moore, chairman of the board, was made last week following a meeting of the bank's Board of Directors.

Amburn, who is presently a member of the staff at the Virginia Beach Office, came with the bank in 1937. He was promoted through the various officer levels, with his election as vice president effective in January 1964. He has completed the prescribed course of study leading to the graduate certificate of the American Institute of Banking.

The new office is expected to open in early 1965 and will be located on the south side of Virginia Beach Boulevard within the shopping center. It will be the 47th office of the bank in Virginia and the second to be established in Virginia Beach.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Sir:

I was very pleased to receive from Francis Lay a copy of your September 27 issue of "The Virginia Beach Sun-News." Your cooperation in making this an outstanding 4-H issue is greatly appreciated. I am confident that many thousands of young people and their parents will be quite pleased with and receive a great deal of encouragement and information from the articles written concerning 4-H club work.

Sincerely yours,
Jack M. Tyres
State 4-H Club Agent

Dear Sir:

I have just recently had an opportunity to read your September 24 issue of "The Virginia Beach Sun-News." A large part of this was devoted to 4-H Club work.

We greatly appreciate your interest and that of your staff in helping to develop the 4-H Club program in that area of the State. It means a great deal to the 4-H members, volunteer leaders, and Extension agents to have the support of you and your staff. I was particularly pleased to read your editorial and the various news items which reflect the work of the 4-H clubs at Virginia Beach.

Sincerely yours,
W. E. Skelton,
Assistant Director

Dear Sir:

This past week has marked two especially "Happy Birthdays" in our family, one for my young adult son and one for me. These milestones on the calendar had particular significance for us because we were truly thankful that we were alive and able to celebrate the occasions.

I call this to public attention only because we are intensely grateful for blood made available to us in area hospitals through the Red Cross Bloodmobile program.

We will never know to what persons we are so heavily indebted but from our thankful hearts, and in the name of many who have strength and health today because of this program, we bless you who have given.

And we urge any who can go to the Alan B. Shepard Convention Center Wednesday between twelve noon and six o'clock to respond to an urgent need for blood to fulfill future emergencies.

Yours very truly,
Jean B. Newman
(Mrs. Gaither)

To The Editor:

We wish to thank you for helping us to publicize our city-wide registration drive during National Women Voters' Week. Due to the cooperation of the City Electoral Board, in making the services of the General Registrar and Precinct Registrars available, the city in opening the Allen B. Shepard Civic Center, the School system in permitting distribution of a flyer, the Council of Civic Organizations in providing transportation and information via telephone, and the newspapers for excellent relaying of details to the public, our voter registration has been successful.

Because our drive has run concurrently with other registration drives, publicity has occasionally been grouped with drives of partisan groups. We are sure members of both parties contributed to our success.

Because the League of Women Voters values its non-partisan status, we take this means of assuring the public:

1. We are non-partisan.
2. We do not support candidates.
3. We do support issues following detailed and comprehensive studies on national, state, and local levels.

We believe in an informed and participating citizenry, and our drive was undertaken for that reason as a voter service.

Sincerely yours,
Mrs. R. H. Fisher

Cinderella TV Musical Now In Rehearsal

Pat Carroll and Barbara Ruick will portray the stepsisters in the new 90-minute color production of "Cinderella," musical special now in rehearsal in Hollywood for presentation in the spring of 1965 on the CBS Television Network.

They join the previously announced all-star cast of Ginger Rogers as the Queen, Walter Pidgeon as the King, Celeste Holm as the Fairy Godmother, Jo Van Fleet as the Stepmother, Jack Jones as Prince Charming and 18-year-old Lesley Warren as Cinderella, the first major role for the musical comedy ingenue.

Miss Carroll, who played the role of Bunnie Halper on "The Danny Thomas Show" on the CBS Television Network, is one of television's finest comedy actresses. She has appeared on the shows of Sid Caesar, Red Buttons, Dennis Day, Jimmy Durante, George Gobel, Perry Como and Ann Sothern, among others. Her stage credits include "To Catch a Star" on Broadway.

Miss Ruick's role on "Cinderella" marks her return to television after a five-year retirement. The actress-singer-comedienne is remembered for her role as Carrie in the movie version of Rodgers and Hammerstein's "Carousel." She is a daughter of actress Lurene Tuttle, and has been a recording artist and an actress in many motion pictures and television shows, including a regular role as the girl friend on the Dennis Day series.

"Cinderella" is the only original musical ever written for television by the famed team of Richard Rodgers and the late

WAVY Holding Fashion Contest

Dick Paul, Promotion Manager of WAVY-TV 10 has announced the programming of the 1964 Cassini Junior Fashion Designer Contest to be run by the station. The contest was inspired by the world famous fashion designer, Oleg Cassini, who believes that a contest of this sort will arouse an awareness of better fashion design among the younger set.

To enter the contest, girls are asked to submit idea sketches for clothing ensembles for the Tina Cassini doll to the station. Information on the contest will be announced by WAVY-TV periodically during each day. A panel of judges at the station will select the best designs and hundreds of valuable prizes will be awarded to the winners. First prize is an expense paid trip for the winner and her mother to the New York World's Fair for four days.

Prizes are to be furnished by Ross Products, Inc. 1107 Broadway, New York 10, New York, who import the Tina Cassini dolls and doll ensembles.

COMEDY, DANCING STARS IN DRAMA

Milton Berle and Carol Lawrence star in "That He Should Weep for Her" — story of a young girl's strange plot for revenge against the man who killed her brother — on "Kraft Suspense Theatre" Thursday, Nov. 5 (NBC colorcast, 10-11 p.m. EST).

Smalltown jeweler Sam Morris (Berle) shoots and kills one of two masked bandits who attempt to hold up his store, only to discover that the victim is a 14-year-old boy, Manuel Aviles (Tony Patino). When Morris attempts to seek forgiveness from the boy's family, Manny's sister Maria (Miss Lawrence) responds first with contempt, then with affection for the lonely, older man. After he tries to return her affection, he discovers that he is the target of a cruel revenge plot.

Alejandro Rey guest-stars as Juanito Herrera, a suitor of Maria. The drama was produced by Mort Abrahams, directed by Bernard Girard, and written by Halsted Welles and George Kirgo from a story by Irving Pearlberg. Frank Rosenberg is executive producer.

Miss Pageant To Be Selected

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Third Annual Junior Miss Pageant, sponsored by the Princess Anne Jaycees and Jayceettes, will be held November 21st in the Princess Anne High School Auditorium.

Judging will be based on poise, personality, talent and scholastic ability.

Contestants may not be less than sixteen nor more than nineteen years old on the date of the national finals.

Young ladies desiring to enter the pageant should contact the Junior Miss representative at their respective high schools.

Experimental Wing Opens Season Next Month

NORFOLK — One of the year's most widely anticipated productions by local theatre-goers will be the opening presentation of The Experimental Wing of Norfolk Little Theatre. It will begin the 1964-65 season with "Oh Dad, Poor Dad, Mama's Hung You in the Closet and I'm Feelin' So Sad," performed nightly during the week of November 2-8 at the Norfolk Little Theatre. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m., and there is no charge for admission. The audience is seated on a first-come first-served basis. The Little Theatre is located at the corner of Claremont and Raleigh, and can be reached by the Brambleton Avenue Extension.

The play by Arthur Kopit is subtitled "A Pseudo-classical Tragicomic in a Bastard French Tradition," and played 454 performances to packed houses in New York starring Jo Van Fleet and Barbara Harris, and then toured with Hermione Gingold, and was so successful that it was demanded back on Broadway for a limited run with Miss Gingold in the title role.

The eerie comedy will be directed by Don Viny. Ty Silbert will have the flamboyant role of a mourning-bedecked widow who trundles her husband from luxury hotel to luxury hotel as a prize example of the taxidermist's art. Dean Burgess will be seen as the timid son she keeps locked in her suite. Barbara Elberg will portray the doll-like girl from across the way who turns into a determined siren in one of the funniest seduction scenes in modern theatre. Michael Scanlon plays Commodore Rose- above, a nautical millionaire who barely escapes with his life from a rashly begun flirtation with the minister widow. (Off-stage Mike is a Lt. j.g. in the U.S. Navy and works for Military Sea Transportation Service. Barbara and Ty were recently seen in "Gypsy" and "A Majority of One." Dean was seen as the Dauphin in "St. Joan" and Scrooge in "A Christmas Carol," two recent Wing successes.)

All productions of the Experimental Wing of the Little Theatre are open to the public at no charge. A donation box by the door helps to pay for the show.

THE PIZZAZZ FAMILY

Danny Thomas Plans Special

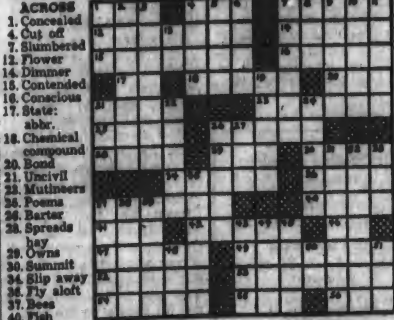

Danny Thomas's first NBC-TV appearance under his new contract for full-hour color specials is scheduled Friday, Nov. 13 (8:30-9:30 p.m. EST) on the "Danny Thomas Special" with guest stars Dick Van Dyke, Juliet Prowse and Piccola Pupp, and Frank DeVol and his Orchestra.

The hour of music and comedy will feature Danny's explanation of why he decided not to retire from showbusiness, followed by comedy skits with Van Dyke and Miss Prowse.

Musical selections include "Keep Smiling at Trouble" (Thomas solo), "Renato" (Pupa solo), "Ciao, Ciao, Bambine" (Thomas and Pupa), "Carolina in the Morning" (Thomas and Pupa), "You're the Top" (Thomas, Van Dyke and Prowse), and "Musetta's Waltz," sung by 14-year-old Semina DeLaurentis, a Hartford, Conn. youngster who won a teenagers contest sponsored by Danny to give the nation's youth a chance to appear on this and forthcoming specials.

Miss Prowse will demonstrate Lebanese, African and modern jazz dance styles. "The Clown Dance" will feature a large cast of Hollywood's top dancers interpreting a day at the circus. The "Danny Thomas Special" was produced by George Schlatter and directed by Alan Handley.

Rudee Inlet

Authority To Study Ruling

VIRGINIA BEACH — Frank Kellam, chairman of the Rudee Inlet Authority, said Wednesday that the authority wanted to study Circuit Judge Robert S. Wahab Jr.'s decision that the Rudee Inlet Act is "illegal" before taking any further action.

Judge Wahab ruled last Friday that the 1960 General Assembly act creating the authority was too lenient in its limitation of powers and that the authority could use the property condemnation for private use rather than public if it so desired.

Kellam said that the authority met Tuesday to study Wahab's decision but that no action was taken and that the group has no immediate plans on what their next move will be.

Wahab made the ruling in a case in which the Rudee Inlet Authority was seeking to condemn property of Charles W. Bastian of 312 4th Street and five other property owners: Mr. and Mrs. William E. Simmons, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Cason, Ru-

Many Groups Contributing To City Forum

VIRGINIA BEACH — Several organizations throughout the city have been contacted by the Virginia Beach Unit of the Norfolk-Virginia Beach League of Women Voters to submit questions for a planned forum on city government.

The forum will be held Nov. 9 at the Alan B. Shepard Civic Center starting at 7:45 p.m.

Among those organizations receiving the questionnaires were the Council of Civic Organizations, Council of PTAs, Council of Garden Clubs, Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce, Virginia Beach Junior Chamber of Commerce, Princess Anne Junior Chamber of Commerce, Princess Anne County Historical Society, Farm Bureau, Princess Anne Woman's Club, Virginia Beach-Princess Anne Junior Woman's Club, Virginia Beach Chapter YWCA and Virginia Beach Chapter American Association of University Women.

The forum is designed to educate the public on its city government through an informative question and answer program.

Invitations to appear on the forum have been sent to the City Councilmen, city manager, the five constitutional officers, the superintendent of schools and representatives from the electoral board and planning commission.

Written questions will also be collected from the public the night of the forum and will be screened before presentation by a committee from the League of Women Voters.

K OF C OPEN HOUSE

VIRGINIA BEACH — Council No. 4632 of the Knights of Columbus will hold an "Open House" for all Catholic gentlemen and their ladies on Sunday, at 2:30 p.m. at Star of the Sea Recreation Hall, 308 13th Street.

The program includes a film telling of the work of the knights, a few remarks by local and state officials, followed by a buffet lunch.

MURDER CHARGE DROPPED

VIRGINIA BEACH — Murder charges against Carl Lee Johnson were dismissed in Circuit Court Thursday by Judge Robert S. Wahab Jr. after ruling that Johnson had shot and killed Willie Lee Hall on May 23 in self-defense.

Witnesses stated that Hall had held a .32 cal. semi-automatic pistol on Johnson and had fired at him once, but that Johnson, armed with a .38 cal. revolver, didn't remove his weapon from its holster until a struggle later developed on the front porch of Hall's house.

Hall also had claimed to witnesses earlier that he was going to "have it out" with Johnson because of the defendant's interest in Hall's common-law wife.

Police Detective A. E. Smith produced a .38 bullet taken from Hall's body and Johnson admitted he had fired the six-shot revolver into Hall's body until it was empty.

In other cases Thursday, Judge Wahab:

- Sentenced Jerry Lee Hutton to 12 months imprisonment at the state farm on one of two counts of grand larceny.
- Continued a case of store-breaking charged against Lee DeSales Nelson.
- Found Thomas Anthony Verhoushek, charged with three counts of possession of stolen property, guilty of being an accessory - after - the - fact but withheld sentence until a later date.
- Found E. W. Bell guilty of passing a worthless check but withheld sentence until Nov. 19.
- Found Eddie Sanders, Smith guilty of statutory burglary but also withheld sentence until a later date.
- Sentenced Clifton Brown to 12 months imprisonment on the state farm on conviction of manufacturing whiskey.

Sick Lad Heartened

KEMPSVILLE — Two-year-old Rodney Messenger, suffering from a malignant tumor behind the left eye, has received an optimistic report from New York specialists.

Mrs. Charles Messenger reported Monday that a trip to a clinic in New York last week had brought much encouragement for their son.

"The doctors said that Rodney's malignancy seems to have been arrested for the time being," she said. "But they still can give us no assurance that it won't break out again."

The specialists also extended the child's periodic check-ups to every four months instead of three and indicated that within a year the period may be extended to every six months.

Shortly after an article on Rodney's struggle for life appeared in this newspaper last week, many organizations and individuals came to the aid of the Messenger family.

"People I don't even know still call to ask how Rodney is doing," Mrs. Messenger said. "That's why I wanted to share our good news with all of his many friends."

David Cassida and Al Bonney Jr. review final campaign plans for Johnson-Byrd Ticket in Virginia Beach.

YOUNG DEMOS SELECT ELECTION COMMITTEE

VIRGINIA BEACH — Johnny M. Strickland, Co-ordinator of young vote activities of the Young Democratic Club of Virginia Beach has announced the following committee assignments for the Johnson-Humphrey Campaign in this city.

Al Bonney, Jr. and David Cassida have been given key assignments as co-chairmen of special events and promotional activities. Bonney and Cassida have been instrumental in all phases of the Young Democratic Club efforts thus far. Weekend rallies at local shopping centers directed by Bonney and Cassida have been highly successful.

Walter Alford, Jerry Etheridge, and Aubrey Watts are also members of this committee.

Danny M. Dillon has been named co-ordinator of the various Teen-Dem Clubs in Virginia Beach. Dillon's duties will consist of organizing and promoting Teen-Dem Clubs throughout the city. He will also serve as liaison director of the Young Democratic Club of Virginia Beach. Shirley Jacobs, sponsor of the Kellam Teen-Dem Club, will serve on this committee with Dillon.

Downing Here Next Thursday

VIRGINIA BEACH — Congressman Thomas N. Downing will make two speaking engagements here next Thursday, Oct. 29, on behalf of his reelection to office.

The first scheduled at 7:30 p.m. at Pembroke Elementary School where he will speak to a combined gathering of the Virginia Beach Young Democratic Club, the Woman's Democratic Club and the city's Democratic campaign committee.

Shortly after 8 p.m. Downing is scheduled to speak at Linkhorn Park School.

The second appearance has been arranged by Ed Brogan, chairman of the Linkhorn Precinct.

Brogan said that although over 1,000 invitations had been sent out to registered voters in the Linkhorn Precinct, all citizens of Virginia Beach are cordially invited to attend.

MUSIC SCHOOL DEDICATION IS SET SUNDAY

LITTLE CREEK — Dedication ceremonies for a new School of Music at the Naval Amphibious Base will be held Sunday, starting with an open house at 2 p.m. and followed by a concert at which Mr. Arthur Fiedler of the Boston Pops Orchestra will be guest conductor. The Hampton Institute Choir will also perform.

The public is invited to the open house and dedication at the School of Music, Building 3602 at the Amphibious Base in Little Creek.

Excorts will be provided during the one-hour open house to guide guests through the three-story former barracks building which now contains practice rooms, concert stages, sound laboratories, and studios in 170 rooms.

The formal dedication will take place in front of Building 3602 starting at 3:05 p.m. After an invocation, Commander John D. McDonald, commanding officer, will introduce Rear Admiral E. B. Taylor, Commander, Fifth Naval District, the principal speaker.

"Eternal Father Strong to Save," the Navy hymn, will be sung by the Hampton Institute Choir, directed by Dr. William S. Stoney. After the dedication a concert will be given in the Amphibious Base theater at 3:25 p.m.

The concert program will be conducted by Arthur Fiedler, Commander McDonald and Army Captain N. A. Adamo, and includes a Civil War Fantasy by Bilik, Song of Democracy by Hanson, and Irish Suite by Anderson; Rachmaninoff's Second Piano Concerto with Navy Lieutenant Richard E. Larson as guest soloist, and the combined concert band and Hampton Institute Choir in the "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

An informal reception in Rockwell Hall will follow the concert. Music at the reception will be provided by the School of Music Faculty Dance Band directed by Chief Musician Ralph L. Aurilio.

Formerly located in Washington, D.C., the School of Music is the primary training center for Army, Navy and Marine Corps musicians. Its curriculum includes four separate courses ranging from 23 weeks to 52 weeks in length. The present staff of 67 instructors and 296 students arrived last summer to open the new school. The transfer of students and equipment was made in two Navy Tank Landing Ships from Washington to Little Creek.

Graduates of the school are assigned to one of the 90 Army bands, 13 Marine bands, or 50 Navy bands serving around the world. The student enrollment is expected to reach 500 by next year.

Thief Caught Red Handed

VIRGINIA BEACH — When a would-be-robbler entered the Fireside News and Book Shop at 209 Laskin Road last week, he was surprised to come face to face with the business end of a policeman's revolver.

Police Detective Harry Seager became suspicious after discovering the restroom window open. He recalled how the same store was entered through that same window September 23, and robbed of $182.

"That had been a Wednesday night," Seager said, "And here the window was found open again and it was another Wednesday night. I hid inside about 9 p.m. At 11 p.m. Lee DeSales Nelson climbed through the window."

"I stood up when he was only a few feet away and, pointing my revolver in his face, said 'That's far enough.' Even though the light was dim inside, I could see him turning pale."

Police stake-outs in local stores are not at all unusual. When a person breaks into a closed store he may very well be breaking into jail, police point out.

Alltime High

STUDENTS NOW AT 32,987 HERE

VIRGINIA BEACH — The School Board announced Tuesday that there are now 32,987 students in the Virginia Beach Public School System. "But we're in better shape elementary-wise than in years," said School Superintendent Frank W. Cox. "It's our high schools that are getting crowded. All our applications for federal aid are for elementary schools."

It was announced that Hermitage School is now occupied on a full time basis as of Monday. The Board approved 17 teacher appointments and 10 resignations.

"All positions are staffed," said Cox. "Of course there's some turn over, as usual, but I hope next month will be better."

Asked the cause of resignations, Cox replied "Because of moving to other areas and the traditional reason — starting families."

The $15.3 million bond referendum was recommended by Cox to be held not later than February 15 and preferably by January so that construction might begin.

"Under Public Law 815, we can hope to get one or two projects — perhaps $1 million. This should have no bearing upon our presenting our case to the council," Cox told Board members. He hopes to meet with City Council in two or three weeks to see what can be done about school construction.

Bus Drivers' Sight

School buses and their drivers came under heavy discussion. Recently a local doctor became alarmed after examining a school bus driver with poor vision. Having two children of his own who ride the buses, the doctor contacted school authorities.

State law requires these drivers to have a minimum 20/70 vision corrected to 20/40. The chart isn't enough, Board members agreed, as it doesn't check depth perception nor tunnel vision.

It was decided to have a 20-driver sample examined to see if there is a need to have all drivers examined at length.

This brought up the possibility that insurance rates might be lower if such a program were adopted. M. R. Strickler was asked to investigate both the insurance rates and the eye-sight question.

New School Buses

Strickler said the city has 181 buses plus three spare ones. "But because repairs must constantly be made, none of these spares are available for use," Strickler pointed out. "We're too pushed for buses to do preventive maintenance. We need at least five more buses so that more than just emergency repairs can be made."

This would still be below the state recommendation of one spare for every 20 buses in service. Authorizing the purchase of five buses, the Board indicated that others could be hoped for later.

It was remarked that there are still more buses in service with "Princess Anne Public Schools" painted on the side than those with "Virginia Beach". The reason that the lettering hasn't been changed is that it's expected all new buses will be painted black next year.

Murden Honored

For his 13 years of service on the School Board, Lloyd Murden was presented a framed resolution.

Demos Open Thalia Office

THALIA — The Young Democratic Club of Virginia Beach officially opened its Thalia Headquarters with a brief rally attended by approximately 60 Democrats and officials this week.

Johnny M. Strickland, Co-ordinator of Young Voter Activities in Virginia Beach, acted as Master of Ceremonies, introducing V. Alfred "Jack" Etheridge, Ivan D. Mapp, and John V. Pentress, all members of City Democratic Campaign Committee.

Other dignitaries present for the opening were E. A. "Sonny" Culverhouse, state president of Young Democratic Clubs; William P. Kellam, member of the House of Delegates; and Maurice Stocks, president of the Princess Anne High School Teen-Dem Club.

Strickland introduced Richard R. Abasalom, President of the Virginia Beach Young Democratic Club, who commented on the vigorous campaign now being conducted by the Young Democrats throughout the city on behalf of the Johnson-Byrd ticket.

Special emphasis was placed upon the desire to encourage young people now voting for the first time in a Presidential Election to join us in our opinion at the polls on November 3rd by voting the straight Democratic Ticket.

NEW UNIFORM SERVICE PROMOTES HIGH FASHION

What Dr. Casey hasn't done to renew interest in nursing careers, a new uniform service promises to do.

The incentive: high fashion delivered to the doorstep every week.

It's a unique new plan whereby career women can wear the most fashionable of working dresses without the expense of buying them and the bother of laundering them.

Designed for on-the-job wear by the more than 3 million women working in medical and beauty care professions, the career dresses have all the styling and handsome details of couture shirtwaisters, shifts, and coats.

Currently available are six styles with such fashion features as tiny standup collars, roll-collar necklines, long and three-quarter push-up sleeves with smart cuff-link cuffs, the seam detailing of raglan-set sleeves, flare and A-line skirts. All have set-in bolts to assure trim fit, but these range from very narrow to wide mid-riff insets.

All are made of luxurious combed cotton poplin, selected for its comfort and handsome appearance. Since the fabric is opaque, undergarments do not show through.

According to the National Cotton Council, the dresses are available exclusively on a rental basis from local linen supply dealers through a service called "We Wash—You Wear."

Unlike uniforms bought over the counter, these fashionable career dresses are custom-fitted to the exact size and measurements of the wearer and reserved for her use exclusively.

Each customer selects 11 uniforms, and may choose any one style or combination of available styles for wear throughout her work week. By selecting two each of five styles and one of the sixth style, she can wear a different design each day.

Her collection is delivered each week by her local linen supplier, who picks up the soiled garment. The dresses are then laundered, sterilized, pressed, and each wrapped in its own plastic bag before being returned.

Cost of the service to the consumer is said to be cheaper than owning and laundering her own uniforms.

For the name of linen supplier who provide "fashion-with-service" career dresses, consult the yellow pages of your local telephone directory.

OCEAN PARK CLUB AIDS EDUCATION

BOW CREEK — At its Birthday Luncheon last week at Bow Creek Country Club, the Ocean Park Woman's Club reversed the usual order of things by giving instead of getting gifts. Since the club's guest speaker was Miss Louise Luxford, Director of Instructional Personnel for the City of Virginia Beach, the club decided to include in its own birthday celebration the presentation of check for two annual awards it makes in the field of education.

Mrs. David P. Graham, Jr., vice-president and program chairman, handed the checks, appropriately gift-wrapped, to Miss Luxford, with Mrs. J. Laurence Eley, club president, and Mrs. Cam Farmer, immediate past president, watching approvingly. One of the checks represented the club's annual contribution to the Foreign Exchange Student Program. The other check, for $100.00, is an annual "Library Fund Award" given by the club on a rotation basis to schools in the area, and Mrs. Farmer, in her first year as club president, had the privilege of presenting the first award to the Frank Cox School library. This year's check will go to one of the two new schools being completed in the Bayside area.

Last week's luncheon was a very special celebration for the club—its twentieth birthday! Special tribute was paid to the small group of women who organized as a club back in 1944, and a special table was set up in the center of the room for the club members who had been in the first "founding few" and who are still in the club. Present were Mrs. George Lyon, Mrs. D. B. Hill, Mrs. R. S. Bugge, Mrs. A. F. White, Mrs. C. E. Everett, Mrs. J. C. Wood, Sr., and Mrs. C. S. Nock. The club's first president, Mrs. Catherine McWilliams, now living in Portsmouth, was unable to attend the luncheon, but the first slice of birthday cake was sent to her after the meeting ended.

Special guests of the club for the birthday celebration were other club presidents from Virginia Beach: Mrs. Arthur B. James, Cape Henry Woman's Club; Mrs. Colan L. Powers, Woman's Club of Chesapeake Beach; and Mrs. J. Douglas Wilson, Princess Anne Woman's Club of Virginia Beach. Also invited but unable to attend was Mrs. E. L. Hudgins, Kempsville Woman's Club.

MISS STANLEY IN BOSTON SCHOOL

BOSTON, Mass. — Miss Carol Ann Stanley, 412 Terry Road, Virginia Beach, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur P. Stanley, has been accepted at the Cambridge School of Business, Boston, announced Jack Newton, Director of Admissions.

Miss Stanley will be enrolled in the Two-Year Business Administration program at the Business School, which is accredited by the Accrediting Commission for Business Schools. Cambridge School is unique in the field of business education in that it offers all qualified students the opportunity to participate in a co-operative educational program. Under this program, students are permitted to gain on-the-job experience while pursuing their educational objectives. Last year, Cambridge students earned a total of over $250,000 in salaries.

A graduate of Princess Anne High School, Miss Stanley was a member of Future Homemakers of America, Student Cooperative Association, Glee Club, Bible Club, Library Club and the Basketball team.

Garden Club Members Work On Bazaar

THOROUGHGOOD — The Thoroughgood Garden Club met Wednesday night at the home of Mrs. C. L. Owens.

Speakers for the program were Mrs. A. H. Culpepper and Mrs. H. M. Jordan. Mrs. Jordan made several dried arrangements and they were judged orally by Mrs. Culpepper.

Winning awards for arrangements were the following members: blue: Mrs. J. A. Jordan, Mrs. M. G. Dixon; Red: Mrs. A. H. Culpepper, Mrs. E. C. Burks; and yellow: Mrs. M. G. Dixon and Mrs. L. L. Tucker, Jr.

Winning awards for horticulture were: blue: Mrs. C. L. Owens, Mrs. J. A. Jordan, Mrs. LaVern Hayden and, red: Mrs. C. L. Owens.

Club members are at present working on articles for their bazaar which will be held in November.

A "Membership Open House" was held recently at the home of Mrs. H. J. Oldford, President. It was sponsored by the board of directors and all club members and guests were invited.

VIRGINIA BEACH — A fashion and puppet show will be staged by the Junior Virginia Beach Garden Club Saturday at 10:30 a.m. in the Cape Colony Club.

The 'Y' of It

The Y-Teen program here at Virginia Beach is continuing to grow in popularity and provide the type of program for high school girls who are in clubs and for those who are not interested in belonging to clubs. The Y-teens and their leaders at the 23rd National Convention agreed that youth have specific problems related to the changing community. These are a lack of a solid set of moral standards as they are exposed to the mass media—and they feel that they are not receiving adequate help; crowded schools which lead to inadequate counseling by overburdened guidance counselors; loneliness and insecurity on the part of many youth who move from one community to another or are otherwise socially isolated; frustrations related to inability to become responsibly involved in today's issues such as the effects of poverty and racial discrimination; inability to secure after school and summer jobs by many who need to contribute to inadequate family incomes.

The Y-teens are concerned with providing the proper atmosphere in which they can test their ideas and acquire real concern for issues and do something about their concerns. They feel the need of personal contact with situations as they are and with people older and younger than themselves as compared to their high school relationships. They need the opportunity for responsible action as citizens of their community through cooperation with other organizations. Volunteer training is essential so they can perform responsible jobs with the YWCA and the community and not be involved in "busy work."

One of the many media through which the ideas of the Y-teens have been incorporated is the Y-Teen Gay Day series. Constructive thinking, activity and group spirit is provided each Saturday morning. We are extremely fortunate to have Mrs. Weir conducting the dramatics class. Mrs. Weir is highly trained in the development of young people through expression in the dramatic arts and drives all the way from Norfolk for each session. There are several vacancies in her class as well as the ukulele and knitting classes. The Gay Day series is held each Saturday morning at the Eastern Shore Chapel. Additional details are available at the Y office, 428-8228.

SILK SCREENING COURSES OFFERED

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Virginia Beach YWCA is offering a six-week course in Silk Screening to be taught by Mrs. Donald Jefferson, who has been associated with the Virginia Beach Art Association for many years.

The first class will be held Monday at 9 a.m. in the Art Attic of the Y at 303 36th Street, and registration will be taken at that time.

The silk screening process gives a professional look to posters, Christmas cards, or anything that must be reproduced in quantity.

Matthews Is Guest Speaker

THALIA — Robert O. Matthews, Chief Horticulturist, of the Norfolk Botanical Gardens was guest speaker recently at the Thalia Garden Club, October meeting, held at the Thalia Methodist Church.

Mr. Matthews showed slides on insects and pruning. He stressed the importance of proper tools and the knowledge of using these tools to do a proper pruning of shrubs.

Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. R. A. Ellis, Mrs. John Collins and Mrs. G. L. Ward.

In the artistic Division the Thoroughgood Garden Club Judges awarded Blue to Mrs. J. R. Goff and Yellow to Mrs. C. H. Bungard and Mrs. D. D. Goff.

In the horticulture class, Mrs. C. R. Maple and Mrs. R. S. White were awarded blues.

All the members are busy making Christmas items to be sold at their annual Christmas Bazaar to be held November 18 at the Thalia Elementary School.

S-T-R-E-T-C-H COMES TO WOVEN FABRICS

Some woven fabrics have a lot of s-t-r-e-t-c-h—this fall. They join the knits and jerseys, which have enjoyed stretch for a long time, in providing a third—or "comfort"—dimension when you bend your knees or arms or sit down.

Dresses, skirts, men's shirts, slacks, and suits, children's clothing, and even yard goods will have the new stretch.

Stretch is a comfort factor and not a size factor. You don't need to purchase stretch garments in a size smaller. Buy your regular size with the idea that the stretch in the garment will provide "give" where it is needed.

Before you buy, ask yourself "Is stretch necessary in this garment for comfort or action?" For example, a shift dress or a jumper with no waistline and no sleeves does not need stretch for comfort or action, but stretch can be of great help in a blouse or shirt, slacks or a suit.

Besides being comfortable, stretch garments also retain their shapes better, wear longer, and resist wrinkling.

This new concept in fabric does not require any new and different care procedure. Simply read the labels carefully for fiber content and the manufacturer's instructions.

One way to maintain decorative continuity with the rest of the house is to let the family room reflect something of the decor of the adjacent areas. You may borrow style and color from the more formal rooms, but the basic materials would be kept functional.

Flooring, for example, may be one of the new resilient materials which range in cost from the relatively inexpensive asphalt tile to brilliant solid vinyl. If the family room adjoins the kitchen, the floor surfacing used there can be continued in the family room. Interesting wall treatments, ranging from the cheery warmth of laminated "wood" paneling, to strikingly modern inlaid motifs can be achieved. Select patterns and colors that carry out the tone and mood you are trying to create.

Since the accent in a family room is on living, furnishings should be chosen to convey the impression of relaxation and use, as well as to withstand considerable wear and tear. Bookcases, shelves, closed cabinets, drop-leaf desks, frames for TV and hi-fi sets can be assembled in units that will fit almost any space.

You can create pleasant visual effects by staggering the arrangement of open and closed units, combining cabinets of different sizes and shapes, interspersing wood-grained surfaces with panels of bright color or interesting design.

Check your family living room to see if it meets the needs of your family.

YOU AND THE QUEEN

Have you been wig-wagging? We hope so! If you don't own at least one extra hairdo, you're missing half the hair-fun now. Wigs are here to stay! Wigs have been with us ever since Egypt. And English judges have wigged their way through trials since Queen Anne. But it took modern you to make the wig the way of fashion today.

Court Upsets Rudee Inlet Plans But Hurdle Should Be Cleared

The recent ruling of Circuit Court Judge Robert S. Wahab, Jr. against the validity of certain aspects of the Rudee Inlet Authority Act came as a surprise to some but we believe he has a point. However, the point should be cleared up and nothing should prevent the future development of this area.

Judge Wahab based his recent ruling on the fact that under the Act, the Rudee Inlet Authority is "given absolute and unlimited right to lease or sell any and all of its real property and facilities. This is fatal to its validity."

It is our hope that Judge Wahab's ruling will mean only a temporary delay in the development of the Rudee Inlet area. It may mean that the act will have to be amended if the Circuit Court's decision is upheld.

Judge Wahab wrote "any such unconditional lease or sale would be, in effect, the exercise of the power of eminent domain for private use, not public use. It would be completely repugnant to the fundamental principle of eminent domain."

We repeat that this setback should be temporary in nature and the overall plan for the Rudee Inlet area should be pursued to the fullest.

BASKIN IN THE SUN

By GORDON BASKIN

It seems that I have spent a lifetime on the wrong idea. I have been hearing for so many years that nothing succeeds like success, that the world loves a winner, etc., etc.

According to what I have been reading on the sport page these last few days, all these ideas are in the bag, and a whole new set of rules are now in order. Mr. Leo the Lip was once quoted as saying that nice guys finish last, but I think someone should bring the saying up to date. The new idea seems to be that winners get fired.

Mr. Berra, formerly of the New York Yankees, is now playing golf somewhere and reflecting on the fact that winning the pennant and taking the Cards to seven games isn't enough any more. He was bounced for doing what he was hired to do. The papers say that some members of the team didn't like him. Ain't that too bad. I guess that it will not be too long before the players will elect a manager. That will put the final touches on a fading national game. Maybe this new owners, decided that Mr. Berra didn't photograph well, or that his rating had slipped. That's all we need—some Vice President of Public Relations on Madison Avenue having a say-so on who shall be the manager of a ball club.

Mr. Keane, late of the St. Louis Cardinals, is out of work too. They say that the Yanks want him and I hope he gets a job. I dunno if I'd trust the Yanks if I were Mr. K. They might fire him for winning the pennant last year. I hope he has enough sense to keep his best profile towards the TV cameras all next season. If he doesn't, he's dead. Mr. Keane won the pennant and the Series and got conned. It is a strange world. Maybe he didn't drink the Cardinals' owner's brand of beer. Who knows?

It has been the week that was. Yogi and Keane have had it and Nikita hasn't been heard of for some time. Mr. Home didn't do too well in England either. It's gettin' so that you can't tell the winners from the losers without a program.

ASC ELECTION NAMES AREA COMMITTEEMEN

VIRGINIA BEACH — Results of the election of ASC community committeemen for Virginia Beach were announced today by Chris Krahenbill, Chairman, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee.

The election was held October 15 by mail and ballots were tabulated publicly by the incumbent ASC committee, October 19 in the ASCS office.

Following are farmers elected to the 4 committees:

Kempville
Chairman - Alex C. Brown; Vice-Chairman - Harold Jackson; Regular Member - R. H. DeFord, Jr.; First Alt. - Gordon Oliver; Second Alt. - R. W. Means.

Spaboard
Chairman - Russell Brown; Vice-Chairman - Alvin Dawley; Regular Member - William E. Sawyer; First Alt. - Norris Shirley; Second Alt. - Edward Up-ton.

Pungo
Chairman - John Salmons; Vice-Chairman - Marvin Etheridge; Regular Member - C. C. Flanagan; First Alt. - F. E. Bonney, Jr.; Second Alt. - Curtis Whitehurst.

Blackwater

FRENCH CLUB MEETS SUNDAY

NORFOLK — The October meeting of the Salon Francaise of the Woman's Club will be held on Sunday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, at the Club House, 524 Fairfax Ave.

A talk, illustrated with lantern slides, will be given on the "Art and Life of Maurice Denis, great French Mural Painter and Writer on Modern Tendencies" by Mrs. Bertha Fanning Taylor, Chairman and Founder of the Salon, in French.

Mrs. Taylor studied at Maurice Denis' Academy of Modern Religious Art in Paris, and uses his method of instruction for her classes in painting.

The French Salon is open to all interested in the conversational use of the French language, students and teachers of French are especially invited to come and use their French, and meet the French members of the group.

The Salon is sponsored by the Woman's Club and by Mr. Pierre Schmitt. Miss Cherry Nottingham, long known for her encouragement of the study of the French language, was one of the founders when the Salon was started ten years ago.

TIPS GIVEN TO RELIEVE TENSION

Feeling like a wound-up clock spring lately? Then it's time to unwind... get rid of the tensions caused by business and the everyday, minute-to-minute routine of work, work, work. Here are tips on how to feel tip-top.

1. Never be afraid to play. According to leading educators, an excellent relaxation for adults is children's games! They make for plenty of laughs, first of all—and a good laugh is an excellent antidote for too much serious thinking. There's a game called Go that's all the rage now... and those old standbys such as Chinese checkers, Monopoly, checkers and chess are always good for some loosening up.

2. Be early. It might help you to set your watch ahead four or five minutes—that way, you won't always be rushing to catch up. It's worth a fleeting bleary moment or two to get up several minutes early in the morning... have a relaxed breakfast... cast your eye in a leisurely way over the morning paper. Then take your time getting to work—if you go by bus, train, or subway, don't run for it; plan your morning so you can stroll! By getting to work a bit early, you'll have time for a second cup of coffee... and a few minutes of do-nothing bliss before the daily grind begins. The result? Less of a feeling of breathless haste, a need to "catch up."

3. Look forward to fun. If you find that at the end of a hard day, you're ready to collapse into your favorite soft chair and yawn the evening away because you're "just too tired" to do anything else—plan in advance to do something at night! Efficiency reports have shown that people who have an evening activity to look forward to feel less tired during the day than those who have nothing in store but a stockpile of yawns.

Join a club... plan an evening at the movies... go bowling... or just go for a long walk in the brisk night air—and you'll feel better at work and afterwards.

4. Plan a trip. You may not feel that you've got time to take an extended vacation right now—but you do have the weekends. And there's a special kind of vacation you can take right in your home town! Call your local hotel or motel for a reservation, leave your glooms and milk bottles on the back stoop, and have yourself a ball by taking advantage of the services your motel or hotel offers—bell boys... kitchens experienced in the art of making great food... room service... the chance to dress up for dinner. The American Hotel and Motel Association reminds you that the front desk in many hotels and motels will get you tickets to the concert or the baseball game, will have their baby sitting service take care of the kids—leaving you free to contemplate your home town and your own relaxed life from the comfortable vantage point of a soft lobby chair.

5. Turn hops into flights of fancy. If your promotion or raise didn't come through... if a new pudding recipe slumped over the pan and onto the oven—think of something pleasant. Don't dwell over misfortune—buy flowers for your wife, bake a cake for hubby, call up someone you'd be made happy by your thoughtfulness. The pleasure of doing good will easily dispatch the unpleasantness that a few minutes before seemed monumental.

6. Bathe tensions away. If your nerves are frazzled at the end of a day, fill a tub with lukewarm water, add about a cup of baking soda—and sit down in comfort! This remedy cuts tension quickly.

7. Check the office. If you've lots of bright direct lighting in your office—it may be responsible for lots of constant blinking, headaches and eyestrain. A softer, more indirect lighting is preferable, and can save you complaints.

8. Dine out. Go out to dinner at one of the hotels or motels in your home town. Make the meal a very special occasion by eating in a dining room that specializes in soft lights and music; or, if you're the flamboyant type, look for someplace with a big band and a bigger musical revue. This break in routine, all the gaiety and laughter, may be just what the doctor would order—or like to do himself.

Follow these tips and, instead of being wound-up and run-down, you may find yourself springing with energy!

Kellam Field To Be Dedicated Friday Night

PRINCESS ANNE—A Dedication Game and Dance will take place Friday night at Kellam High School for its first graduating class.

Dedication ceremonies of the stadium will high-light the pre-game event which will be followed by a speech by the Superintendent of Schools, Frank W. Cox. The stadium will be dedicated to all students of Kellam, and the game to the Seniors.

Homecoming events will include a parade of floats and cars carrying the various club officers, the crowning of the Dedication Queen, and a program by the Kellam high school band and drill team.

The Seniors have chosen five finalists to vie for the title of Queen. They are Linda Brown, Pat Croo, Lynda Gomez, Nancy Meagher, and Jonny Thompson. The varsity football team will select the winner and she will be crowned at halftime by Kellam's principal, Jefferson Davis.

Kellam will meet James Blair of Williamsburg for the football contest.

Billiard Champ Here

Jimmy Caras performed an almost endless variety of trick and fancy billiard shots before a crowd of about 250 spectators in Rockwell Hall on the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base Tuesday night. One of the sailors challenged this four-time World Pocket Billiard champion to a game of 125. Caras won 125 to three. And why not? He started playing at the age of five, and when only 17 defeated the then world champion Ralph Greenleaf. This feat earned Caras the title "Boy Wonder of the Billiard World."

What did Susan learn in school today?

Did she learn the values of thrift and responsibility? How to make dimes and quarters add up to dollars?

These are some of the valuable lessons each child can learn through the U. S. Treasury's School Savings Program.

By putting their dimes and quarters into U. S. Savings Stamps, thousands of American children are saving toward the purchase of U. S. Savings Bonds—one of the best investments any of us can make.

A successful School Savings program is based on partnership—the teacher, the child, the parent, the volunteers who make it go. Our country is a partner too—because young citizens who buy Savings Stamps are helping to keep America strong.

SEWING AT HOME GROWING TREND

Home sewing is one of the biggest do-it-yourself trends among American women today. According to Singer Sewing Machine Company statistics, some 42,000,000 women sew some or all of their own clothes.

Sales statistics from fabric manufacturers, pattern makers, from every industry connected with home sewing, show that the do-it-yourself, couturiere last year spent a record of $1,000,000,000 on her hobby! McCall's Patterns reports a substantial 20 per cent hike in sales for the third year running.

What's behind the boom? The feminine love of a bargain? That's part of it—but only part. When 50 cents for a pattern plus a few dollars for fabrics adds up to a unique dress, you can have several "originals" for the price of one off-the-rack dress. But much more important, experts feel, is the enjoyment women derive from the chance to create.

The fact that sewing your own has become much easier makes "creating" more fun and is a big factor in the boom.

"Your mother's sewing machine," says a vice president of one corporation, "used to do straight seams and little else. You sent the buttonholes out to be made, and labored over the hem, hook, eyes and the rest."

Today's machines do all that mechanically and make the finishing of a garment, which used to be a chore, much easier.

There's new incentive to create, too, in the fantastic array of almost miraculous fabrics today's sewer can buy. The modern woman has everything from laminated wools to washable velveteens to what her appetite for patterns to set them off. Then there are sewing aids her mother never dreamed of, from magical lining materials to interfacing that iron on.

And compare patterns of other decades to those available today.

The first "store-bought" patterns were plain sheets of tissue paper cut more or less to outline the garment. But in mass production, size and shape often went awry. McCall's, which pioneered with the first printed patterns, has since come out with an almost endless series of innovations to make the cutting and fitting of a garment easier. Where gammas, struggling to find the right place for the darts, today's darts are printed on the pattern so you can't go wrong. McCall's newest development, the "Adjust For You" patterns for women who are not a perfect size, minimize another of the difficulties facing home sewers.

While the most-sold pattern of all time was not a clothing item but a pillow, according to McCall's, today's big sewing boom owes a lot to one particular dress style: the shift. Women looked at the ultra-simple shift, reasoned it was two pieces of cloth with a few seams, and decided they could make two or three for the price of a ready-made one. They made a couple, gained experience, and were ready for more complex patterns.

Shifts have proved to bear out. The shift, which has now become a wardrobe staple, is partly because of its simplicity, but also because where the shift is worn, the shift is not worn.

McCall's sewing lessons for the shift, women have learned to jumpers. McCall's jumper pattern sales last year jumped to three or four times what they had been. Variations on the shift, the A-line styles, began to sell too. "This year," predicts a top company executive, "patterns like our 7392, a Chanel-like coat, skirt and shift—all straight and easy lines—will be big."

While various segments of the industry claim the fame as well as the money behind the big sewing boom, psychiatrists and social workers have theories of their own. Their major thesis: women want to be feminine again. The ruffles and pastels of today's fashions, and the newly Victorian frills of our home furnishings point in the direction, in addition, social workers' files are showing a definite trend away from outside jobs for married women.

"The fact that two outside salaries add up to two sets of outside expenses," one social worker points out, "while your taxes sometimes double and you have to pay a housekeeper besides, discourages many women from seeking work outside the home." Many of these stay-at-homes are discovering a very feminine activity: sewing a fine seam!

Or "sew it seams" to those who watch notions counters around the country being jammed by the 42,000,000 women who have taken to sewing their own fashions.

HOME DECORATIONS

An unlimited variety of colors and patterns in the new liquid tile makes it the most versatile and permanent home decoration. Any flat surface can be covered with it. It's your own choice of color and pattern.

Surfaces that can be covered include wood, porcelain, masonry, plaster, masonry and chipboard. All laminations provide a surface that is waterproof, permanent and resistant to dirt, abuse and stains. Doors, contrast panels, shower stalls, kitchen bulkheads and complete walls may be laminated.

Unlike lacquer, varnish or paint, the Liquid Tile produces a vitreous-hard finish which can be cleaned with the strongest detergents.

Our community's health is in good hands....including yours

This Ad Contributed By:

Our community's health rests in many hands. There are the capable, healing hands of our doctors and nurses; the deft, skilled hands of technicians; the restless, probing hands of researchers. And finally, your hands. In a sense, the health of our community is in your hands most of all. Without your generous support, those services that keep our community healthy and strong could not continue their life-saving, hope-giving work. Without your support, there would be nowhere for many people in our community to turn in their hour of need. In your hands rests the health of our community; hand in hand with doctors, nurses, technicians and researchers. Remember that when you are asked to give the United Way.

McCALL'S PATTERN 7392, a Chanel-like ensemble that makes skirt, sheath, jacket and coat, is typical of the dashing but easy to make designs that have lured millions of Americans to join the home sewing boom. The Chanel look, McCall's has predicted, will be a big best-seller for Fall and Winter '64 with the do-it-yourself couturiere.

U. S. Food Surplus Helps Keep The Peace

By U.S. Sen. George S. McGowan (D.-S.D.)
Member, Senate Agriculture Committee

Ten years ago a Democratic Congress passed a law designed to use our food abundance to fight hunger and misery in other nations. President Eisenhower signed the law and it became known as PL 480.

Either because of lackluster administration or lack of imagination to use the program's full potential, the PL 480 program coasted along for six years unnoticed and all but forgotten.

Within a few months after the Kennedy-Johnson Administration took over, the entire nation became aware of the Food for Peace program. What happened was that PL 480 was given the personal attention of the President and it became officially known as the Food for Peace program. New life, new vitality, new emphasis

We are now sharing our abundance with people in more than 100 nations. Shipments abroad reached a record high in 1963 of more than $1.4 billion.

Hundreds of thousands of jobs on U.S. farms and in towns and cities are created wholly or substantially by the production, processing, and transporting of commodities for Public Law 480 export.

Not only are such shipments putting food and fiber into the hands of needy foreign friends and accelerating their growth programs, but also they effectively serve our farm and business communities by building future foreign markets.

The programs, operating in more than 100 nations, have begun to make a dramatic contribution to economic growth. Nearly three-quarters of a million workers in 22 countries are partially paid in U.S. food under Public Law 480 food-for-work programs. Many thousands more are employed as a direct result of the use of local currencies for economic development projects.

Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman has estimated that if these less developed countries could increase their per capita incomes by $100 a year, the additional market created would double U.S. export sales of farm products.

Projects which provide instant and education. In Tunisia food-for-work projects provide full-time employment for 200,000 workers. Road, water conservation structures, schools, and health clinics are being built. School lunch is now served to more than 40 million children in an international school lunch program.

5. More of the foreign currencies received from sales under Title I of PL 480 are being

During this Administration several steps have been taken to increase the effectiveness of Public Law 480 operations. These include:

View Of Virginia Beach

By
Doris Padrick

Any witches or hobgoblins beginning to stir around in your house? This is the time of year they pop up all around and to your smaller children Halloween ranks just below Christmas and birthdays.

How does Halloween today compare to that special holiday back in "your day"? How do you plan for your children's fun? You can combine the best of yesterday with the control of today by remembering.

First, have you or your child chosen a costume? The child must be disguised, and the wicker the better. Sometimes little girls prefer to be more gorgeous than hideous, and a raid into mama's closets and cosmetics can present extravagant results. A gaudy dress you never wear, some worn out high heels, a few strands of beads, last year's hat, and rouge, lipstick, and eye shadow can create a very spectacular creature.

Sometimes, little boys will condescend to being disguised as ladies, but when they do, they are more apt to want to be caricatured as an old woman or a big fat one! Dad's cast-offs can be used to make a bum or tramp.

You don't have to buy a costume; with a little thought ahead of time you can give your child or children something quite special and unusual, or at least, inexpensive.

Masks can be made from articles at home also. A face can be painted up in many ways to make the features quite recognizable. An eye patch, a bandana, and a drawn-on mustache turns any little one into a pirate. A silk stocking over the face creates a grotesque appearance to anyone. A handkerchief tied beneath the nose makes an elegant bandit.

Or an old sheet with holes for eyes can solve both the costume and mask problem in the traditional manner of costuming.

Children love being out in the dark and being able to knock on doors and receive all types of goodies from obliging neighbors who would rather treat than be tricked. Remember to make sure they either have a light with them or have something fluorescent to reflect light so that they can be seen as they wander through the neighborhood. And if you are out driving, be sure and drive slowly as the children do not, in their excitement, always remember to be careful.

Planning a halloween party? Apples are plentiful now and seem to fit in with the fall party theme. You can find the candy and caramel coatings to cook to make candy and taffy apples in any grocery store and the recipe is very easy to follow. Cider and donuts are traditional refreshments too.

Bobbing for apples in a tub of water or on a hanging string takes a great deal of skill and belongs in any halloween party. For a real spooky event, have the lights turned off, and someone tell an appropriately chilling tale while passing around bags containing simple articles such as cold spaghetti, peeled grapes, or anything you might dream up which would feel horrible when you can't see what it is.

Now that Fall is officially here you will be planning and attending all sorts of holiday events, Halloween is the beginning.

Whatever thou shalt loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven—(Matt. 18:18).

We should always remember that we are spiritual beings created by God in His image and endowed with qualities and abilities that make us capable and important to this world as well as to God and His larger plan.

Coates Loans Driver Education Cars

Coates Motor Company President William G. Thompson Jr. hands the keys of a 1965 Dodge to Bayside High School Driver Education Instructor Tracy Moon, behind the wheel. Another car went to C. M. Tomko of Princess Anne High School. The cars are offered to schools on a no-charge, no-deposit basis by Coates. After the schools use the cars for one year, they will be replaced by new models. AUDUBON FILM SCHEDULED BY GARDEN CLUB

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Audubon film "The Living Wilderness" will be presented at the Beach Theatre October 31 at 10:30 a.m. under the sponsorship of the Princess Anne Garden Club.

The film was photographed and narrated by Walter Berlet of Casper, Wyoming, a man who has chosen as his life's work the filming of the great out-of-doors and this particular presentation points out many of the problems facing America's "Wild Heritage."

Berlet has worked with many national conservation organizations and has made photographic treks in the United States, Mexico, Canada, Africa and Europe.

OLIVIA GWYNNE

SCHOLAR FINALIST

VIRGINIA BEACH — Olivia Gwynne, daughter of Mrs. Mary Lee Gwynne of 217 83rd St. and the late M. K. Gwynne, is a semifinalist in the National Merit Scholarship competition. Miss Gwynne is a senior at Wagram High School, Laurinburg, North Carolina.

Proceeds from this special showing will go toward two of the club's projects: sending children to nature camps and sending teachers to conservation schools.

Mrs. Joseph C. Toth will serve as chairman. Tickets will be 75 cents each.

Currie Named 3M Manager

ST. PAUL, Minn. — Thomas R. Currie, son of Mrs. C. E. Douglas, Virginia Beach, has been promoted to distributor trades manager for 3M Company's Printing Products division.

Currie, who received his bachelor of science degree in business administration from the University of Richmond in 1952, has been with 3M since 1959. He was an officer in the Marine Corps from 1952-1955.

Prior to his recent promotion, Currie was sales training supervisor for the Printing Products division.

Currie is married, has two children and lives in White Bear Lake, Minnesota.

Oceana Librarian Retires

Mrs. Virginia C. Mitchell of 520 Englewood Drive, Virginia Beach, is presented her retirement certificate by CDR. P. W. Cobb, NAS Oceana Executive Officer, after having served more than 13 years Federal Service. At the time of her retirement Mrs. Mitchell was serving as Librarian at U. S. Naval Air Station Oceana. She was also presented a superior accomplishment award based on her outstanding performance. (Navy photo)

All persons who are interested in preserving some of America's natural beauty and resources are urged to see this colorful film.

Shop-At-Home C of C Urges

VIRGINIA BEACH — With the approach of the year's biggest retail shopping season, the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce urges all citizens to make every effort to do their Christmas shopping this year at home.

A recent survey of a number of stores in Virginia Beach has shown that holiday stocks will be larger and more complete at Virginia Beach stores than ever before.

The many old established firms and the increasing number of new businesses insures the shopper the largest selection of quality merchandise.

Less traffic congestion, ample parking, prices that equal or better those of surrounding areas, the savings in time and the pride we all feel in our own city are pointed out as a few of the reasons why shoppers should make every effort to "buy it at Virginia Beach."

These merchants are local citizens, licensed by our city and paying taxes to support our government, our schools and to build a better Virginia Beach. They merit the patronage of local citizens now and throughout the year. A. B. Crews, President of the local Chamber.

Bus Planned For Forum

VIRGINIA BEACH — A chartered Trailways bus will be available, on a first come, first serve basis, to those desiring direct transportation to and from the Norfolk Forum on Oct. 27. Arrangement have been made through the Beach Travel Service and round trip tickets may be obtained from Miss Drinko, travel agent, for $1.25. Send check to Beach Travel or pick up at the Agency at 1901 Atlantic Avenue.

The bus will leave Tuesday at about 7:15 p.m. from the Cavalier Beach Club and go by Atlantic Ave. to Virginia Beach Blvd. direct to the Center Theatre in Norfolk. Pick up service along the route for those having tickets will be possible.

Kenneth G. Crawford, Washington correspondent for Newsweek magazine, will give a non-partisan lecture on "1964 Election Preview."

Season tickets to all four lectures are being sold for $3 each. Send applications and checks to P.O. Box 3127, Norfolk, or phone Miss Yanson, MA7-3581, for further information.

"SERVING THE WORLD'S LARGEST RESORT CITY"

VIRGINIA BEACH, VIRGINIA, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1964

SECTION B

Rabies Control Dependent On Vaccination

RICHMOND — Dr. Mack I. Shanholz, State Health Commissioner, today advised city and county officials that the vaccination of dogs against rabies is a public health measure to protect human life. "Vaccination is the most important part of a rabies control program," he said, "and in order to be effective it must be carried out under professional supervision."

"Vaccination of dogs by their owners in many instances gives inadequate protection and is likely to give a community a false sense of security. The vaccination status of dogs is one of the factors reviewed by physicians when considering the need for anti-rabies treatment of dog-bite victims. Physicians will consider the offending animal as adequately vaccinated only when the vaccination has been certified by a veterinarian."

Dr. Shanholz's remarks were prompted by inquiries from locales without dog vaccination ordinances. The new State law required that evidence of vaccination for rabies be presented before a dog license can be issued by the county treasurer.

A model ordinance, recommended by the State Health Department, has been adopted over the years by two-thirds of Virginia's counties and provides a proper means for implementing the State law. Under the model ordinance, rabies vaccination is certified by licensed veterinarians. Dog rabies vaccination clinics sponsored by the Health Department and served by local veterinarians are being conducted in a number of counties. The vaccine being used is effective for three years and the cost to the owner is fifty cents or less for each year of protection.

U-K OFFERING NEW CLASSES

VIRGINIA BEACH — Classes in Sewing, Knitting and Millinery are being offered at Union Kempsville High School under the sponsorship of the Virginia Beach Recreation Department. These classes are held from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Sewing, which is taught by Mrs. F. R. Ballard, an instructor at Union Kempsville, is held on each Tuesday evening. The class in Knitting which is to be taught by Mrs. Alice Bell of Virginia Beach, will be held on Thursday evening. The class in Millinery which will be taught by Mrs. A. M. Lawrence, a teacher at Seatack School, will also be conducted on Thursday evening.

All persons who are interested in the above mentioned classes are asked to come out and take part in these activities. For further information, please call 497-6262.

Politics Taken To Task In Little Theatre Play

Politics may be a worn-out subject at this particular time of year but the "Girls in 509" will tickle your funny bone with its satirical spoof on political parties.

The Little Theatre opened its 1964-65 season last Thursday night at the Courtyard Playhouse with the nonsensical little presentation that didn't say anything, but provoked quite a few spontaneous bursts of laughter with unexpected twists throughout the main theme.

Aunt Hettie, a staunch supporter of the Republican party, had retreated into seclusion with her young niece, Mimsey, when the Roosevelt had come into power. The time of the action is 1958, but the two ladies had had no news from the outside world so at the beginning of the play did not know that the Republicans were now on top.

Theresa Worrall presented a very prim old maid type aunt in the person of Aunt Hettie and she came on loud and clear with her protection of Mary Dietz as Mimsey, her simple, dowdy young niece.

The play began rather slow and didn't make much sense until "Old Jim" (J. P. Harrison) showed up with a couple of reporters, portrayed by Charles Warburton and Thomas Felton, Jr. His explanations to these two made clearer who the girls were and why they were there in the room. He was excellent as the bungling janitor informant, but in his part of the fast-talking number, a few lines were lost or run together in a jumble which was a little bewildering.

Tom Felton as the journalistic professor who had never written a news story stood out with his rendition of the determined yet frightened young man who is "captured" by Mimsey and her special trap. This was his debut with the Little Theatre and he is a fine addition to the performing group. We expect to see him in many more performances, for he has a very professional approach to this part.

EDUCATION GROUP MEETS

THALIA — The Virginia Beach Education Association met October 14 at Princess Anne High School. Association President Phillip Meekins, James Duke of Kellam, and Mrs. Jane Caldwell of King's Grant gave an account of the NEA meeting in Seattle, Washington, last summer.

New committee chairmen were chosen as follows: membership, Mrs. Mildred Wilson; citizenship, Richard Thompson; reporter, Mrs. Anne Davis; personnel policy, Mrs. Anne Henry; classroom teachers, Mrs. Frances Sachon; and public relations, Miss Florence Pavlides.

BEACH WOMAN IS

NAVY WIVES HEAD

ALAMEDA, Calif. — The Navy Wives Club of America elected Mrs. Edward Russell of Virginia Beach Thursday to her second term as president. The 26th national convention of the group also elected Mrs. Kenneth G. Smith, Key West, Fla., national vice president, and Mrs. Theodore Glass, Hayward, Calif., national secretary.

FLU SHOTS SET

FOR CITY EMPLOYEES

VIRGINIA BEACH — Influenza Vaccine will be offered to all city employees today by the Virginia Beach Health Department as has been the custom over the years.

Hours will be between 8:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. in the health department building near Princess Anne Court House, and between 7:30 and 10 a.m. at the 19th Street and Arctic Avenue office.

KEE NAMED TO

ACCOUNTANT GROUP

NEW YORK — L. Loren Kee, Jr., CPA of Virginia Beach, has been elected a member of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants. Mr. Kee is employed by Charles H. McCoy, certified public accountant in Norfolk.

Hunter Spence of Virginia Beach is welcomed to Thailand by Kosi Saisangchantra (left), assistant director of Bangkok's Agricultural Extension Service, Miss Jeera Akhawong, a Thai 4-H Club official, and Dr. Phanom Smitanada, Spence's first Thai "father."

LOCAL 4-HER IN BANGKOK

VIRGINIA BEACH — Hunter Spence of Virginia Beach has arrived in Bangkok on the first lap of a six-month tour of Thailand, according to word received here through the Agricultural Extension Service.

Spence, a veteran worker in local 4-H activities, is a delegate with the International Farm Youth Exchange Program of the National 4-H Club Foundation.

The IFYE program, as it is more commonly referred to, is designed to enable rural young people and families to better understand and appreciate the way of life of rural people in other countries.

Spence was officially welcomed to Thailand with garlands of jasmine presented by Kosi Saisangchantra, assistant director of the Agricultural Extension Service in Bangkok.

Also on hand to greet him were Miss Jeera Akhawong, a Thai 4-H Club official, and Dr. Phanom Smitanada who will serve the Virginia Beach youth as the first of several Thai "fathers."

After a brief orientation in Bangkok, Spence is expected to start the long trek to his first farm family in the village of Nong Koa in the Satuk district.

This trip will involve travel by train, jeep, elephant and horseback, officials here said. During his six months visit in Thailand, Spence will visit farm families throughout the country and work on farms where crops of bananas, tobacco, peanuts, kappok, rubber, silk worms, cotton and rice are produced.

STRONG CHURCHES...

make STRONG COMMUNITIES

Another new church! The newspaper article says the population in Bill's suburban neighborhood is growing so fast that even more churches will soon be needed. Bill thinks this is just great.

"A community is a better place when there are plenty of churches," he says. "It's good for the children and the young people... it's good for everybody! We all need some sort of anchor for our lives, and the Church is the best one I know of."

Bill's right. When people work together for their church... when people pray together for guidance... it can't help but lead to a greater spirit of tolerance, fellowship and cooperation in the whole community.

In order to play its full part, the Church needs you, your prayers and your support. In return the Church offers you a priceless gift... the Truth that shall make you free.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a source of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. Therefore, let your church become a place where you can find the answers to your life's problems.

THE MIXING BOWL

"It's Fun To Cook"

Lemon Glazed Pears

Lemon Glazed Canned Bartlett Pears add an out-of-the-ordinary touch to rolled fish fillets. The luscious creamy, smooth texture of the glazed pears is a perfect complement to the crispy, golden brown coating of the fillets. This exciting team creates an entrée to be envied, yet one that is inexpensive and easy to prepare. A colorful vegetable stuffing is rolled into the fish fillets before they are coated with buttered crumbs. While the fillets are baking, canned Bartlett pear halves simmer in an intriguing lemon butter sauce. Just before serving, drain the luscious pear halves and serve hot with the stuffed fish rolls.

Lemon Glazed Canned Pears
1 can (1 lb.) Bartlett pear halves
2 tablespoons lemon juice
Drain pear halves, reserving ½ cup syrup. Place pear halves, ½ cup syrup, lemon juice, butter and lemon slices in saucepan. Heat slowly to simmering. Just before serving, drain and serve hot with fish fillets.

Stuffed Fish Fillets
8 fresh or thawed frozen fish fillets (about 2 lbs.)
2 tablespoons melted butter
Salt and pepper
2 carrots, shredded
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
Wipe fish with damp cloth or paper towel. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Combine carrots, parsley, pimientos, melted butter and onion. Mix well, and season to taste. Spread stuffing over fillets, and roll up from small end. Secure with toothpicks. Roll in buttered bread crumbs and place in shallow baking pan. Bake in moderate oven, 375 degrees, 30 minutes or until done. Serve with Lemon Glazed Canned Pears.

When it's time to provide your family with a meatless meal, chances are that fish is on the menu. And when fish is about to be served, keep in mind that a food of such delicate flavor must be seasoned to perfection. Ac'cent monosodium glutamate brings out all the sweet natural "fresh caught" flavor of the fish. Add a fancy touch to your favorite kind of fish steaks with a wonderful sauce made of sour cream enlivened with chives, dill, or parsley. Serve with baked potatoes, creamed spinach, molded fruit salad, corn muffins, and spice cake for dessert.

Broiled Fish Steaks with Sour Cream Sauce
(6 Servings)
6 fish steaks, fresh or frozen (allow to thaw if frozen)
Ac'cent
Sour Cream Sauce
½ pint sour cream
½ teaspoon Ac'cent
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon lemon juice
½ teaspoon dry or 1 teaspoon fresh herbs, minced (chives, dill, or parsley)

Prepare sauce by combining sour cream with Ac'cent and seasonings. Brush steaks with oil or melted butter and sprinkle with Ac'cent and a little lemon juice. Place fish on preheated broiler pan. Broil about 2 inches from source of heat approximately 5 minutes, or until fish is done. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and serve with Sour Cream Sauce.

NOTE: It is not necessary to turn steaks if broiler pan is preheated. Fish should flake easily with a fork, but should be moist.

We have just finished the celebration of "Fish 'n' Seafood Parade Time", Oct. 1 through 21st, but there can be no end to such a celebration—so let's continue with some other seafood suggestions—

The accompanying remoulade dressing contains frozen Florida grapefruit juice concentrate to give it extra pungency.

Florida Seafood Salad
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon dry mustard
½ cup salad oil
½ teaspoon Tabasco
1 can (6 ounces) frozen Florida grapefruit juice concentrate, thawed, divided
2 pounds raw shrimp, cooked and cleaned
2 cups cooked macaroni shells (1 cup raw)
¼ cup diced pimiento
1 package (10 ounces) frozen cut green beans, thawed or 1 can (1 pound) cut green beans, drained

Combine salt, dry mustard, salad oil and Tabasco in bowl. Add grapefruit juice concentrate reserving 2 tablespoons for Grapefruit Remoulade Dressing. Add shrimp and refrigerate several hours or overnight, stirring once or twice. Combine cooked macaroni shells, pimiento, green beans and celery; mix well. Drain seafood and add with grapefruit sections to macaroni mixture; toss lightly. Serve over crisp greens with Grapefruit Remoulade Dressing. YIELD: 8 servings.

Grapefruit Remoulade Dressing
½ teaspoon Tabasco
½ cup mayonnaise
1 hard-cooked egg, chopped
¼ cup chili sauce
2 tablespoons frozen Florida grapefruit juice concentrate (reserved from salad)
2 teaspoons horseradish
Blend Tabasco into mayonnaise. Reserve some of chopped egg for garnish. Add remaining egg and other ingredients. Garnish with chopped egg. YIELD: 1 cup.

Creole cooking is said to be the most well-known of single culinary arts. It must be true! The style and seasoning of Creole cooks of the old south is often duplicated by homemakers across the country.

Canned onion dry soup mix provides its own type of genius when Creole-style dishes are in preparation. It's the flavor starter for the other ingredients, garlic, green pepper, mushrooms, and tomatoes. Be sure to serve this saucy-good shrimp with lots of fluffy white rice. A tossed green salad complements the flavor, and what could be more southern than slices of rich pound cake for dessert?

Shrimp Creole
1½ cups cooked shrimp, cut up
1 can (4 ounce) sliced mushrooms, drained
¼ cup green pepper strips
2 medium cloves garlic, minced
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 can (1½/8 ounces) onion dry soup mix
2 tablespoons flour
2 cups water
½ cup drained cooked tomatoes, cut up
3 cup cooked rice

In saucepan, cook shrimp, mushrooms, green pepper, and garlic in butter until green pepper is just tender. Add soup mix and flour; gradually blend in water and tomatoes. Bring to boil, stirring. Cook over low heat 10 minutes, stirring now and then. Serve over rice. Makes 4 servings.

Charcoal Broiled Lobster Tails
To prepare lobster tails for broiling: Thaw according to directions on the package. Cut lengthwise down both sides of membrane and discard. Hold each end of the tail with hands and bend backward. This keeps the tail flat. Place tail shell-side down, on the grill 4 to 5 inches from the coals. Brush flesh side with Peppy Lemon-Butter Sauce. Cook large tails 10 minutes, smaller tails 6 to 7 minutes. Turn flesh side down and continue to cook 5 to 6 minutes, or until flesh is flaky. Brush with Peppy Lemon-Butter Sauce just before serving.

Peppy Lemon-Butter Sauce
1 stick (½ cup) butter or margarine
¼ cup fresh lemon juice
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
¼ cup chopped parsley (optional)
Melt butter or margarine; add lemon juice, salt and ground black pepper. Heat. If desired, add parsley. YIELD: ½ cup.

LEMONS SERVE AS AN EXCELLENT GARNISH FOR ALL FRESH VEGETABLES.
They bring out the flavor of the bland vegetables, and give them sparkle and zest.

Too often we think of a spaghetti sauce as being made only with meat balls. But looking through an Italian cookbook I found it may be just as properly made with lobster—want to try it? Here it is:

Lobster Spaghetti Sauce
2 tablespoons cooking oil
1 clove garlic
½ cup finely chopped onion
1 can (1 lb. 13 oz.) tomato puree
½ cup catsup
2 teaspoons kitchen bouquet
1 bay leaf
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon dehydrated parsley flakes
¼ teaspoon oregano or rosemary
1 package (9-oz.) quick-frozen South African rock lobster tails
1 pound spaghetti
Put cooking oil in saucepan. Add garlic and onion and cook over moderate heat about 3 minutes. Add tomato puree, catsup, kitchen bouquet, and seasonings. Bring to a boil, then gently simmer for 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove bay leaf and add lobster which has been cooked according to package directions and well-drained. Serve over spaghetti cooked according to package directions. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

WOMAN'S SOCIETY

WILL OBSERVE

ANNUAL PRAYER

The Woman's Society of Christian Service of LeKies and Thalia Methodist Churches of Virginia Beach will join more than 1,700,000 Methodist Women throughout America this week in observing their annual "Call to Prayer and Self-Denial." The program will be held at Thalia Methodist Church, Oct. 27, 1964 from 10:30 a.m. until 1:30 p.m.

The theme for 1964 is "Recognition, Renewal, Response." Leaders are Mrs. John D. Matthews and Mrs. William P. Truckner.

The Call to Prayer and Self-Denial is one of the oldest observances for Methodist women, dating back to 1887. It was originally called the Week of Prayer and Self-Denial.

4-H Activities and Events

C. FRANCIS LAY
Assistant Agent

"There are those timid souls who say that the opportunities which I found when I came to America have disappeared in our land. Nonsense! The old frontiers have disappeared, but new frontiers have appeared in their place—frontiers in science, entertainment, communications, in air and space beyond the earth. Opportunities are all around and everywhere, to be seized by those who are eager to look and to grasp."

Samuel Goldwyn

Hells, folks! Mr. Goldwyn's mentioned above apply as much to 4-H as to any other group. There are those who say that 4-H Club work was designed for an age that is now passed, that is out-of-date, that it is for rural youth only. Nothing could be farther from the truth. 4-H is now, and has been for a long time, available to non-farm youth. Many cities have had programs for more than 40 years! Today, even more projects are being designed for all youth. The urban youth can compete and learn equally as much from such projects as Automotive Care & Safety, Health, Photography, Dog Care and Training, Room Improvement, Electricity, Career Exploration, Cooking, Sewing, and Home Grounds Beautification, and such activities as community development, citizenship, leadership, talent shows, demonstrations, and educational tours. Help your children and/or yourself to learn to live through 4-H projects and activities. Remember, 4-H is for YOUTH. If you would like to know more about 4-H and how you can become a part, send in the form at the bottom of this column.

There are several projects which should be of special interest to the young people of Virginia Beach, especially to those of you in urban areas. These projects are either already underway or will be started in the near future.

The 4-H Automotive Care & Safety Project
This project is designed for new drivers and prospective drivers. It is not a repetition of what is learned in Driver Training Programs, but is designed to supplement this program. Participants in the project will gain a broader understanding of the use of automobiles, their care and operation.

Youth (both boys and girls) 14 years of age and older, are invited to join the program. A special invitation is extended to those young people not already in the program. A lively and interesting schedule of instruction and activities is planned. We plan to use guest experts on various phases of the Automobile Industry, to include police officers, safety experts, mechanics, salesmen, and insurance agents.

The 4-H Photography Project

Do you take pictures? Would you like to learn to take better ones? If so, the 4-H Photography Project is for you.

The purpose of the project is to learn to take better pictures and have more fun with your camera. The specific objectives of the project are to teach you to identify the parts of a camera and how to take care of it, what happens when you take a picture, how to select and make the best use of film, how to make the best use of light when you take pictures, how to judge pictures and see mistakes that were made, how to mount photographs in an album, a record book, or on cardboard, how to file and protect your good negatives for future use, and how to be more confident and successful in all phases of 4-H Club work.

This project is available to any person between the ages of 10 and 19 who would like to become an important part of the 4-H program.

The 4-H Dog Care & Training Project

Do you like to work with animals, but don't have enough space to raise farm animals? If so, the 4-H Dog Care and Training Project is for you. Dogs are becoming an increasing important member of the family—and community. This project permits members to share in the enjoyment of owning and understanding a dog, and to participate in the many events open to dog owners of the City.

Adult volunteer leaders are needed in all phases of 4-H Club work. If you are interested in any of the projects mentioned above or any other project and would like to help youth learn more about them, contact the VPI Extension Office at Princess Anne, 430-6111, or mail in the coupon at the end of this column.

New Corn Disease Found in Virginia

Plant pathologists are taking a close look at a new virus disease that has shown up recently on corn in the Old Dominion. While similar to corn stunt identified in southwestern states, the local disease appears to be different—at least in the method of transmission.

The first symptom is a yellowing in the tops of plants about three weeks before tasseling, followed by the failure of upper internodes to elongate. Lower leaves usually remain green but the new leaves are yellow. In plants that are infected early, only nubbins develop. On plants where nubbins occur, the leaves redden after the kernels reach the milk stage of development.

The disease was first seen in Fluvanna County in 1962, but was not recognized as a virus disease. The first report of the disease this season came from Charlotte County, and it has now been seen in 27 fields in 13 counties.

No doubt the virus is active in other counties, but to date it has been identified in Albermarle, Amherst, Charlotte, Charles City, Fluvanna, Goochland, Halifax, Henrico, Henry, Nelson, Spotsylvania, York, and the City of Virginia Beach.

The true corn stunt virus is transmitted by two species of leafhoppers. The Virginia virus is apparently transmitted by some other means, and aphids are suspected.

The disease is usually found on river bottom land, although in a few cases it has been identified on upland fields. It is always associated with Johnson grass. It has never been found in Virginia, except where Johnson grass exists in the corn field.

Farmers using good cultivation practices which prevent establishment of Johnson grass may not have the disease, even though they farm in areas surrounded by the disease.

Much of the infected corn in Virginia will probably end up in the silo this season, but grain losses may go up to 90 percent in some fields, depending on the severity and prevalence of infection.

The virus may infect plants other than corn. Among these are Johnson grass, Sudan grass, sorghum, and barnyard grass.

A similar disease was reported in 1963 from Mississippi, Louisiana, Ohio, Kentucky, and Indiana. This year Illinois, Missouri, Arkansas, Tennessee, and Virginia have joined the list.

So far as is known, there are no corn varieties commercially available that are resistant to the disease. Researchers in Ohio and Indiana, along with the USDA, and commercial corn breeders, have made plantings in infested areas in Ohio and Mississippi. Some inbred lines and hybrids exposed in this manner have shown resistance, but it is not known how selection for resistance will affect grain production.

What should farmers do about the appearance of this new disease? I suggest that they should grow corn on land free of Johnson grass. Those farmers who do not presently have Johnson grass on their land should keep the soil from becoming infested. Those who do have Johnson grass should eradicate it. Copies of VPI Circular 686, "Kill Johnson Grass," are available from my office.

Frosted Sudan Grasses Can Kill Animals

Animals can be killed by grazing on sudan grass or sudan-sorghum crosses following a frost or freeze.

Green chop made after a frost or freeze can be just as harmful.

The safest thing to do is to make silage out of the frozen grass. This permits prussic acid (the poison) to escape in a gaseous form during ensiling and while the silage is being moved and fed.

Self fed silage, however, needs a chemical test, since it might not have been exposed enough to allow the poisonous fumes to escape.

Hay made from sudan grass or sudan-sorghum crosses that have frosted or frozen is usually safe to feed after the hay is thoroughly cured and dry. If in doubt, feed some to a tester animal before feeding to the entire herd.

It is not safe, either, to permit animals to graze in the cut field until all suckers and stubbles are dead and thoroughly dry.

Planning Pays When Landscaping the Home

Landscaping the home grounds calls for planning. An examination of beautiful yards in your community will bear this out.

But, if planning is the key to successful landscaping—how do you start? The first step is to prepare an overall landscape plan with help from your local nurseryman. If you decide to make the plan yourself, however, take time to study some popular books on landscape design or ask my office for a copy of VPI Bulletin 212, "Design of the Home Grounds."

Before making your plan you must make several decisions as to whether you want space for a vegetable garden, recreation area, flower beds, compost pile laundry lines, guest parking, or tool shed. You will also need to know where shade is required. The grounds of your home are in reality an extension of the house, so a study must be made to relate the rooms of the house with the outdoor development.

One problem with new homes is how to handle landscaping under eaves of the house. This is not a good location for plants which serve as foundation plants. Natural water does not reach this area and plants must be watered artificially.

Shrubs should be planted out beyond the drip line of the eaves at a distance of at least one-half of their diameter. Otherwise, in winter snow will accumulate on the roof and slide onto the plants.

A good practice is to fill the area under eaves with gravel. Extend the gravel three inches beyond the drip line to prevent scattering dirt onto the house. Gravel does not show drip marks from the eaves, and if it is about three inches deep, weeds are generally kept under control.

Edging strips, such as 2-by-4-inch strips of wood placed between the gravel and grass, keep gravel in bounds and give the building a clean, neat appearance. Brick laid flat will suffice in some instances and the gravel may be eliminated.

NEWS REPORT FROM THE UNIVERSITY

Population, Economic Research

In discussing building plans, a Virginia school board needs a population forecast for the coming decades. A state agency needs information about personal income patterns in Virginia. A local chamber of commerce needs analysis of local marketing patterns.

Each organization calls upon the Bureau of Population and Economic Research at the University of Virginia.

The bureau, established in 1944, is a clearinghouse of population and of economic and sociological data related to the state. Financed primarily through a University budget allocation, the bureau is used by the General Assembly, state and local governmental agencies, business and industrial concerns, and the general public.

"While we get into many different kinds of problems, it all stems out of two main themes: analysis of population and basic economic trends and the characteristics of each," says bureau director Dr. Lorin A. Thompson.

The bureau has become the accepted source for Virginia city and county population estimates between federal census reports. According to Dr. Thompson, the demand for population estimates of local areas has increased steadily through the years. With this increase has been a growth in requests for population forecasts which are basic to the planning of future business development and to determining the amount and kind of state and local services needed.

Because of the special importance of population forecasts in planning school facilities, the bureau has been influential in all levels of educational policy in the state.

"We have worked with state boards of education, the University's School of Education, and local school boards," says Dr. Thompson.

Business and industry also seek the bureau for population forecasts, for population trends may determine whether or not to expand existing establishments and where to locate new facilities.

Whether the need is in business or government, population forecasts provide a basis for determining how many and what kinds of customers are to be served.

"Our task over the years has been to work with groups and sift out the relevant types of information that they need for making policy and administrative decisions," explains Dr. Thompson.

"We don't attempt to solve the problems for the communities. We do attempt to give them all the information so that they can make their own decision."

According to Dr. Thompson, "the value of the bureau is almost entirely the quality and amount of service it provides to the people of Virginia."

'Advise & Consent' Offers Armchair Tour Of Capitol

It's a big country, and not every American is able to make a pilgrimage to Washington, D.C. Now, Otto Preminger's "Advise & Consent," the Columbia Pictures release in Panavision at the Princess Theatre, offers not only an armchair tour of the capital but an absorbing picture of the way government sometimes functions. Based on Allen Drury's best-selling novel, "Advise & Consent" stars Henry Fonda, Charles Laughton, Don Murray, Walter Pidgeon, Peter Lawford, Gene Tierney, Franchot Tone, Lew Ayres, Burgess Meredith, Eddie Hodges, Paul Ford, George Grizzard and Inga Swenson. Concerned with the dramatic game of national politics, "Advise & Consent" was of necessity, photographed principally in Washington.

Places where cameras turned on Capitol Hill include the historic reception room just off the Upper House chamber, the Senate subway and the Rotunda, the vast circular hall directly below the Capitol Dome. Scenes were filmed in the Old Senate Building's large caucus room in which were held the dramatic McCarthy, Kefauver and McClellan hearings. Other location sites in "Advise & Consent" were the New Senate Office Building's cafeteria and the Treasury Building. Exterior sequences took in the Washington Monument, the Mall, Washington Air Terminal, the Capitol Building and grounds and the Potomac River.

A major sequence—a glittering Washington party—was photographed at "Tregaron," the estate of the late Joseph Davies, one-time Ambassador to Russia.

The music is by Jerry Fielding. "Advise & Consent" was photographed in Panavision by Sam Leavitt, and the entire production was designed by Lytle Wheeler.

Based on Drury's Pulitzer

Prize-winning best-seller, "Advise & Consent" was written for the screen by Wendell Mayes. "Advise & Consent" was produced and directed by Otto Preminger.

HISTORY'S CRUELEST BATTLEGROUND ON CBS TUESDAY

The 10-month battle that turned a French town into history's cruelest battleground will be described with authentic film in WORLD WAR I: "Verdun the Inferno" on Tuesday, Oct. 27 (8:00-8:30 p.m., EST) on the CBS Television Network.

Robert Ryan is narrator of WORLD WAR I. Morton Gould wrote the musical score for the series.

The stalemate battle for Verdun raged beyond control of the armies and nations caught up in it. It claimed a quarter of a million lives before it ended with the German Army evicted from the forts around the town, situated 150 miles east of Paris.

Into the flames of Verdun the Germans poured shells that released a new form of gas, phosgene, even deadlier than the chlorine gas they had introduced into warfare a year before. And the counter-attacking French Army was met by another frightful new weapon: the flame-thrower.

The Lafayette Escadrille, a group of volunteer Americans flying for the French who flew their first major missions over Verdun and sustained their first major losses there, are also seen in the broadcast.

"Verdun the Inferno" was written by John Sharink. Burton Benjamin is executive producer of WORLD WAR I, and Isaac Kleiner and Sharink are co-producers. The series is a presentation of CBS News.

Jack Chertok, producer of "My Favorite Martian" on the CBS Television Network, formerly was producer of all short film subjects at MGM.

Follies Are Shaping Up

Members of the Virginia Beach - Princess Anne Junior Woman's Club are stepping up their schedules for the annual follies which will be held Nov. 6-7 at the Alan B. Shepard Civic Center. 'EXPLORING' TO STUDY FLIGHT

"Exploring," NBC News' public affairs program, applied to studies in thousands of classrooms across the country, will probe the mysteries of flight on the full-hour colorcast of Saturday, Oct. 24 (12 noon to 1 p.m. EDT).

The hour will include an animated film of "Darius Green and His Flying Machine" narrated by NBC News correspondent Edwin Newman. The story follows a Yankee farmboy's attempt to soar in a homemade flying machine.

The Paul and Mary Ritts Puppets and Dr. Hibbs will then demonstrate by scientific experiments, that air really does exist even though we cannot see it.

Woody And Creator Join For Halloween Special

The stage is set for Woody Woodpecker and his creator to meet for the first time before an audience in 23 years!

Television will do that for creator - cartoonist Walter Lantz and the mischievous Woody Woodpecker he brought into being nearly a quarter century ago. The duo will come together, fact-to-beak, when Woody stars in the "Woody's Halloween Party" TV special Monday, October 26 at 5:30 p.m. on WAVY-TV-10.

"It's true," Lantz admitted when corralled in his office recently, "Woody and I will be on television together in the same scene." How come it hasn't happened before? Lantz tells it this way. "People forget," he says, "that while Woody cavorts up there on the screen, somebody's got to be minding the drawing board. In this half-hour Halloween party of his, where he both sings and plays a guitar for the first time, he personally asked me for a little support."

Lantz smiled. "Funny thing," he added, "when an idea on Woody is completed, I let that little rascally fellow run loose and then I really don't see him again until we sit down together for the next sequence. But here, he just wanted someone in the background for luck."

Woody has a different story. The redbird with the infectious "ha-ha-ha-ha" thought he would give Lantz a break after all these years.

"Here I've been," said the raucous feather merchant in a rare serious vein, "taking all the bows, blowing all the kisses and taking all the curtain calls for twenty-three years while Walter's been trying to make me look good."

Actually, it's one of showbusiness' most unusual long-lasting partnerships. Lantz points out, it's a trio. His wife, the former Grace Stafford, is the voice of Woody Woodpecker.

The Woody Woodpecker Halloween special will be sponsored by the Kellogg Company over 160 TV stations.

Except for New York-born Frances Bavier, all the principal players on "The Andy Griffith Show" come from towns of less than 20,000 population.

Tom Harmon, CBS Television Sports commentator on "NFL—Countdown to Kickoff," was one of the first name athletes to enter broadcasting.

Fan mail addressed to "Art Linkletter's House Party" on the CBS Television Network requires the full-time services of four girls to process.

Those interested in backstage work are also invited on Oct. 26th and 27th.

Season tickets for the four plays are still available and may be obtained by mailing a check for $7 to P.O. Box 1053, Virginia Beach.

Most programs to help the handicapped require at least ninety per cent financial support from the community. The reverse is true at Goodwill Industries. The sale of used articles enables Goodwill to produce ninety per cent of the income it needs to finance its rehabilitation program for the handicapped.

City Loans School Board Funds To Purchase Future Sites

VIRGINIA BEACH—School administrators received a helping hand from City Council Monday to relieve to some extent their financial difficulties until a school bond issue can be arranged later this year.

Council appropriated $250,000 for the acquisition of future school sites and $100,000 for mobile classroom units as a loan to be repaid out of a general fund from the bond issue.

City Manager W. Russell Hatchett said that Superintendent of Schools Frank W. Cox had requested the appropriations.

A school site committee was appointed earlier to inspect various pieces of property as possible locations of future schools.

Hatchett pointed out that the funds were needed now so that options on the property could be obtained before real estate val-

Participating in the Kellam High School stadium Dedication Friday night were Teen-Dem Activities Chairmen Danny M. Dillon and Jack Wilder. The two have been instrumental in organizing the Teen-Dem Clubs in Princess Anne, Kellam, and Union-Kempville High Schools. Through working with the Inter-Club Council at Cox High School, they helped to develop interest in the campaign. Preparations are now being made for the Tidewater Democratic Rally 4 p.m. Wednesday at the Norfolk Arena. Featured will be the Chad Mitchell Trio and Governor Terry Sanford. The rally is free to all Democrats.

Young Demos Step-Up Campaign

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Young Democratic Club of Virginia Beach has announced a final schedule of activities which will terminate on November 3rd and will conclude the most active campaign ever conducted by the young voters of Virginia Beach.

On Wednesday, October 28, 1964 a Mass Tidewater Democratic Rally will be held at the Norfolk City Arena. The rally will begin at 4 p.m. and end at 6 p.m. Featured will be Gov. Terry Sanford of North Carolina, The Chad Mitchell Trio and other outstanding performers.

Congressman Thomas N. Downing is scheduled to appear at the Pembroke Elementary School at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, October 29, and will appear as featured speaker at the Linkhorn Park Elementary School at 8:30 p.m. on the same date. Downing's appearance will climax the Young Democratic program of events.

At Rudee Inlet

City Opposes State's Suggested Changes For New Bridge

VIRGINIA BEACH — The State Highway Department's suggested changes in a high-level bridge across Rudee Inlet, the first phase of the city's proposed highway to Princess Anne Court House, met unanimous opposition from City Council Monday.

Through a resolution submitted by City Manager W. Russell Hatchett, council claimed that the recommended change would only save about $7,000 in construction costs and would be "at the expense of safety."

According to the resolution the State Highway Department has recommended that the original plans be revised by shortening the high-level bridge and by using dirt mounds at each end rather than the bridge structure.

Council's opposition was based on two major points: first, if the span is shortened it would prevent the installation of a walkway to the ocean and would force pedestrian traffic across the busy highway; and second, the shortened span would necessitate the lengthening of the abutment and slopes into the navigation area which would be hazardous to boat traffic.

The city's plans for the highway and bridge were approved earlier by both the State Highway Department and the Federal Bureau of Public Roads.

The resolution asks that both agencies adhere to the original plans because council feels "the savings that would result from the recommended change of design cannot be justified at the expense of safety to the heavy pedestrian traffic that will use this crossing, and to the hazard that will be created for navigation under the bridge."

Council also asked Hatchett to send letters to Sen. Almer Ames and Delegates P. B. White and William P. Kellam asking that they oppose any cut in gas tax funds delegated by the state to cities for maintenance and construction of streets and highways.

Hatchett pointed out that the Virginia Advisory Legislative Committee plans a public hearing Nov. 5 at the Capitol Building in Richmond to discuss appropriations to cities.

"We must advise them that we need every dollar we get," Hatchett said. "If they cut these funds it would be a crippling blow to our highway system."

He pointed out that the last General Assembly proposed that the gas tax that goes for highways be frozen at the 1943 basis.

"This was a cut because although there is more gas tax and an increased use of the highways, the rate of payment to the cities still stands at the 1943 rate," Hatchett said. "If it is cut again it will be detrimental to our highway system."

In other action council:

- Accepted a withdrawal of a rezoning application by Shell Oil Company for a service station on Providence Road adjoining Westview Village. They stipulated that the withdrawal was accepted "with prejudice" so that the application could not be resubmitted within a year.

- Approved a $41,383 loan for fire and radio equipment for the Virginia Beach Fire Department to be repaid out of the Virginia Beach Borough general fund.
- Appropriated $250 for the city's contribution toward the Council of Civic Organization's annual Guide Book. The CCO had requested $500 but council based its appropriation on last year's rate.
- Approved the employment of Phillip Freeman for an engineering survey on the installation of sewage lines and pumping stations at the request of the Department of Public Utilities.
- Appropriated $4,000 for a loan to the Ocean Park Fire Department for an addition to the fire station.
- Denied a use permit to

NROTC TRAINING OPEN TO SENIORS

RICHMOND — High School seniors and graduates have only until November 20 to apply for the Navy's Reserve Officer Training Corps. Applicants will take the nationwide competitive examination on December 12 as the first step toward an appointment as midshipman.

High school seniors and graduates who will be at least 17 but not 21 years of age on June 30, 1965 may apply for the Navy College Aptitude Test. Those who make a qualifying score will be given a thorough physical examination in January and February 1965. From the number of qualified young men remaining in competition, approximately 2,000 will be selected to begin their naval careers in college next September.

Application forms are available at local high schools, and Navy Recruiting Stations or from the Chief of Naval Personnel, Department of the Navy, Washington, D.C. 20370.

BLUE CROSS NAMES ALLEN TO POST

RICHMOND — Lloyd S. Allen has been appointed a Physicians Relations Representative for Blue Cross and Blue Shield in the Norfolk area. He was formerly associated with Goodman-Segar-Hogan in Norfolk.

Allen's territory covers the Plans Tidewater Division, which includes Norfolk, Portsmouth, Suffolk, Virginia Beach, Hampton, Newport News, Williamsburg, the Eastern Shore and the counties of Nansemond, Isle of Wight, Southampton, Gloucester, James City, Matthews and York.

VEA Election Help To Mean $5,000 To Fund

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Virginia Education Association Scholarship Foundation will be $5,000 richer after helping to tabulate votes in the national election November 3 for five national news networks.

ABC, CBS, NBC, AP, and UPI will combine and donate the sum in appreciation of the volunteer services of area school personnel who will help to report the official returns from various precincts.

Bill Garrison is in charge of the complete tabulation. "The school personnel who will report the precinct totals are: Blackwater, Mrs. Nellie Gilbert; Bayside No. 1, Gray Cassell; Bayside No. 2, Mrs. Ruth Cole; Davis Corner, Mr. O. Copley; Aragona, Jim Payne; Thalia, E. E. Cox; Kempville, Mrs. Charles Woodstock; Mrs. Anne Davis; London Bridge, Jim Marden; Great Neck, Bruce McGuire; Oceana, Miss Kathleen Meeks; Linkhorn Park, Tom Garreau; Cape Henry, Miss Alice Legum; Setaack, Robert Stenshorn; Creeds, Mrs. Beanie Bell; Capps Store, Miss Louise Luxford; Washwoods, Lee Scarborough; Sigma, Mrs. Norris; Courthouse, Mrs. Vaughan; Brock's Bridge, Mrs. Scofield; Virginia Beach No. 1, Lee Scarborough; and Virginia Beach No. 2, Ed Jacobs."

Navy Steward Charged In Knife-Slaying

LITTLE CREEK — A navy steward has been charged with the knife slaying of his leading chief about 9:15 a.m. Monday. The accused killer was taken into custody by base police shortly afterwards.

The knifing took place in the men's working quarters. Both men were assigned to the flag allowance unit of the Atlantic Fleet Amphibious Force.

Since the death occurred at a Navy base, it is expected that the trial will be by court martial. The steward is also charged with disobedience and unauthorized absence.

Names are being withheld by the Navy pending notification of next of kin.

Eligible Voters In City Listed

VIRGINIA BEACH — There are 32,550 voters in the city of Virginia Beach. Poll tax bills have recently been sent to 22,906. A break-down of voters by precinct listing both permanent (those paying poll tax to vote in both state and federal) and federal-only voters.

Station To Go Back On Air Nov. 9

VIRGINIA BEACH — Radio station WKVK will begin broadcasting on November 9. The studio is at Princess Anne Plaza and will broadcast at the old WBFO frequency of 1550 KC. It will have 5,000 watts power and will be on the air from sunrise to sunset.

The only community station based in Virginia Beach, it will have music, news, sports, and special programs on a popular standard format.

Allan McLellan of Kempville has been named general manager of the station. He is a native of Gloucester, Massachusetts but has lived in this area since 1954.

JETS SALUTE HOOVER

VIRGINIA BEACH — In tribute to former President Herbert Hoover, 20 jets made a low altitude flyover at Virginia Beach 12:25 p.m. Friday. After taking off from Oceana, the planes grouped over the Dismal Swamp, made a low pass over the Beach, then repeated the salute over Washington, where Hoover laid in state in the Capitol rotunda.

AUTO INJURES YOUNG CHILD

LYNNHAVEN — Monte Logan Smith, 3, of 260 S. Lynnhaven Road, remains in critical condition at Kings Daughters Children's Hospital with head, body and leg injuries sustained Saturday.

Police said the child dived from behind a parked car in front of his home into the path of a truck driven north by David E. Dunn of 624 Raff Road around 12:30 p.m.

He was given emergency treatment in General Hospital of Virginia Beach, then transferred to Norfolk.

Dunn, charged with reckless driving, will be given a hearing on January 8, 1965.

UCF Drive Continues

The Women's United Community Fund Residential Drive continues through this week. Recruiting of volunteers started last August. Because of the excellent cooperation of business, many of the residential workers are finding that the families have already given at their place of employment. Discussing the drive are team captains Mrs. Charles S. Kiley, Mrs. M. H. Johnson Jr., and Division Chairman Mrs. W. M. Wilshire Jr. (Staff photo by Hardy)

Mail Without End

During a normal 24-hour day, 130,000 incoming and 55,000 outgoing pieces of mail have to be sorted at the new Virginia Beach Mail Handling Annex at London Bridge. Since all mail for the city must pass through this building, it is from here that special delivery is rushed to residents. The $10,000 per year rent will go up on completion of a new addition to the 7,900 square-foot building. Three of the 70 to 75 workers are, left to right, Mrs. Edith Shea, Mrs. Sterling M. Farley, and Miss Gerry Vincent. (Staff photo by Hardy)

You haven't got that much?

Too bad. Then they may attach your property—or even your income for years to come.

People sue for more, these days. That's true in case of automobile injuries and deaths, and for other accidents for which you may be liable.

But the comforting thing is, it costs surprisingly little to carry an America Fore policy to protect yourself against loss from damage suits. And it costs only a little more to cover yourself PLENTY while you're at it.

This is serious. Check with us on the cost of carrying liability limits high enough to give you COMPLETE protection.

Garden Planning

Outlined For Social Group

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Cavalier Garden Club met Wednesday, October 21, at the Princess Anne Country Club, with Mrs. L. O. Clark, Jr., president, presiding.

The guest speaker was Mrs. Nancy Timmons, assistant to Mr. Fred Heutte of the Norfolk Botanical Gardens.

Mrs. Timmons' subject was "The Planning and Care of a Garden by the Sea". She pointed out the advisability of using plants and trees acclimated to salt infiltration and showed slides of the many beautiful native trees and plants that can be used successfully in this area.

Color should be used as an accent, with trees coming first in the landscaping plan. Also, when planning color, care should be taken that is harmonious with the color of the house or trim.

Mrs. Timmons recommended Christine Kelway's book, "Seaside Gardening", a copy of which is in the library of the Norfolk Botanical Gardens.

Mrs. Harold Kellam and Mrs. G. A. McGuire were awarded blue ribbons in the Arrangement Class; Mrs. H. Webster Brown and Mrs. Leopold Peterson received red ribbons in the Specimen Class.

WHISPERING PINES

LUNCHEON SET

VIRGINIA BEACH — Highlighting the October events for the women of the Whispering Pines Garden Club is the annual bridge-luncheon to be held today at the home of Mrs. S. S. Howard on 23rd Street.

Proceeds received will help finance a child's stay at nature camp next year.

Mrs. Russell Talley, recording secretary, will become a fortune-teller for anyone wishing a reading of palm or cards.

At the regular meeting held last Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Talley, Mrs. H. N. Garbis was welcomed as a new member by the president, Mrs. J. M. Meredith.

The club's sponsor and honorary member, Mrs. Delmar Dee, briefed the group on the care and feeding of pansy plants, hundreds of which are being delivered this week to area garden club members.

It was voted to establish a novice class in flower arrangement to be judged separately from arrangement made by members having three or more blue ribbons.

Winners in the horticulture exhibit for October were: Mrs. Meredith, two blue; Mrs. N. C. Edge, one blue; Mrs. K. Minnott, three red; and Mrs. J. F. Killen, one red.

Following the business meeting, a clinic was conducted by Mrs. Howard and Mrs. L. P. Crockett for members wishing instruction in flower arranging.

The November meeting will take place on the seventeenth at the home of Mrs. Meredith, 516 Southside road.

Getting Ready For Bazaar

Point O' Woods Garden Club members are preparing for their first annual bazaar to be held November 7 in front of the Point O' Woods model homes. Time will be 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Among other items, there will be home-canned and baked foods, needle craft, Christmas decorations, house and garden plants, and prize drawings donated by local merchants. Funds will be used for playground equipment, charity, and beautification of both entrances to the area. Left to right are Mrs. Karla Beasley, Mrs. Gladys Clemens, Mrs. Belle Solger, Mrs. Joa Knowles, Mrs. Dee Bancroft, and Chairman Mrs. Les Richards. (Staff photo by Hardy)

Carpeting For Classrooms New School Idea

In homes and PTA meetings all over the country, people are talking about a new step many schools are taking—providing carpet for classrooms.

"It has had various types of wear and stains such as mud, spit, chocolate, ink and even chewing gum, but it cleans up beautifully—looks grand all the time," Alfred H. Kirchner, principal of the multimillion dollar Berea High School, Greenville, S.C., said of the wall-to-wall carpeting installed as part of a five year experiment in cooperation with the Chemstrand Company, division of Monsanto Company.

As in some one hundred other American schools, carpeting was laid at Berea to compare its initial costs and maintenance with that of more conventional hard surface flooring. Doubts of students and faculty of the practicality of carpeting in schools soon vanished when they saw it retained its fresh appearance—even on rainy days!

At Shaker High School, Newtonville, N.Y., a recent survey revealed that it cost $176.61 in labor, supplies and equipment to maintain 1,000 feet of carpeting—while care of the same amount of asphalt tile required $350.75. These costs were figured on a yearly basis.

Besides, hard floors required mops, wringers, detergents, floor finish removers and polishers, while carpets could be maintained at top condition with only a vacuum cleaner, sweeper and spot remover kit. And according to laboratory tests, carpets and rugs made of Acrilan acrylic fiber offer additional resistance to stains and soiling.

This fiber is highly resilient and recovers readily from the weight of heavy furniture. Chemstrand has found it especially suitable for areas of heavy traffic such as stairways and hallways and it has been selected for many commercial installations as in hotels and aboard airplanes.

Another advantage of having carpeting—according to school officials—is that it greatly reduces such annoying noises as the opening and closing of locker doors, dropping of books, and shuffling of feet. Acoustical tests over the past few years reveal that carpeting absorbs more than 50% of all airborne school noises—so there's less need for expensive acoustical ceiling tiles.

Children particularly like the fact that they did not slip as easily on a carpeted floor and that when they did, they did not hurt themselves. Smaller children especially liked its "soft" feel and often kicked off their shoes, while teachers claimed they were less fatigued after standing and teaching on a carpeted floor all day.

Children in some grade levels even learn better in carpeted rooms. This was revealed in a recent year-long research project conducted by the Bureau of Educational Research and Service Department of the Ohio State University with the cooperation of Chemstrand Company.

The report, on the effects of carpeting on the learning pattern of elementary school students, said that pupils in carpeted rooms in grades 1, 2, 3 and 5 showed a "greater mean yearly growth in achievement than the pupils in the non-carpeted room."

(Single free copies of the report are available from Dr. M. J. Conrad, Educational Administration and Facilities Division, Bureau of Educational Research and Service, College of Education, The Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio. Additional copies are available at $1.00 each with discounts of multiple copy orders.)

With all these facts, it's no wonder that this new idea in school decor has laid the groundwork for some stimulating discussions in educational and parental circles. But even if carpeting becomes standard equipment in the nation's schools, one thing will probably never change:

Recalcitrant pupils will still be called "on the carpet"—in the principal's office.

Furs Come In Varied Prices

With fine furs available in a greater variety of styles, colors and prices than ever before, almost every woman could use a brush-up on her knowledge of furs—including the lady who never thought she could afford one.

Choices range from inexpensive "fun furs" in wild colors to the subtle elegance of natural blue-beige and gunmetal minks. Though mink is far and away the favorite, accounting for an estimated 75-80 per cent of the fur industry's dollar volume, the number of different furs on the market is amazing. Guanaco, tiger, snow leopard, hair seal are just a few possibilities. More clothing now comes in fur form: not only car coats and ski jackets, but vests, dresses and suits!

Somewhere among these many furs is one to suit your figure, present budget and way of life. But how to go about finding it?

Before you set out to shop for your fur, take the advice of the Emba Mink Breeders Association and consider which colors might do most for your complexion and your wardrobe. The new natural pale mink shades, for example, are wonderful for fair-skinned blondes and brunettes. But the best way to select the right color for you—especially in the natural mutation mink—is to try them on! Try! Try! You'll often be surprised at the number of natural colors which complement you.

BIRDNECK CLUB MEETS

BIRDNECK POINT — The October meeting of the Birdneck Point Garden Club was held at the home of Mrs. R. O. Davis on Kingfisher Court. Co-hostesses were Mrs. R. G. Bosher, Mrs. H. W. Swerteger and Mrs. Frank N. Sands, Jr. Mrs. J. C. Pears, Jr., a newcomer to Birdneck Point was a guest of the club.

Mrs. R. A. Adriance, president, presided at the business meeting. Mrs. David Stormont announced there would be a free-of-charge class in Judging Procedures at Galilee Episcopal Church on November 10. The morning session will take up Horticulture; the afternoon will be devoted to Design. Participants will be restricted to members of the Council of Garden Clubs.

Mrs. R. G. Bosher, therapy chairman, announced that decoration of Virginia Beach Hospital would continue to be an annual Christmas project. She also suggested that all gifts brought to the Christmas party be allocated to Williamsburg Hospital.

Members were asked by the president to consider changing the By-Laws to provide honorary membership to those who must leave Birdneck Point, and who had performed outstanding service in the organization.

Following the business meeting, Mrs. H. W. Lindsay introduced Mrs. C. L. Hershberger who entertained the members with a most interesting and unusual talk on the subject of Moon Planting. Mrs. Hershberger is president of the Lynwood Garden Club and a member of the Lynhaven Garden Club.

Awards for Arrangement went to Mrs. Stormont, Mrs. Davis, and Mrs. R. S. Kight. Ribbons for Horticulture went to Mrs. W. H. Hamilton and Mrs. C. B. Arrington.

SCOUTS SELLING SEASON GOODIES

PRINCESS ANNE — Holiday fruit cakes and candies may be ordered from Explorer Scouts of Post 323, sponsored by the Princess Anne Parents Association. The additional cake comes in four sizes and is pre-sliced. Call 855-0203 to place your order early.

Orders will be taken until Nov. 30 with delivery assured by December 15.

Proceeds from the sale will be used for the boys' current project—construction of a house boat to sleep 12 for intercoastal waterway excursions the troop is planning.

Fur texture, too, plays its part in flattery: long-haired furs like lynx and fox may overpower you unless you're tall and leggy.

Very short women will find jackets or full-length coats more flattering than coats in three-quarter or seven-eighths length. If you wear mostly straight, slim skirts, a boxy jacket or tunic-length coat might be a wise fashion choice—but these styles do not look well with full skirts. Generally speaking, the simplest, most classic fur shapes will give longest wear. On the other hand, if a style is sufficiently daring and dramatic, it may not become dated—simply because it was too "far out" to be adopted as a fad.

One of the most important points to consider is a fur's durability; unless you have unlimited funds, a fragile fur may be too expensive at any price. But price is not always the determining factor here: some of the most costly furs, for example, are the least durable. Mink, despite its pampered appearance, is one of the huskiest; with reasonable care, a mink garment can last ten years. At that point, remodeling should prolong its life still further.

Since so many shoppers put their money on mink, the fabulous fur deserves a few special remarks. It is unmatched among furs for versatility: one top fashion editor calls it "a sort of one-coat fur wardrobe." You can wear it for day or evening, in the city or country, to the theatre or a football game.

Many women wonder if the colors of mutation mink are natural; the answer is yes. Color mutations in mink first occur as accidents of nature, then are carefully fostered by scientific cross-breeding on mink ranches. A dozen color phases in 56 natural shades—ranging from pure white through natural blue to natural gunmetal—some of which are marketed by the Emba Mink Breeders Association under its marks, Jasmine, Cerulean, Lutetia, respectively. Oddly enough, the mink breeders have never yet been able to produce a pure black mink; any black mink you see is not natural but dyed.

How many skins does it take to make a full-length mink coat? The answer used to be "at least 65." But now, according to leading fur designers, a mink coat can be made from only 50 skins, thanks to the larger, healthier animals produced by improved feeding techniques on ranches. Result? Better mink at substantially lower prices.

No matter which fur you intend to buy, fur experts agree that it's essential to shop around for values—and equally essential to pick a completely reliable store. Steer clear of establishments that consistently use bait advertising or offer improbable bargains. One good clue to reliability: if the furrier has storage and remodeling services, he's not afraid to have customers come back!

TRANTWOOD P-TA INSTALLS OFFICERS

TRANTWOOD — Trantwood Elementary School P-TA elected and installed officers, who will serve for the coming year, at the opening meeting held Oct. 14 at the school.

Dale E. Story was elected president; first vice-president, Lt. Cmdr. Charles R. Bone; second vice-president, Mrs. R. L. Haas; secretary, Miss Linda Williams; and treasurer, George N. Byrd.

The By-laws were presented to the meeting and approved. Regular meeting time was set to be the second Wednesday of each month at 7:30 p.m. at the school.

GRANT GARDENERS WELCOME MEMBERS

KING'S GRANT — Four new members were welcomed into the King's Grant Garden Club at their regular meeting held last Thursday at the home of Mrs. S. N. Howe, 608 Timberland Trail.

They are Mrs. Lee Moss, Mrs. Owen Austin, Mrs. W. G. Mattia, and Mrs. Burnett Thompson.

Guest speaker was Mrs. E. A. Hofmeister who judged Centerpieces and Line Arrangement.

Winners of ribbons were Mrs. R. C. Kirkpatrick, Jr. and Mrs. J. D. Lowin, blue; red, Mrs. H. L. Moir; and yellow, Mrs. T. L. Ray.

Fur in this dream coat is Tourmaline, Emba rare natural pale beige mink. Designed by Ben Kahn, this coat is styled along slim lines, yet has luxurious full appearance and is topped by a squared collar. Sleeves are fashioned horizontally.

When you look at furs, examine pelts to see that they match in color, texture, depth. In natural, undyed furs, the darker pelts are sometimes placed center front and center back, shading to lighter colors on the sides. If this has been done, the matching should be so well graduated that a very pleasing effect is achieved.

Straight-haired furs like beaver and mink should be dense with a silky "feel." For curly, flat furs like Persian lamb, the measure of quality is the tightness of the curl. Long-haired fox, raccoon and sable furs should be thick, yet soft. Make sure that hard-wear areas like sleeves, cuffs, collars, pockets and hems are of thick, full fur. Watch out for "weak" poorly furred skins hidden away in the undersides. Thin spots anywhere in the fur are another dead giveaway of poor quality. Examine the leather side of the garment. Seams scattered at random indicate repaired blemishes in the animal's skin. If the seams form a regular pattern, they indicate the processes called "letting-in" or "letting-out."

Let-in furs are made shorter and wider; let-out furs are made longer and narrower. The letting-out process reaches its ultimate in fine mink. Seams may be only 1/16" apart, elongating the pelt so far that it sweeps from collar to hem. According to Emba, the letting-out process alone may take from nine to ten days to complete!

The "Emba" stamp on the leather side of the pelts is also a guarantee that the pelts have met with rigid quality standards set by Emba's marketing board. This year, Emba has developed a new quality designation to help you buy mink. If the mink is of top or "rare" Emba quality, a blue-green marking will appear on the inside of each pelt, and the accompanying labels will bear one of its marks, Autumn Haze, Arcurus, etc. Black markings on the pelts will tell the next or "royal" Emba quality, and the label will read pastel, lavender, etc.

Even the lining of a fur garment can tell a quality story. Most moderate-priced furs are lined with rayon or acetate; better garments have silk, satin or brocade linings. In most moderate and better-priced furs, the lining is hand-sewn; look for small close stitches, especially at points of friction like armholes and pockets. The hangtags are there for your protection; read them carefully, don't just glance. By Federal law, the label must tell you the true English name of the animal that produced it, as well as the country of origin of imported furs. If the garment contains used or second-hand fur, it is made wholly or largely of paws, gills, flanks, tails or sides, also learn whether or not the tag. From the label, you can also learn whether or not the fur has been bleached, dyed or "tip-dyed" (this term refers to the dyeing of the surface or guard hairs of the fur). If the fur has not been dyed, it will be labeled "natural."

But even if the fur is the finest, you can't make a proper choice unless you pay enough attention to fit. A fur coat or jacket should hang evenly from the shoulders and not feel heavy; this is known in the trade as "balance." The fur must permit ample arm movement, not only for looks but to avoid the expense of split seams.

This is not the whole fur story—but armed with these basic facts, you now know more than 90 per cent of the women who go fur-hunting. If you use this knowledge, you'll be well on your way to making a fur selection that will give you many happy hours with your new fur.

Strong Vote for Senator Byrd and Rep. Downing Deserved

Next Tuesday the voters of Virginia Beach will have an opportunity to demonstrate their confidence and approval of United States Senator Harry F. Byrd and Congressman Thomas N. Downing. Both men deserve a decisive vote in the Tuesday balloting.

Senator Byrd, the veteran senior senator from Virginia, is one of the most respected men in Washington and, of course, has a high place in the Congress of the United States. Voters all over the state will be casting their ballots in this election and we believe that Senator Byrd will be overwhelmingly re-elected to the senate post he has held for many years.

In the case of Mr. Downing it will be a matter for the voters in the First Congressional District. It might be well to repeat a statement made by one of the leaders in the District at a recent political meeting. This statement was to the effect that "Tom Downing is the best congressman this district has ever had."

Congressman Downing has been an outstanding representative of the people of this district in the Congress of the United States. He is highly respected in Washington and has established himself admirably in the space of a few short years. He is a member of several important committees and has demonstrated a keen sense of responsibility to his duties. In short Mr. Downing is, and has been ever alert to the needs of Virginia Beach and the First District and is always on the job to protect the interests of the people he represents.

The Sun-News urges a strong vote for both Senator Byrd and Congressman Downing on Tuesday. No area in the Nation is better represented than the First District of Virginia and we can show our appreciation by returning these two men to their positions in Washington.

Reviewer Stimulates Book Fair Interest

Margery Loomis Krome, right, children's book reviewer for the Virginian-Pilot, highlighted some of the outstanding 1964 books for the Friends School Parents Group at the Bay Harbor Club Tuesday night. Mrs. Krome whetted the literary appetite of parents and teachers for the forthcoming Book Fair to be held at Friends School November 8 and through 7th. Pictured with Mrs. Krome are Mrs. John Waller (left) and Mrs. John Crawford.

Donor Gives To Advertise Area's Assets

NORFOLK — A unique gift of one thousand dollars was recently presented to Virginia National Bank in the form of a credit toward advertising space in the "Wall Street Journal." The anonymous contributor specified that the money should be used in promoting the Tidewater Virginia area.

Virginia National Bank was created in April, 1963 through a consolidation of two of the state's leading financial institutions. Several months earlier, legislation had been passed permitting the establishment of statewide branch banking systems in Virginia.

Upon consolidation, Virginia National Bank launched a national advertising campaign. The campaign was based upon dynamic industrial and economic growth of the state and called attention to the formation of a statewide bank which would provide the full range of banking services required to meet modern industry's demands. The advertising program was observed by the anonymous contributor and resulted in his one thousand dollar gift.

Since April of 1963, subsequent mergers have increased the number of Virginia National Bank offices to forty-six and its resources to over $425 million.

According to R. Cooley Moore, Chairman of the Board of Virginia National Bank, and W. Wright Harrison, President, they have "accepted the gift with appreciation and a promise that the funds will be used to promote the 'Tidewater Virginia area.'"

The resulting advertisement appeared in Monday's issue of the "Wall Street Journal." "Wall Street Journal" officials said that this was the first incident of its kind on record.

Local Motel Operator Honored

VIRGINIA BEACH — Third place honors in a special reservations competition sponsored by Quality Motels, Inc., have been won by Sidney S. Kellam, owner of the Thunderbird Motor Lodge in Virginia Beach.

Kellam received the plaque at the Quality Motels national convention, which was held October 18-21 at the New York Hilton Hotel. He was cited for recording over $32,000 in total reservations made to other Quality Courts motels during the past year.

Quality Motels has over 500 motels and 30,000 units in the United States and Canada.

WITNESSES MEET IN ELIZABETH CITY

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. — The Jehovah Witnesses held a three day seminar at R. W. Moore High School, Oct. 16-18, at which J. A. Thompson, Jr., district supervisor, spoke on "Speaking the Word of God with Boldness" on Friday, and "Our Divided World - Is It Here to Stay" on Sunday.

Delegates participated in door to door delivery of their magazines, and a model ministry school was conducted on Saturday and 26 persons were baptized.

MILLER & RHOADS EXECUTIVE SPEAKS

NORFOLK — Mr. Gordon L. Mallon, vice-president of Miller & Rhoads, Inc., of Richmond, will speak at the advertising Club of Norfolk's monthly dinner meeting, tonight at 6:30 p.m., in the Admiralty Motor Hotel.

Mr. Mallon has chosen as his topic, "Why Miller & Rhoads has selected the Tidewater market for its newest retail outlet."

Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Anna Winfred of Norfolk and Mrs. Mable Parker of Philadelphia.

A funeral service was held Sunday at 2 p.m. in Mt. Zion A.M.E. Church, Virginia Beach, by the Rev. T. M. Cowell. Burial was in the church cemetery, with Hairston's Funeral Home, Virginia Beach, in charge.

MRS. MARCELLA WELCH

PLAZA — Mrs. Marcella Otis Welch, 58, of 3308 Stancil Court, Princess Anne Plaza, widow of Robert J. Welch and daughter of John L. and Mrs. Nellie Rose Welch, died in a Norfolk hospital Wednesday at 6:20 p.m.

A native of New Orleans, she lived in this area 33 years. She was a member of St. Nicholas Catholic Church.

She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Beulah Welch, Mrs. Shirley Welch, and Mrs. Marcella Welch, all of Virginia Beach; a sister, Mrs. Richard A. Corcoran, and a brother, N. J. Otis, both of New Orleans; 15 grandchildren and a great-grandchild. The body was taken to H. D. Oliver Funeral Apartments, Norfolk.

MRS. LINA CAMERON

SUFFOLK — Mrs. Lina Cameron, a native of Nansemond County, died Friday in St. Anthony Hospital, St. Petersburg, Florida.

She was a daughter of William Amos and Mrs. Nancy Darden Lassiter of Nansemond County and was superintendent of public welfare in Princess Anne County many years. She later was welfare superintendent at Warrenton.

She is survived by a son, James Otis Wright of Birmingham, Mich.; three sisters, Mrs. Malbon E. Joyner of Nansemond County and Mrs. A. W. Craft and Mrs. Ruth Lawshe of Virginia Beach; and two grandchildren.

A funeral service was held Monday at 3:30 p.m. in Baker Funeral Home by the Rev. Charles L. Landrum of Suffolk Presbyterian Church. Burial was in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

MRS. LUCY K. FELS

VIRGINIA BEACH — Mrs. Lucy Keresey Fels, 82, of 4805 Lee Ave., died Saturday morning in a Portsmouth hospital.

A native of New York, she was a daughter of Redmond and Mrs. Margaret Humphries Keresey and the widow of Charles Fels. She was a member of St. Gregory the Great Catholic Church.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Grace Moore of Rye, N.Y.; two sons, Raymond Fels of Virginia Beach and Donald Fels of New York; a brother, William Keresey of Larchmont, N.Y.; two sisters, Mrs. Loretta Keresey of Larchmont and Mrs. Jennie Belew of Miami; and three grandchildren.

A funeral service was held Monday at 10:30 a.m. in St. Gregory the Great Catholic Church. Burial was in Rosewood Memorial Park.

JOHN L. LONG

VIRGINIA BEACH — John Laban Long, 69, of 1421 Dermott Ave., Lakeview Shores, husband of Mrs. Mary Sivills Long and son of Thomas and Mrs. Ida Brown Long, died in Gaffney, S.C., Friday while on a visit.

Mr. Long, a native of Gaffney, lived in the Norfolk-Virginia Beach area 45 years.

He was a member of Lafayette Presbyterian Church and Atlantic Masonic Lodge 2. He retired from Norfolk Little Creek Amphibious Base after 21 years.

Besides his widow, he is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Mary L. Noel of Virginia Beach and Mrs. Doris L. Barber of Norfolk; and six grandchildren.

A funeral service was conducted in Hollomon-Brown Funeral Home Sunday at 3 p.m. by the Rev. Raleigh M. Engle of Lafayette Presbyterian Church. Burial was in Rosewood Memorial Park.

WATERFOWL BLINDS REMAIN OPEN

BACK BAY — Approximately 772 waterfowl hunting blind reservations on 51 days remained open on the Game Commission's new Trojan and Pocahontas Waterfowl Management Areas at Back Bay following the drawing October 16, according to Chester F. Phelps, Executive Director.

A total of 99 applications representing 259 hunters were submitted for the drawing to allocate choice dates. Following the drawing November 7, 14, 16, 21 and 28 plus December 5 and 12 were booked solid but one or more openings remained on all other hunting dates.

Persons desiring to reserve the blinds may still do so on a first come-first served basis by contacting Area Manager Os Halstead, Creeds Station, Virginia Beach, Phone 426-3320. Blinds cannot be reserved until the $3 daily blind fee is received. With the exception of Mondays, there are quite a few openings on most weekends. The areas will be closed on Sundays and on Christmas day, December 25.

Hunters desiring to shoot on the Trojan Area need only to pay the $3 daily blind fee but must furnish their own boat, decoys and gear. There are a total of 10 blinds available each day on this area with up to 3 hunters allowed in each under the one $3 fee. On the Pocahontas Area in addition to the $3 blind fee which must be submitted in advance, hunters must be prepared to pay their guide a fee of $20 for which he will furnish boat and decoys for up to 3 hunters. There are a total of 5 of these blinds available each day.

LOCAL HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL ROUND-UP

VIRGINIA BEACH — Kellam High School set the pace among Virginia Beach high schools the past weekend as the Black Knights registered their first victory in 14 games. Kellam defeated James Blair of Williamsburg, 27-20.

The Kellam victory was a perfect climax to the formal dedication of their stadium. It was a non-conference game but the long-awaited win was most welcome.

In another equally important game Cox's Falcons trounced Virginia Beach's Seahawks by a 13 to 7 score. The Hawks could not move against the Falcons and only managed to tally in the late minutes of the game.

Deep Creek handed Princess Anne its second straight loss by downing the Cavaliers, 19 to 13.

The return of Quarterback Joe Byrnes sparked the Kellam win over Blair. Byrnes passed for two touchdowns and also for three extra points.

Powerful Joe Podleski led the Falcon charge. Podleski repeatedly ripped the center of the Seahawk line for big gains. In Cox's second touchdown Podleski gained 53 yards of the 66 yard drive for the score.

Virginia Beach, however, was knocking on the door as the game ended with the Seahawks in possession on the Cox 20 yard line.

Jimmy Lawrence, Deep Creek Halfback, led his team against favored PA. He scored twice in upsetting the Cavaliers.

NEWS REPORT FROM THE UNIVERSITY

NEUROLOGY PROGRAM EXPANDS

Neurology is the branch of medicine dealing with structural diseases of the nervous system. Among them are muscular dystrophy, multiple sclerosis, cerebral palsy, myasthenia gravis, such vascular disorders as strokes, and seizure problems.

Medical science is rapidly expanding its research into the causes of these disorders, many of which strike children and young adults in their most productive years. At the same time, programs of treatment and rehabilitation are becoming more effective.

A reflection of this change is the expansion of the neurology clinic program at the University of Virginia Medical Center.

Ten years ago there was no separate neurology clinic. This year the neurology clinic became a separate entity in the medical center with its own quarters. The patient load involving neurological disorders has more than tripled in the past seven or eight years. Patients come here from all parts of Virginia and from neighboring states.

Some of these disorders are chronic; hence there is a major emphasis upon rehabilitation as part of the clinic's program. A patient may be helped by various types of therapy which will help him adapt to his disability and make maximum use of the physical and mental abilities which he has.

Physicians on the clinic staff make evaluations of patients who are capable of vocational rehabilitation and work closely with the Woodrow Wilson Rehabilitation Center, Fishersville. Programs are developed for children with reading and speech defects and for persons who are deaf or blind.

Treatment of persons subject to seizures has become increasingly effective in recent years with development of various drugs. A major part of the clinic program involves diagnosis and treatment of seizure patients, many of whom are able to live virtually normal lives.

A new area for the clinic will be evaluation and treatment of children with multiple congenital defects. This would include combinations of physical defects, mental retardation, paralysis and seizures.

While the cause and cure of many of these neurological disorders may be years away and life for many of these patients is a matter of making the best of a tragic situation, three recent developments demonstrate the dramatic change which can occur:

Development of safe and effective vaccines has meant that poliomyelitis, once a major killer andcrippler, is no longer a significant public health problem in the United States.

Epilepsy used to ruin the lives of its victims, because of the seizures themselves and public misconception and superstitions concerning the disorders, but drugs can now control or prevent seizures so that epileptics are free to live full and normal lives.

GAME SITE CHANGED

VIRGINIA BEACH — The football game between Virginia Beach High School and Holland will be played in Virginia Beach and not at Holland as originally scheduled.

Season tickets to Virginia Beach High School games will not be honored at this contest. Student tickets are 50c.

Supernatural State Fascinates Man

Man's fascination with the supernatural is an emotional balancing act between fear and fun. The hearty laugh of those who shudder at ghost stories frequently has an embarrassing resemblance to a nervous giggle.

There's an irresistible appeal about the shadowing world of the occult that has attracted poets, playwrights and authors for centuries. And, throughout the history of mankind, this appeal has spelled success in the entertainment business — from William Shakespeare, with the ghost of Hamlet's father to Rod Serling and his probes of the "Twilight Zone."

Current manifestations of the allure of the weird are three new television programs. Two of the shows caricature eerie families in haunted houses; the third features a contemporary witch in the guise of a normal housewife.

All three are intended to produce laughs, but the basic ingredients of the spagy are found deep in man's tribal lore—centuries before television was even a bad dream. And, presumably, there was nothing funny about the superstitious beliefs of those early times.

For instance, Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia relates that the ancient Druids believed spirits of the dead roamed abroad on Halloween and they lighted bonfires to drive them away.

They also thought that cats had once been human beings but were changed as a punishment for evil deeds. This curious notion found its way into 20th century melodrama with the broadcast of Arch Oboler's hair-raising radio play, "The Cat-Wife," which starred Boris Karloff.

A more neighborly explanation of the old European custom of blazing bonfires on Halloween is found in Sir James Frazer's classic book on primitive customs, "The Golden Bough." He points out that the souls of the departed were supposed to revisit their old homes in order to warm themselves by the fire and to bask in the good cheer provided by their affectionate kinfolk.

The Irish say that jack-o'-lanterns originated with a man named Jack who was doomed to walk the earth with his lantern until Judgment Day because he was unable to enter either heaven or hell.

Even after November 1 became a Christian feast day, honoring all saints, the peasants clung to the old pagan beliefs and customs. According to Compton's, the holy day traces back to 610 A.D. when Emperor Phocas gave the Roman Pantheon to Pope Boniface IV as a church.

But when the Druids were calling the shots, they combined their fear of ghosts with fun and rejoicing. A three-day celebration centered around Halloween. The festivities included roasting of nuts and apples as symbols of the harvest.

Today, the wrappings of ancient rituals are still with us on Halloween—grotesque masks, witches, black cats, white ghosts. But the glamour of mystery and awe that clung to the annual observance has long since been dissipated. There are very few practitioners of black magic in today's enlightened space age. Superstitious fear of the unknown has been uprooted by technological advances.

Only squares dig all that spook nonsense. Of course, even the most sophisticated take a dim view of walking by a cemetery at night. And, sometimes when you're alone late at night you can hear some awfully strange noises and see some mighty peculiar shapes in your own house.

And when this happens, you can always turn on the television, watch an old Dracula film and remind yourself that it's fun to be scared.

Originally broadcast on early Sunday evenings by Mutual, it has been translated into several foreign languages and is presently being aired in Canada, Trinidad, Australia, South America and 129 radio stations in the United States.

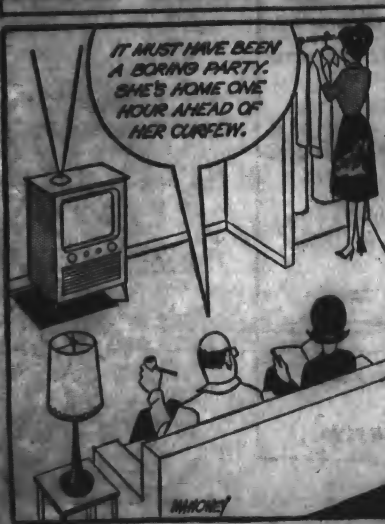

The resurgence in the popularity and revival of "The Shadow" proves the point that, a good story, well told, is never out of date.

"The Shadow" is being presented by Carroll's Drive In through Advertising Dynamics of Norfolk.

"There is nothing wrong with a good political joke unless it gets elected."

MOVIE'S WHITE HOUSE ALMOST LIKE REAL ONE

POLLY BERGEN

The White House constructed on the Warner Bros. lot for "Kisses for My President" was so realistic—and authentic—that an actual U.S. President could virtually move in and start working.

In fact, members of the audience will see more of the Presidential residence in this film than if they were to take the official tour through the White House.

"Reporter" Has Fraud Plot

Exposing a crooked fundraising foundation operating in the name of charity brings newspaperman Danny Taylor into serious conflict with his publisher, on "The Reporter" Friday, Oct. 30 (10-11 p.m., EST) on the CBS Television Network.

William Shatner as Jack Horner, a wealthy wheeler-and-dealer in charity organizations, and Gene Raymond as Charles Sherwood, publisher of the fictitious New York Globe, are co-guest stars in the episode. Danny Taylor is played by series star Harry Guardino, with Gary Merrill seen in his regular role at city editor Lou Sheldon.

Suspicious of Horner's current "charity" in behalf of needy children, Danny runs afoul not only of the Globe's publisher but also of the latter's daughter Laurie, Horner's fiancée and one of the administrators of his "foundation," before investigation proves Danny's suspicions to be correct.

Featured in the cast are Evans Evans as Laurie, Victor Kilian as Tor Ericsson, Ellen Madison as Bonnie Abarbanel, and James Condon and William Traylor as Pod and Sonny, two of Horner's cohorts. Cast regular Remo Pisanì appears as Ike Dawson.

The script was written by Herb Meadow and directed by Paul Stanley. Tom Gries produced.

Oldtimers On Special NBC Radio Program

"Why don't you come up and see me sometime?" Mae West will intone to Charlie McCarthy once again when "The Chase & Sanborn 100th Anniversary Radio Show" is broadcast Sunday, Nov. 15 (7:05-8 p.m. EST) on the NBC Radio Network.

Voices of Miss West, Clark Gable, James Stewart, Ethel Barrymore, Carole Lombard and Ray Noble will join those of previously announced stars Fred Allen, Mary Pickford, Don Ameche, Eddie Cantor, Rudy Vallee, Margaret O'Brien, Nelson Eddy, Alec Templeton, Ogden Nash, Jack Oakie, Adolphe Menjou, Charles Laughton, W. C. Fields, Dorothy Lamour and Rosalind Russell the night the "golden age of radio" is re-created.

"The Chase & Sanborn 100th Anniversary Radio Show" will be hosted by Edgar Bergen and that famous bon vivant Charlie McCarthy. Mortimer Snerd will aid Bergen and McCarthy in introducing and tying together the special radio broadcast that features the great comedy material taped from the transcriptions of the old "Chase & Sanborn Hour" of the 1930's and 1940's.

in the Executive Wing or the Presidential family quarters, but replicas of both are present, and viewable, in "Kisses for My President."

The new Warner Bros. comedy, which imagines what could happen were a woman to become President of the United States, is due to open Wednesday at the Princess Theatre. Polly Bergen plays the feminine Chief Executive. Fred MacMurray is her ex-businessman husband who finds himself turned into the first male "First Lady" in American history. Arlene Dahl portrays a wicked divorcee who tries to snare the President's husband, Eli Wallace, is cast as a South American dictator who dotes on fast cars, boats and women. Edward Andrews plays a U.S. Senator intent on undercutting the First Family.

Most of the action of "Kisses for My President" takes place in the White House, so the studio version was a realistic replica. Not only was the architecture exact but the bronzes, paintings, drapes, rugs and silverware, too. A stroll through the Warner studio White House would give one access to sets which duplicate the White House's first-floor East room, corridor, entry and dining room. For the second-floor, there were sets of the oval living room, the President's and the First Lady's bedrooms and the corridor. For the Executive Wing, there were sets for the President's office, the Cabinet Room and the corridor. The Southern Portico was also reproduced, as was the entrance porch of the White House. Flower garden would get a special thrill from the rose garden set filled with the exact varieties to be seen in the White House gardens.

Shirley Booth Life Just As She Dreamed

"I am the person I thought I'd be," says Shirley Booth, title star of NBC-TV's "Hazel" series (NBC / colorcasts Thursdays, 9:30 p.m. NY). "The life I envisioned for myself as a teenager is exactly the life I live today."

From earliest childhood, Shirley wanted to be an actress. "By the time I was a teenager," she recalls, "nothing other than acting seemed worthwhile. And that wasn't because acting seemed to be the road to great wealth. I merely wanted to act."

Then, as now, Shirley Booth's reasons for wanting to be an actress are the same: "I wanted to 'explain' people—make them understandable and readily recognizable to others. I've never swerved from this objective. Creating understanding among people is a wonderful accomplishment. It has also taught me much. From age 17 until the present, every play that I have appeared in has broadened me."

As mentioned, Shirley was not drawn to the theatre because of the possible riches she could acquire. "Glamour also was not a factor," she says. "Jewels and other physical possessions were and are meaningless to me. I wasn't and am not cut out for the elaborate life. I have always known this. And I wish some of our younger stars knew this about themselves."

"Some soon-to-be stars will suffer when they find out that their time is not their own—when publicity pulls them one way and life another. I've always been a balking mule when anything tried to interfere with my being me. I never wanted to be a super-star. I wanted to be an actress. There's a difference. I think I've succeeded."

Of her career, the Emmy and Oscar winning Shirley Booth says, "It has never ruled me. I never rushed toward fame. I took each step as it came. I relished everything that happened to me, mainly because it happened gradually—the way I wanted it."

Shirley Booth refers to herself as "a contented actress"—one who is content both on and off stage. "Success," explains Shirley, "has enabled me to be myself—to do the things I wanted to do—to live the way I chose to live. I've been very lucky."

British Actress On NBC-TV

British actress Rosemary Harris will star in the title role of "The Mary S. McDowell Story," dealing with the loyalty oath issue in public schools during World War I, on NBC-TV's "Profiles in Courage" Sunday, Nov. 15 (6:30-7:30 p.m. EST).

The series, based on the Pulitzer Prize-winning book by the late President John F. Kennedy, is produced by Robert Soudack Associates.

When the United States enters World War One, acting Superintendent of Schools Schneider (Albert Salmi) asks all New York City school teachers to sign a loyalty oath supporting the war effort. Mary McDowell, a Latin teacher at Brooklyn Manual Training High School, refuses on religious grounds as a member of the Society of Friends. Pressures to conform, for fear of the consequences, are brought by her mother, Mrs. McDowell (Audrey Christie) and school Principal Ralston (Woodrow Parfrey).

Co-starring are Ralph Williams as Fred Simpson, Mary's suitor; Frances Sternhagen as Lili Koeller, a German-American teacher who refuses to sign the loyalty oath; Katherine Squire as Mrs. Simpson, Fred's mother; and George Mitchell as Mr. Broomell, Mary's lawyer.

The cast includes Jason Wingreen as a reporter and Mary Gregory as a Quaker. Jose Quintano directed this drama by Peter S. Feibelman.

A couple of Christmases ago, somebody at The Seaboard Bank had a nice little idea.
If we were to offer
two tall green bayberry-scented candles free to everyone joining our Christmas Club, more people would join.
And they did.

In fact, the whole thing worked out so well that it became a kind of tradition in the Tidewater area.

So this Christmas,
we're repeating our traditional offer.

If you come into any of our branches, we'll give you a lovely box of fragrant candles when you open your 1965 Christmas
Club account.
Don't put it off.
We may run out of candles.

If you put in $1 every two weeks, by next Christmas you'll have $25.
$2 mounts up to $50.

$4 to $100.

$10 to $250.

$20 to $500.

Come in and we'll help you work out which plan suits you best.

Amendment Confusing

VIRGINIA BEACH — Voters in this area may be confronted with a decision on the official ballots next Tuesday of which they are unaware.

A proposed amendment to the state Constitution will appear on the ballots and indicate that many voters do not realize that the amendment has been suggested.

Magazine Features City

VIRGINIA BEACH — The growth and potential of Virginia Beach gained state-wide attention recently in an article featured in the "Virginia Municipal Review."

Submitted and by-lined by Mrs. Laura Lamb, news bureau director for the City of Virginia Beach, the article included several pictures of local landmarks and outlined the city's progress over the past six years.

It pointed out that since 1958 about $12-million has been spent in new resort construction and that by 1975 an additional $20-million is expected to meet the fast-growing tourism needs.

The economy of Virginia Beach was emphasized by figures released by the Sales Management's Survey of Buying Power which states that the city's buying income jumped from $208,181,000 in 1962 to $215,524,000 in 1963.

The retail sales, according to the same survey, increased from $58,229,000 in 1962 to $60,080,000 in 1963.

"Long range planning encompasses additional schools, expanded recreational facilities, an oceanfront marina, a system of waterways that will be a great boost to boating and fishing, a $5,250,000 Municipal Center and $66,000,000 of highway construction (projected through 1980)," the article states.

It also mentions the recent Congressional appropriation of $200,000 for the "deepening and widening of Lynnhaven River and tributaries," the city-owned dredge which operates on a $30,000 budget and a master plan study that will require about $78,000 over the next three years.

PANCAKES AND VOTES

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Virginia Beach Exchange Club has thought of everything to appease the voters — and even the non-voters — next Tuesday.

The club has scheduled its annual Pancake Party to coincide with election day and will also provide television sets so that participants can watch election returns while they eat.

This popular annual pancake feast will be held at the Alan B. Shepard Civic Center from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Proceeds from the affair will go toward the purchase of one of the National Exchange Club's Freedom Shrines for Virginia Beach High School.

These shrines are displays of exact copies of 28 historical American documents photographically reproduced on attractive plaques. They may be exhibited in schools or other public buildings to better educate today's youth in the principles upon which this nation was founded.

A spokesman for the local Exchange Club said that the group hopes to raise enough funds in the near future to provide Freedom Shrines for all of the city's high schools.

RIDE TO POLLS

PRINCESS ANNE PLAZA — Princess Anne Plaza residents desiring transportation to and from the polls Tuesday, or needing baby sitting service while voting, should contact Ed Daly at 341-5812 on Nov. 3.

This service is available through courtesy of the Plaza Elementary P-TA and the Plaza Civic League.

BULLETIN

Father Nicholas Habets, pastor of St. Nicholas Catholic Church at King's Grant and former pastor of Star of the Sea Catholic Church in Virginia Beach, died suddenly of a heart attack about 2:30 p.m. Wednesday at his home in King's Grant. No details were available as the Sun-News went to press late Wednesday afternoon.

Downing To Speak Thursday

VIRGINIA BEACH — Congressman Thomas N. Downing, incumbent candidate for the House of Representatives from this district, will speak at two meetings tonight in Virginia Beach on behalf of the Democratic Party.

His first appearance will be at Pembroke Elementary School at 7:30 p.m. at a joint meeting of the Virginia Beach Young Democratic Club, the City Campaign Committee, the Woman's Democratic Club and the Teen-Dem Clubs.

Shortly after 8 p.m. Downing will speak at an open meeting at Liphorn Park School.

The public is invited to attend.

Volunteers Fight Pre-Dawn Fire

Mrs. R. C. Ivey, left, and Mrs. John Carlson inspect a fire-gutted room in the home of C. A. Kinnach of Arnold Circle. The fire started about 2 a.m. Wednesday. Volunteers' firemen from the London Bridge and the Oceana departments fought the fire until about 6:30 a.m. "The volunteer firemen did an excellent job," said Kinnach. "They were hampered by not being able to get at the attic fire. The flames were so bad that many of the fire-fighters were dropping like leaves." After the family was safely outside, Kinnach used a wet towel over his hand to return through the intense flames to save the dog. He succeeded. Kinnach was unable to estimate his losses, but guessed the house and furnishings were a near total loss. (Staff photo by Hardy)

Getting Ready For Halloween

BARRY'S DAUGHTER BIG HIT HERE

by Ruby Jean Phillips

VIRGINIA BEACH — Mr. and Mrs. Rick Holt made a brief visit in Virginia Beach Wednesday and were welcomed with open arms by area Republican candidates and committeemen.

The reason, of course, is that Mrs. Holt is the former Peggy Goldwater, youngest daughter of the Republican presidential candidate, Sen. Barry M. Goldwater.

The appearance of the personable young couple was the first boost the Republican campaign has had in Tidewater and even though notice of their visit preceded them less than 24 hours a large group of supporters were on hand to greet them.

The political going has been strenuous on Peggy and Rick, as everyone seems compelled to call them, but they smiled warmly as they walked into the Cavalier ballroom for a luncheon in their honor.

Married about four months ago, the two have been caught in the political whirl ever since Sen. Goldwater was nominated in August and have campaigned in about nine or 10 states.

When asked if he had any political aspirations, Rick, who is associated with an oil company, replied, "yes, to get Sen. Goldwater elected president."

Both Rick and Peggy feel confident that her father will win when the votes are counted next Tuesday. They said the Mexican support in Texas is very strong and the "silent vote" all over the country has not been taken into consideration by the polls that predict a landslide for

Forum Will Draw Fourteen City Officials

VIRGINIA BEACH — Fourteen city officials have accepted the League of Women Voters' invitation to appear on a city government forum Nov. 9.

They include Revenue Commissioner Ivan Mapp, Commonwealth's Attorney Robert Simpson, Treasurer, J. V. Jack Ehreridge, City Sergeant John Marr, City Clerk John Pentress, City Manager W. Russell Hatchett, Planning Director Mason Gamage, Electoral Board Chairman John James, School Superintendent Frank W. Cox or a representative and Councilmen Lawrence Marshall, James Darden, Earl Tebault, L. Stanley Hodges and Edward T. Caton.

Various clubs and organizations throughout the city have been asked to submit questions prior to the forum for the city representatives to answer and discuss.

Groups that have not yet been contacted may also send questions to the League's chairman, Mrs. R. H. Fisher, 308 Lillian Avenue, Virginia Beach.

The forum is set for 7:45 p.m. at the Alan B. Shepard Civic Center. The public is invited to attend.

FIRING AT FORT STORY

FORT STORY — Personnel at Fort Story will be firing on the base's small arms range Monday through Friday from 7:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily.

Red flags will be displayed on land points while firing is being conducted.

Political Action Picking Up

VIRGINIA BEACH — Political activity in Virginia Beach is reaching a frantic peak as the general election looms just five days away.

Both the Democratic and Republican headquarters have stepped up their last minute campaigning and volunteers are feverishly devoting their time for coffee, telephoning, distribution of literature and other activities.

The city's 32,550 registered voters, an all-time record number, are expected to converge on the 23 precincts next Tuesday to vote for the candidates of their choice.

The largest precinct is Bay-side No. 1 with 3,095 registered voters, followed by Virginia Beach No. 1 with 2,842, Kempville with 2,150 and Woodlawn with 2,057.

Most of the activity has been for the presidential and vice presidential candidates but the next few days will probably see an increased interest in both the senatorial and congressional races.

As a last minute point of information, here are the candidates as they will appear on the official ballots next Tuesday:

National Democratic Party: Lyndon B. Johnson for president and Hubert H. Humphrey for vice president.

Republican Party: Barry M. Goldwater for president and William E. Miller for vice president.

State
Socialist Labor Party: Eric Haas for president and Heening A. Blomen for vice president.

United States Senator (vote for one): Harry F. Byrd, J. B. Brayman, Milton L. Green, Richard A. May, Robert E. Poole Jr., James W. Respass and Willie T. Wright.

House of Representatives in Congress from the First District (vote for one): Thomas N. Downing and Wayne C. Thiesse.

Voters will also have the opportunity to vote for or against a proposed amendment to the Constitution of Virginia concerning write-in voting.

LEAGUE MEETING

KEMPSVILLE — The Rotary Manor Civic League will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at Emanuel Episcopal Church.

Final reading of the league's new constitution will be held at this time and plans for a Christmas dance will be discussed.

The church is located at the rear of Be-Lo Supermarket in Kempville Borough.

YOUNG DEMOS HERE MAP FINAL PLANS

VIRGINIA BEACH — Johnny M. Strickland, campaign manager for the City's Young Democrats and Richard R. Absalom, President of the local Young Democratic Club, have issued joint statements regarding final week efforts on behalf of the Johnson-Byrd ticket in Virginia Beach.

They have "urged all young voters to exert an all out effort to join them in support of the straight democratic ticket."

They have also "stressed the importance of returning Thomas N. Downing as First Congressional District Congressman by an overwhelming majority. Downing has provided this District with sound progressive representation since his election to the House of Representatives in 1958 and we hope his constituents will reward him with a resounding victory over his Republican opponent."

Both Absalom and Strickland have stressed the importance of getting voters to the polls on November 3rd. Voters are reminded that local Democratic Headquarters at Thalia and Virginia Beach Borough are actively staffed and workers wishing to volunteer services on November 3rd are urged to contact either headquarters.

Richard R. Absalom, President of the Virginia Beach Young Democratic Club and Johnny M. Strickland, Campaign Manager of the City Young Democrats, issue final reminder to voters urging support of the straight Democratic support.

DOCTORING THAT DROOP

Almost everybody develops hair-linings once in awhile—and all the home-brushing for the world won't put body and elasticity back into your locks. But our conditioning treatments with One Magic Liquid (never available outside the beauty shop) can be applied before every set, to give it more lasting quality. Another great conditioner is used before hair coloring, to soften the impact of color chemicals. That's one reason we're famous for the beautiful heads we color!

DEMOCRATIC WOMEN BEGIN SERIES OF COFFEES

series of coffees for Democratic women all over the city got underway at a kick-off coffee
Monday morning at the home of Mrs. William P. Kellam.

Joining Mrs. Kellam, wife of Delegate Kellam, as hostesses were Mrs. P. B. White, wife of the city's other delegate, and the wives of the city's constitutional officers.

Special guests were Mrs. Sidney Kellam and Mrs. A. Stuart Bowling, state Democratic coordinator for women's activities.

Del. Kellam was speaker for the event.

The house was decorated with miniature donkeys to symbolize the Democratic Party and a donkey-shaped balloon was featured at the front door.

The 36 women who attended the coffee will host similar events in all sections of the city between now and election day Tuesday. The theme for all coffee will be "Leading the Way for LBJ."

The series will be climaxed with a large wrap-up coffee
Monday at 10:30 a.m. at the Americans Motor Lodge. Mrs.

Thomas N. Downing, wife of Congressman Downing, will be guest of honor.

This series has been spearheaded by the Democratic Woman's Club of Virginia Beach. Mrs. Elwood Hudson is president.

UNICEF Asks Help For Others

VIRGINIA BEACH —
"Trick or Treat for Unicef" will be the request made by many young people in the Virginia Beach area on Friday and Sunday. Instead of asking for themselves, they will be seeking help for the underprivileged children of the world.

J. J. Brewbaker, former superintendent of the Norfolk public schools, is president of the local United Nations Association/Chapter which is encouraging the increased participation in UNICEF.

Of the more than one billion children in the world today, about three-fourths live in economically underdeveloped areas. The United Children's Fund helps governments plan and initiate programs to meet the most pressing needs of their children. In recent years, aided countries have provided two and a half times as much as they have received.

Young people collecting for UNICEF of the United Children's Fund will for the most part be of junior and senior high or college age. Every qualified collector will be working through a church or service organization, and every one will have the official sticker as identification.

The Y-Teens of Princess Anne
High School have chosen collecting for UNICEF as one of their service projects, as have several other church youth groups.

FELLOWSHIP RALLY HOOTENANNY STYLE

SUFFOLK — The Junior High Pilgrim Fellowship Rally for Tidewater will be in Suffolk
Christian Church Sunday at 3 p.m.

As this is a Hootenanny Rally all participants are requested to wear casual clothes—blue jeans, slacks, pedal pushers, blue suits and dungarees.

All will take school kits for their missionary projects to underprivileged children.

Wesley Miller is the Jr. Hi P.
F. leader. All United Church of Christ (Disciples) youth groups are identified with this rally.

The 'Y' of It

by Margaret Eady

The Ladies' Day Out Council of Kempville and Virginia Beach are sort of resting on their laurels now as the present series running at LeKies church has just passed the half-way mark. Every lady on the Council worked hard to get this six weeks' series on the road. Now, each week finds only Mrs. Elaine Crandall and Mrs. Margaret Eady on hand to check the rolls and handle any emergency that may arise. Mrs. Kathryn George, who takes the afternoon knitting class, always lends a helping hand to Mrs. Virginia Gayle in the kitchen preparing the scrumptious desserts and coffee at lunch time.

Mrs. Norcom has sixteen budding artists in her beginner's class. During these six weeks there are three classes on composition and color and three on oil. There have already been some charcoal still lifes that look like the work of anything but a beginner.

The point count bridge instructor, Mrs. Atkinson, has a record class of twenty-seven beginners. She was heard telling the class in the very beginning that "bridge language is like a foreign language" and it has to be mastered in order to produce a good bridge player. Seven ladies taking Mrs. Atkinson's Intermediate bridge need never fear trumping their partner's ace again.

There will be no dropped stitches in Mrs. Allen's knitting classes totaling nineteen. At first they were seen knitting swatches of various stitches. Before the course is over there should be many sweaters emerging from that group.

Mrs. Stokes is having a grand time with her seven students anxious to learn more about party decorations. Already they have learned a novel way of making a tiny flower vase in the shape of a diaper suitable for, unsmiling patients. They will also be displaying their very own candles made in this class.

The nine ladies learning cake decorating under Mrs. Erlendson will certainly feel like professionals when they have finished. They are seen proudly taking their work of art home after each class. Just a single cake layer looked like a beautiful birthday cake. The local bakeries will be losing some customers.

The mothers are most fortunate to have a nursery right on the premises expertly run by Mrs. Singer and Mrs. Wilgus. These ladies manage to keep thirty little ones happy each Wednesday while their "nannies" are busily taking advantage of the opportunities offered by the Y.W.C.A. Ladies' Day Out Council.

SPECIAL NOTICE: Treat yourself as well as the kids on Halloween—Let them get their goodies tomorrow night, but you come in the morning at 9:30 to the "Y" Art Attic. Take your first of four lessons in rug braiding, an often-requested class taught by a stimulating personality, Frances Musick. Classes run two hours each Friday—the fee is low; the enthusiasm is high.

MRS. TODD GUEST SPEAKER AT MEET

ELIZABETH RIVER SHORES — The Elizabeth River Shores Garden Club held the October meeting at the home of Mrs. W. M. Newbern with Mrs. S. J. Faris as co-hostess.

Guest speaker was Mrs. Pauline Todd who presented a talk on "Garden Therapy".

A gold ribbon for Arrangements was awarded to Mrs. V. S. Dewberry, and a blue to Mrs. T. C. Rock.

Horticulture blue ribbon winners were Mrs. J. W. Thurston, Mrs. A. R. Marchioni, and Mrs. Robert O. Cooper.

ENGAGED COUPLE BEING ENTERTAINED

VIRGINIA BEACH — Mr. and Mrs. Charles Conway Brown of Martinsville will entertain Friday night at a dinner in honor of their son, Mr. Charles Conway Brown, Jr., also of Martinsville, and Miss Brenda Sterling Holcombe.

Miss Holcombe and Mr. Brown will be married Saturday at 4:30 p.m. in the First Presbyterian Church of Virginia Beach.

The dinner will follow the wedding rehearsal and will be given at the Princess Anne Country Club.

Guests will include the members of the wedding party and out of town guests.

Tricky Treats for Halloween

Costumes, games, jokes, goblins and ghouls all come to mind at the suggestion of a Halloween party.

This year add a unique touch to your gathering—serve punch in apple goblets. They're fun and festive. Easy to prepare, too, you just have to scoop them out and coat with FRUIT-FRESH solution so they retain their pure white color. Fill them with a yummy punch that will suit the spirit of the day. Witch's Brew is a good one and has just enough sting. The natural flavors of the fruits are protected by using FRUIT-FRESH (an ascorbic acid mixture) which also adds valuable vitamin C to the drink.

WITCH'S BREW

1 can (12 oz.) frozen lemonade
1 pint apple juice
Combine juices and club soda, add FRUIT-FRESH and chill until ready to serve. Makes about 3 1/2 quarts.

APPLE GOBLET

2 tablespoons FRUIT-FRESH
1/2 cup water
3 large apples
Dissolve FRUIT-FRESH in water. Wash apples. For each goblet, slice top off apple, reserving top to use as a lid on goblet. Make hole in center of lid. Coat bottom of lid with FRUIT-FRESH solution. Using small scoop, scoop out apple to form a cup, leaving a 1/4 inch thick wall all around. Be careful not to cut through bottom. Coat inside with FRUIT-FRESH solution so apples retain white color. At serving time, fill goblets with punch, replace lids. Insert short straw. Makes 8 goblets.

'Wedding' Here Unites Democrats

VIRGINIA BEACH — A unique wedding ceremony was performed at the Capes Wednesday morning symbolizing the union of the Democrats of Virginia Beach to the Democratic ticket.

National Democratic Committee chairman, Sidney S. Kellam, who is the state campaign manager for the Democratic candidates, officiated as pastor joining the Democratic Women of Virginia Beach, in the person of Mrs. Richard L. Councilman as the bride, to the Democratic ticket, represented by Del. William P. Kellam, as the groom.

The "bride's" only ornament accenting her traditional white gown and veil, was a golden donkey on a gold chain necklace. The "groom" wore a business suit, as did the "pastor". The bridal bouquet was a colorful arrangement of red, white, and blue pom poms.

Little Miss Peeps Cavanaugh was the flower girl who tossed red, white, and blue petals in the path of the bride, and the ring bearer was her brother, Michael. Mrs. S. T. Whitfield, in hoopskirted gown of blue was the bride's attendant.

As the groom placed the ring, a gold band ornamented with a LBJ for USA button attached, on the finger of the bride, Sidney Kellam officially joined all forces in the Democratic party in the effort to work for the election of President Johnson and other candidates for Democratic office, and to get out and vote on Election Day.

Mrs. J. James Davis was the hostess at the morning coffee held at the Capes, and she planned and arranged the special events. Special dance numbers by Maria Sutton, Viki Viles, Barbara Land, and Judy Aligood of the Shirley Darden Brown Baton and Dance School entertained the many guests who attended. Mrs. Edna Sykes was at the piano.

Del. William P. Kellam was the guest speaker who sat with the ladies and spoke informally on the issues vitally affecting the decisions as to why the Democratic party should be kept in power. He had answers for all questions the ladies asked, and he closed by urging each one to make sure that she votes on election day, and to urge others also, as each vote is important to the final outcome.

A donkey carved of ice was the centerpiece of the serving table, highlighting the Democratic theme.

EDITORIAL SPEAKING

We Urge The Election of The Democratic Ticket On Tuesday

The presidential campaign has come down to the wire and the nation's voters will go to the polls next Tuesday to select the team of men who will guide the destiny of the country for the next four years. Numerous senators and congressmen will also be elected at the same time.

At this stage the voters have made up their minds on the candidates and come Tuesday night the verdict will have been rendered. The presidential campaign has left much to be desired and the "smear" aspects injected time and again by the Republican camp has not been in good taste, particularly when it is considered that the election is being held to select the men who will lead this, the greatest nation on earth. The Presidency of the United States is considered the highest office in the world and to cheapen it with a political campaign such as we have witnessed is degrading to that office.

We believe the great majority of the nation's voters have not been influenced by these "smear" tactics and that they will vote on the qualifications of the two men seeking the top office, namely Lyndon B. Johnson and Barry Goldwater. In our opinion, this choice will be President Johnson, and in no uncertain terms.

Besides President Johnson's long experience and proven ability as a legislator he has demonstrated a remarkable quality of leadership as evidenced by the smooth transition following the tragic death of President Kennedy. He has handled problems of great magnitude in his less than one year at the helm with infinite skill. His handling of foreign matters has been especially well executed and he has the respect of the peoples of the Free World as well as those in the Communist world.

Statewide and within the First Congressional District we believe, without reservation, that the voters will re-elect Senator Harry F. Byrd and Congressman Thomas N. Downing. Both are tried and true representatives of this area and each deserves a heavy vote in Tuesday's balloting. We think they will receive just that.

We urge the election of President Johnson on Tuesday and the election of the Democratic Ticket in Virginia. We believe Virginia will join the rest of the Nation in a great Democratic victory. Such a victory is best for Virginia and the Nation.

Hospital Auxiliary To Sponsor Herzer Concert

VIRGINIA BEACH — A concert by the internationally-known pianist, Clifford Herzer, will be presented by the Women's Auxiliary to the General Hospital of Virginia Beach at Chesapeake Hall High School Auditorium on November 14 at 8 p.m.

His artistic classical music has been heard and enjoyed both here and abroad for many years and critics have acclaimed his great talent.

And though his is a distinguished name in the music world, he has never stopped learning, trying to improve, and teaching others to enjoy good music.

He practices at least three hours every day with a tape recorder beside him, then he listens to himself playing.

"We all need to learn to listen," he comments. "We are surrounded by so much noise all day, every day, that we often develop a habit of shutting it out, in sheer self-protection. Then we lose the habit of listening to music, to the sounds of birds, or moving water, even to face-to-face conversations. So one must learn to be selective, close the ears to traffic or the barking of a dog, listen with full attention to the things one really wants to hear."

In addition to his concert activities, he is the director of the Clifford Herzer Piano School in Norfolk and Virginia Beach.

"Teaching inspires you," he said, "From the young children to the students who are nearly ready to become professionals there's the spark of another mind, an interchange that gives new meaning to music you've known since the young."

Tickets are available at Alexandria, 201 Laskin Road, and at the Temple of Music in Virginia. They are also to be purchased the evening of the concert at Princess Anne High School. Admission will be $2.00 and $1.00 for children, 12 and under.

Jon Smeal Promoted

Jon W. Smeal, 22, of 301 14th Street, has been promoted to assistant cashier with the Bank of Virginia Beach, and will be general manager at the Princess Anne Plaza office. LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Sir,

To stir up popular prejudice in a political campaign against your opponent on rumors founded on mere suspicion and discredited accusations is not the highest object of an honest man's ambition.

Yet, in the present campaign, Senator Barry Goldwater has filled the air and saturated the atmosphere with the roar of calumny and his malicious attacks on President Lyndon Johnson are in a style so scandalous that vituperation is not a word for it.

As to corruption in American politics, the 1964 Republican campaign is being waged on the assumption that the American people have no memory, and that by proclaiming the blessings of Republicanism and maligning President Johnson, the voters will forget "Tea-Pot Dome" and that they will forget the Republican administration that passed out 90 million dollars to Republican Vice President

Dawes to bolster his Chicago bank that they will forget the Republican administration that gave the "Wall Street Gang" a billion and a half dollars, and that they will forget Attorney General Daugherty and the little yellow house on K Street where the boodle was delivered.

Those were the days when the Republicans were the beneficiaries and were waxing fat at the public crib. Those were the days when the economic and financial structure of the nation was tottering, and when Republican misrule brought about a condition which threatened the very foundations of our political and social life. Those were the days when the Democratic party took over a menacing heritage, — a situation which required not only great intelligence and statescraft, but unbounded courage as well.

Again, in this maligning campaign, the voters should recall the scandal in President Eisenhower's so-called "Clean as a Hound's Tooth" administration. The scandal in which the top aide and closest confidential adviser, former Governor Sherman Adams, was forced to resign under exposure of receiving rich gifts and using his influence with government departments to make richer industrial magnate Goldfine of Massachusetts.

Perhaps, it would be well for Senator Goldwater also in his "smear-lash" campaign, to distinguish between a vast orgy of past Republican corruption and rumors and suspicion against the present Democratic administration, which of his own knowledge he knows nothing about. In so doing he would profit by the friendly counsel embodied in the admonition "that people in glass houses should not throw stones."

CHURCH OBSERVES LAYMAN'S DAY

PEMBROKE MANOR — The Pembroke Manor United Church observed Laymen's Day Sunday of this week with the men of the church taking complete charge of the morning worship service.

Minister for the day was Bernard Jewell who spoke on "Christian Ethics that mean Happiness Today and in the Future."

A men's chorus of twelve voices presented the special music.

Joe Ludvik lead the call to worship, affirmation of faith, and morning invocation. Edward A. Simiele gave the pastoral prayer. Michael Judge conducted the offering ritual and offertory prayer. John Williams read the Scripture lesson, and Senior Deacon Martin F. Gibson gave the announcements and the benediction.

An hour of fellowship and refreshments followed.

Area Growth Prompted Move

NORFOLK — The reasons for locating their new store in Pembroke.

Pembroke was picked for several reasons, Mallonsee stated. "One is that we can go with Sears. They are seldom wrong about locations. Another thing we liked is the population growth surrounding the shopping center. It is stable, the type of people we wish to appeal to."

Asked why Miller & Rhoads didn't go into downtown Norfolk, Mallonsee replied that the shopping center is an established thing in America and that it was felt that the market could be better covered from the Pembroke center.

"Virginia Beach is the bedroom of Norfolk. True a lot of people work in Norfolk, but they go home to Virginia Beach. We feel that people have more time going to and from work and during their leisure time at home than they do while on the job."

While no date has been set for construction, Miller & Rhoads hope to open either in the late fall of 1965 or spring of 1966. The new store will have 80,000 square feet on one floor. This makes it one of the largest in the area.

"For comparison," Mallonsee said, "our New Market Shopping Center store in Newport News is 12,000 square feet smaller than this—and it's a big store."

If business warrants, the store in Pembroke can double in size by adding a second floor. As it is, it will be a complete department store having everything except possibly furniture and

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Perhaps it's sour grapes to say that Va. Beach should have won the game with Cox last week at Cox Stadium. Call it sour grapes if you are so inclined. Many incidents at the game, which ended at 13-7 for Cox, could have meant a change in the tide of events.

With such bitter rivalry, it would seem that a selection of competent impartial referees would have been most important. It is true that this can't always be the case, but the flaws in judgment were almost ludicrous as well as heartbreaking to the spectators as well as the players.

One touchdown by Virginia Beach which was called back because of a holding penalty could have spelled the difference between victory and defeat. When the officials were asked which player the penalty was against, they didn't give any information until almost two quarters later.

The sustained drive in the fourth quarter by the Cox team led by Jim Podlesni was remarkably handled. It was driven against the weakest point in the Virginia Beach line where most of the players had injuries but were still in the game. It was a hard drive to stop and it was telling on the players and credit should be given to Cox for taking advantage in order to win.

However, in the last quarter when a bruised and battered Virginia Beach team finally came to life to score, they found they had to fight eleven Cox men plus four referees. The score was 13 to 7 and a couple of minutes left to play, the Virginia Beach team gambled and kicked off a short erratic kick in the hope of recovery a fumble—which they did. Then with about 20 odd seconds showing on the scoreboard, the referee told them they had time for two or three plays. When the ball was set in position for one of the plays, he very deliberately trotted over, picked up the ball and declared it the end of the game—with 20 seconds left to be played showing on the scoreboard.

It was a case of very poor judgment and an apparent lack of competence. Perhaps they were right, the game had ended, but it was a poor way to declare it. May be Virginia Beach could have scored in these last 20 seconds they were pepped up, hot, and raring to go and ready for anything. Perhaps they wouldn't have made it. Perhaps the touchdown that was called back was reasonable through a holding penalty (though later none could say it was a hold). Whatever the case, the referees could have called the penalty immediately on who had committed the act, not two quarters later.

Certainly this sounds like sour grapes. For a scrappy fighting little team like Virginia Beach with terrific odds against them, they deserve better breaks. It is hard enough winning against 11 men with tremendous reserves, but to fight four additional men in the field is too much to demand.

Revival Starts Here Friday

VIRGINIA BEACH — Revival Services begin Sunday, and continue through Friday, at the Beachlawn Baptist Church located at the corner of Norfolk and Mediterranean Avenues. The time of the service is 7:45 p.m. each evening with provisions for Nursery Children through 6 years of age.

The Rev. E. Irwin Mosher, pastor of First Baptist Church, Norfolk will be the guest speaker. The Rev. Mosher is a native of Kansas having graduated from Oushtita College in Arkansas, Arkansas. He had a flourishing insurance business when he felt called to the ministry. He was graduated from Southeastern Theological Seminary, Chattanooga, Tennessee, and held pastorates in Arkansas, Tennessee and Virginia.

He served as Chaplain of Mark Clarke's staff during World War II and also as Chaplain during the Korean conflict. Upon his return to Arkansas he was made commissioner of the Baptist Home Mission Board in that State and organized churches in the remote mountain sections.

He first came to this area as associate pastor of First Baptist Church and was instrumental in that church establishing the mission which is now the Thalia Lynn Baptist Church.

A man of enormous energy, he is considered to be one of the foremost evangelists of our times.

BAYSIDE LIONS NEAR DISTRICT LEADER SPEAK

BAYSIDE — The Bayside Lions Club met October 21, at 7:30 p.m. at Shore Drive Inn, for a "Ladies Night" celebration. The president, Jack Tallent, presiding.

The club was host to District Governor, Billie Wagner and his cabinet—Deputy District Governor, Jim Fridley, Cabinet Secretary, Howard Sawyer, Zone Chairman "Mac" Wilkins, (A charter member of the Bayside Club.)

The following Charter members were present and were recognized: Gene Caldwell, George Lyon, "Mac" Wilkins, Bill Shide and Dick Dunaja.

Ocean Park Woman's Club Plans Events

BAYSIDE — The Fine Arts Department of the Ocean Park Woman's Club held their October meeting at the home of Mrs. C. C. Nuckols, chairman of the club.

Plans were made for the department activities for the coming year.

The department has made up orders for cards, calendars, date books, etc., to be ordered from the club.

In November Mrs. Michael Murray, International Affairs chairman, will be host to the Fine Arts Department at her home. Guest speaker for the evening will be Mrs. Roy G. Nuckols, a native of West Berlin, who is residing in the United States. She was living in West Berlin when the "wall" went up and she will talk to the members on the "Berlin Wall."

Mrs. Murray announced that the CARE Crusade that the club will be working on will be Turkey because of the need over there with the wife of a Naval aviator. Mrs. D. J. Nuckols will make contact with a Turkish Women's Club and as they establish things they will be able to help through the club to people contact.

LOCAL CLUB DELEGATES ATTEND FALL MEETING

BAYSIDE — Delegates from the local Women's Clubs in the Bayside District attended the Annual Fall meeting at the Chamber Hotel on October 20. Cape Henry, Kempsville, Ocean Park, Chesapeake Beach, Anne, Bayside, Jr., and Princess Anne.

Some 300 representatives of the Tidewater District Federation of Women's Clubs were on hand for the 42 annual meeting presided over by the District president, Mrs. John T. Kellam of Accomack County. This group of clubs is almost 5,000.

Special District projects: "every member a voting citizen," "conservation of natural resources," "anti-littering," "conservation of the Great Dismal Swamp."

Mrs. Alvah E. Riggins, state president, of Tabb, was guest speaker. Mrs. Riggins talked first about the conservation of the Great Dismal Swamp as a state park.

She said that the term "swamp" was a misnomer. It was all swamp. It averages 22 feet above sea level—and in Tidewater that is high land! She said there is no other place like anywhere. This vast wood-land contains cypress trees as big as the California redwoods and have been there since the time of Christ. It contains between 18 to 22 inches of topsoil and could very well become a new place of the nation.

She told the club women of recent visit with Governor and how he said it would take 25 years and 25 million dollars to complete this project. But the Governor was to have the last word because Riggins told him that in-

Pins were awarded to 35 members for 100% attendance for the 1963-64 year. The following pins were awarded for longer periods of 100% attendance, 6 years, Charles McCoy, Bill Nagg, Dick Vellines; 7 years, Lewis Thurston; 8 years, Gordon Hughson, Hank Ostrander and Ray Shields.

13 years, George Lyon, "Mac" Wilkins, Gene Caldwell, Hugh Barnes (these are all past presidents and charter members of the Bayside Lions Club.)

Second vice president, Lloyd Gunter, chairman of the Annual Thanksgiving Turkey Shoot announced that this year's "shoot" promises to be the best yet because of the large number of tickets sold in advance. The "shoot" will be held this coming weekend, October 31 and Nov. 1, from 10 a.m. until 9 p.m. each day.

The "shoot" will be held at the Walstonian Gun Club on Route 13 one mile north of the Landdale Traffic Circle.

Tallent welcomed the following new members: E. N. Jasper transferred from the Hopewell Lions Club and Bill Stanford. District Governor Billie Wagner spoke to the club on "Lionism." He said Lions Clubs are not civic clubs, not social clubs, are non-political, non-sectarian, but are service clubs. All work for a common goal, for the blind, for the underprivileged, for the needy. The motto of Lionism is "We Serve."

The Lions was organized in Dallas, Texas, in 1917 and has spread to all the countries of the world, except behind the Iron Curtain. There are 730,000 Lions members. There are 258 Lions clubs in this country. The Lions own their own magazine and their headquarters is a six story building in Chicago.

The island dividing Virginia Beach Boulevard as it passes through London Bridge is now being removed to make way for a center turning lane. This will provide a 15-foot safety zone with two 12-foot lanes on each side. Plans call for this new lane to run from the light to the new post office annex. (Staff photo by Hardy)

BAYSIDE CHURCH BAZAAR NOV. 7

BAYSIDE — After months of planning and sewing and preparing, the Women of the Bayside Christian Church announce they are having their Christmas Bazaar on Saturday, November 7 from 10 a.m. until 7 p.m.

There will be pony rides for the kiddies plus a "kiddie corner."

The Christmas shoppers will find lots of items for their list. Such as dolls, doll clothes, and doll furniture for the "small fry." For the "big people" there will be tablecloths, pillow cases, aprons, candles and wreaths.

The "Country Store" will feature homemade jelly, jam and pickles. Not to be overlooked are the "bakery department" and "white elephant" where you just might pick up that plate or cup you are missing.

Nothing has been overlooked. If you were thinking of a "Christmas chapeau" be sure and see the "hat bar." New latest style hats will be featured.

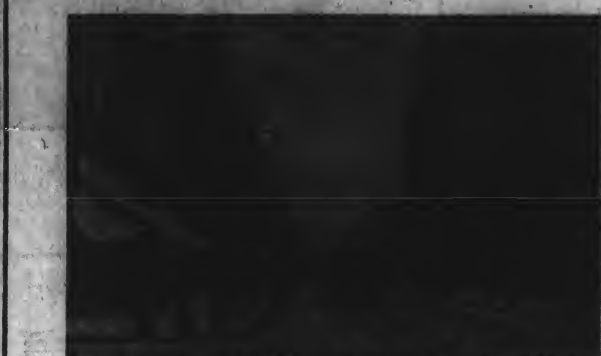

The men of the church have also been working diligently on the "bazaar" burning the midnight oil in their garage work shops making the latest things in woodcraft. Don't overlook this department.

To top the day off there will be a Turkey or Ham dinner with all the trimmings. Tickets for the dinner are $1.50 for adults and 75c for children.

The public is invited. Mrs. D. B. Smith, Jr., is the general chairman of the bazaar.

Man is a social animal. The most crushing punishment you can deal is to be alone when you don't want to be. Being alone when you want to think or meditate can be very beneficial, but to be left out when others are having fun in a group can be quite devastating. No one likes to feel rejected.

This is part of the reason that many social clubs in schools and colleges were outlawed. Too many deserving aspirants were turned down for personal reasons. But humans being human, there will always be clubs to join and social activities to be enjoyed. And humans are naturally going to merge for a common interest, whether it be social or philanthropic.

You can find a club which will accept you for membership when you remember what you have to offer the organization rather than what you can receive in prestige simply by belonging to an elite group.

In high schools you will become aware that you "must" belong to something! And in college, it seems even more important. Newcomers to the community often feel alone and left out. What you can do should be more important than what you are... but what you are will help you decide into what group you can be happy.

Sororities and fraternities which have survived through the years hold a special place in the lives of many who have long since graduated from the educational institutions. Douglas Arnold Barnes relates to you his happy experiences which have stayed with her and continue to keep her aware of the importance of belonging... to the human race!

SPEED THEE MY ARROW by Douglas Arnold Barnes

Have you ever turned back the clock 44 years, and have something you memorized come back to you with heartwarming and joyful details?

Such was the case last September, when with girls from Virginia Beach who graduated from colleges in '54, '61, and '62, I attended the Pi Beta Phi pledging of 60 maidens "Standing with reluctant feet where the brook and river meet".

This pledging was held at Park Place Methodist Church in Norfolk when the members and alumnae of Kappa Kappa Kappa of Old Dominion College became Pi Beta Phi pledges. The national officers officiated.

The old and the new blended. Going over in the car, I found myself humming "There was a Man so Charming as All Pi Phi Men Are", "Ring, Ching, Ching", and "Speed Thee My Arrow". I hadn't forgotten the grip nor the password.

Upon arrival I nervously left my younger sisters and looked for someone nearer my age and vintage. A lovely lady, with a Golden Arrow pinned above her heart, turned out to be Helen Ferber, one of Norfolk's musical talents. She was a Pi Phi in 1919... I, in 1920... in the same chapter at Randolph Macon Women's College, where now fraternities have been banished from the campus. We renewed our friendship, and I apologized for having lost two pins since college days.

The secret ceremony was lovely and impressive. The girls were beautiful, each representing future womanhood of which all might be proud. We sang "Speed Thee My Arrow" 60 times—once for each pledge. Our feet ached from standing. One girl wept hysterically from exhaustion and hard work in experiencing the fruition of her goal. Many requirements must be satisfied to take a local club into the first national women's fraternity which is Pi Beta Phi, founded at Ohio Wesleyan in 1867.

These girls are future leaders of America, wearing the golden arrow head as pledges, and later the upward pointing arrow with the colors of wine and silver blue as initiates. I believe that these symbols will make them better women, as it has me, and the legion of Pi Phis, living and dead.

Having 45 years Naval service, Sid Zerambi, 65, seemed surprised to be called "Son" by Fiedler, 69.

FIEDLER APPEARANCE HIGHLIGHTS MUSIC SCHOOL DEDICATION

LITTLE CREEK — The highlight of the School of Music Dedication events at the Naval Amphibious Base Sunday was "Mr. Music", Arthur Fiedler, conducting the School of Music Concert Band and the Hampton Institute Choir. Fiedler has been conductor of the Boston Pops since 1930. Stoney sang the Navy hymn. Then the band played the National Anthem.

Hundreds of guests then flocked to the base theater for a concert. Conducting were McDonald, Army Captain N. A. The school relocated at Little Creek from Washington. It will train musicians for the Army, Navy, and Marine Corps.

Approximately 600 students can be in training at the same time. The three-story building is a former barracks which now contains 170 rooms. These include practice rooms, concert stages, sound laboratories, and studios.

The formal dedication took place in front of the School of Music Building 3:05 p.m. Sunday before a large crowd. After remarks by Rear Admiral Edmund B. Taylor and Commander John D. McDonald, the Hampton Institute Choir under the direction of Dr. William S. Adamo, Navy Lt. Commander M. E. Ford, and a standing ovation, Arthur Fiedler.

After Fiedler had ended the concert—or thought he had—the band surprised him with one of their own. Changing the words of Fiedler's latest recording, "Hello Dolly," the band and Hampton Institute Choir burst into "Hello Maestro!" Soon the enthused audience joined in with clapping hands. This broke into thundering applause as by threes and fives, then by entire sections, the audience rose to its feet.

One of the most unusual concerts in Virginia Beach in a long time turned into a great tribute, a great day, for a great man.

From start to finish—a true maestro.

Welcome Wagon Film Shown

VIRGINIA BEACH — The first showing in the Tidewater area of a new documentary film, "The Welcome Wagon," was held last night before a specially invited audience at the Americana. Mrs. Hazel B. Kennard who represents Welcome Wagon in this area greeted the audience and introduced the film. City Treasurer Jack Etheridge also spoke to the invited guests.

The film traces the evolution of the welcome wagon from the days of the 19th century pioneers through today when the station wagon has replaced the old Conestoga wagon.

It is Welcome Wagon's spirit of community service which helps the newcomer adjust quickly and pleasantly to his new surroundings. Similarly, established residents find a reaffirmation of the community spirit when they are called upon by the Welcome Wagon hostess on the occasion of important family milestones.

Welcome Wagon, which was founded in 1928 by the late Thomas W. Briggs, of Memphis, Tenn., with one hostess in one town, now operates in more than 2,000 cities in the United States and Canada as well as in Trinidad, Puerto Rico, and the United Kingdom. Under the leadership of its new president, Mrs. Rosanne Beringer, Welcome Wagon International is in a new period of growth and expansion.

Seatack School P-TA Carnival This Saturday

SEATACK — The Parent-Teacher Association of Seatack Elementary School of Virginia Beach will sponsor a Halloween Carnival, Saturday, beginning at noon and continuing through 9 p.m.

The spooky event will include both inside and outside activities. Activities will include a bicycle contest; costume contest and a twilight social. Booths for games and refreshments will be in operation during the entire day.

Two recreation games, the Midgets and Junior Devils of Seatack hosting the Seaboard Midgets and Junior Jets, will be played on Devils Field beginning at 1 p.m.

The proceeds from this gala event will be used for the supplementary needs of the various departments of the school and for various supplies needed by individual classrooms.

Mrs. Rosa L. Horgan is general chairman of this event. Mr. Charles (Mickey) Williams is President and Miss Mary L. Johnson is Principal of the school.

United Church Group Meeting

LYNNHAVEN — Approximately two hundred delegates and visitors representing Congregational Christian churches in Eastern Virginia will meet today at the Lynnhaven Colony United Church, Virginia Beach, for the 144th Annual Session of the Eastern Virginia Conference.

The session will be called to order at 10 a.m. by the conference president, the Rev. Robert B. Marr, pastor of the Suffolk Christian Church. The opening service of worship will be conducted by the Rev. Thomas H. Britton, minister of the host church; and the conference sermon, entitled "When You Grow Old," will be presented by the Rev. Dr. Harold N. Skidmore, of New York, Field Secretary of the Pension Boards of the United Church of Christ.

The conference program will include a panel discussion on "Our Future in the Proposed Southern Conference of the United Church of Christ." The Rev. Carroll W. Lewis, pastor of Rosemont Christian Church, Chesapeake, will serve as moderator; and participants will include the Rev. Dr. Frank R. Hamilton, minister of Christian Temple, Norfolk; Mr. James F. Darden, laymember of the Suffolk Christian Church; Dr. J. Earl Danieley, president of Elton College; the Rev. Dr. Walstein W. Snyder, superintendent of the Elton Home for Children; and the Rev. Dr. Clyde L. Fields, superintendent of the Southern Convention of Congregational Christian Churches.

Adjournment is scheduled for 5 p.m.

Conference officers, in addition to the Rev. Mr. Marr, are: the Rev. Mr. Lewis, vice president; the Rev. Earl T. Farrell, pastor of Bayside Congregational Christian Church, Virginia Beach, secretary; Mr. Richard J. Holland, laymember of the Windsor Congregational Christian Church, treasurer.

Friday's meetings will include an open house at VEA Headquarters and the Classroom Teachers Dinner. The Principal Address at the Final Session will be given at 7:30 p.m. at the Mosque by Raj Kumar Nehru, India's Ambassador to the United States and will be on "The Underdeveloped World."

Beach Delegate Attending VEA Annual Meet

VIRGINIA BEACH — Forty-five delegates from Virginia Beach Schools are attending the 80th Virginia Education Association conference being held in Richmond at the Mosque Auditorium this week.

The overall theme to be discussed at the Convention will be "The Future is Now" with principal addresses by distinguished educators.

On Wednesday, Thomas C. McSwain, superintendent of schools in Staunton and president of the VEA, "set the pace for the new century" in his opening remarks. The executive secretary, Dr. Robert F. Williams of Richmond, "covered the past, present and future."

District 1 met yesterday at 4 p.m. at Hotel John Marshall in the Virginia Room with Charles W. Perdue, president, presiding.

Various business meetings will take place today with an address being presented at 7:45 p.m. by Dr. John H. Fischer, president of the Teachers College of Columbia University, and he will emphasize the convention theme.

Friday's meetings will include an open house at VEA Headquarters and the Classroom Teachers Dinner. The Principal Address at the Final Session will be given at 7:30 p.m. at the Mosque by Raj Kumar Nehru, India's Ambassador to the United States and will be on "The Underdeveloped World."

The President's Reception will be from 10:30 to 12 at Grand Hall of the Hotel John Marshall.

Secondary Supervisor is Frank Taylor, and the Elementary Supervisor is Mrs. Mildred Wilson.

GREENLAND TRIP OVER

FORT STORY — More than 200 officers and men of the 4th Transportation Command from Fort Story and Fort Eustis have returned from Greenland where they delivered thousands of tons of supplies under what a spokesman described as "the most difficult weather conditions in many years."

Each year there is only a short period in which the ice in Greenland thaws enough to permit cargo operations at Thule, one of the supply centers for the entire Northeast Command. This command supports the distant early warning defense lines across northern Canada and Greenland.

Personnel from the 565th Terminal Service Company, of the 10th Transportation Battalion of Fort Story and the 1097th Medium Boat Company of the 10th Transportation Battalion of Fort Eustis discharged 28,200 measurement tons of supplies and 979,632 barrels of petroleum products and loaded 13,951 tons in a work period of only 44 days.

When the personnel left Greenland ice was already forming in the harbors, making further navigation impossible.

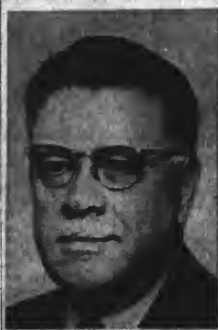

One of the accomplishments of this year's activity, the 14th consecutive supply operation for Transportation Center personnel, was the successful use of the MILSTAMP system, a computerized record keeping and documentation procedure. Fort Eustis troops also assisted in repairing a submarine oil line and operated landing craft at the beach in addition to using the stationary docks.

Capt. Arlie Scott was commanding officer of the personnel from the Transportation Center.

MRS. KEEVER TO HELP IN CENSUS

CHESAPEAKE — Mrs. Gene S. Keever of Chesapeake has been named a crew leader for the 1964 Census of Agriculture. She is one of about 1,825 throughout the country to receive the appointment.

Mrs. Keever will supervise a team of census enumerators who will visit all farms and ranches in Norfolk and former Princess Anne County. Census questionnaires will be mailed out shortly after Nov. 5.

STRONG CHURCHES...

make STRO COMITIES

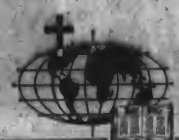

You can read many things in the human face. It is often the mirror of our emotions. It is sometimes the reflection of our character.

But almost never does the face reveal the needs of the human soul. Like some artificial mask it can look satisfied when the soul is starving. It can look calm when the soul is troubled. It can look content when the soul is restless and yearning.

How then can we read our souls' needs?

We can read them in the Bible. And in the centuries of man's universal reaching for God. In the prayers that a hundred million lips have framed. In the hymns and psalms that generations have echoed.

God alone fully understands the needs of a human soul. He who created us knows what is essential for His creatures. And when we come to His House, trying to understand these deep spiritual needs... all the while He is supplying them, satisfying the hunger of the soul.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor in the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four essential reasons why every person should attend services regularly and read your Bible daily.

The Mixing Bowl

It's Fun To Cook

By LUCILE CLARK

SUN-NEWS FOOD EDITOR

Halloween Time again!—Yes indeed—Are you planning a party? Maybe you'd like to just have a Halloween surprise for the family.

Cover the table with orange paper tablecloth. Use Halloween plates and napkins.

For a centerpiece—circle a large tray with autumn leaves, then fill the tray with fruits that are available—and then you can make use of your centerpiece afterwards.

A wiener-corn-potato bake with toasted buns, cole slaw, cider and candied apples.

Wiener-Corn-and-Potato Bake

8 unpared small sweet potatoes
16 unpared small white potatoes

16 ears of corn (husk and broken in half)
4 cups boiling water

2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper

32 franks
½ cup melted butter or margarine

¼ cup finely snipped parsley
Start heating oven to 425° F.

Scrub potatoes, half the sweet potatoes, score surfaces of both sweet and white potatoes.

In each of 2 large roasting pans, make single layer of potatoes, place corn on top. Into each pan pour 2 cups of boiling water. Sprinkle over 1 teaspoon salt and 1/8 teaspoon pepper. Bake, covered with foil about 1 hour or until potatoes are tender.

When potatoes are just about ready, drop franks in rapidly boiling water. Do not over cook when plump. Arrange them on platter with the white potatoes in center of platter and sprinkle them with butter and parsley. Arrange sweet potatoes attractively with other foods. Place on buffet table with cole slaw, sliced tomatoes, toasted buns, apple cider and candied apples.

Have some good ghost stories dreamed up and if possible have marshmallows to roast and some popcorn to pop—I believe your Halloween Surprise will be enjoyed by everyone.

Spooks love caramel apples so fix some and watch the goblins' eyes shine.

10 medium-sized apples sturdy wooden skewers
2 cups sugar (granulated)
1 cup brown sugar
½ cup white corn syrup
½ cup butter
1 cup cream
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons vanilla

Wash, dry thoroughly and chill apples. Insert skewer into stem end of each. Mix remaining ingredients together in deep saucepan. Cook to 246 degrees (a little dropped into cold water forms a ball) stirring constantly toward the end of cooking period to prevent scorching. Remove from heat, cool until mixture thickens slightly. Quickly dip each apple into caramel mixture and twist until evenly and completely covered. Drain on waxed paper.

Peanut Squares
(For that trick or treat)

Youngsters love cookies and peanut squares are certain to make a hit with the children.

1 cup peanuts, finely chopped
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon soda

1 cup brown sugar
1 cup granulated sugar
½ cup water

2 tablespoons white corn syrup
Mix peanuts, salt and soda.

Set aside. Stir brown and granulated sugars, water, corn syrup over low heat until sugar is dissolved. Cook without stirring until mixture reaches 290 degrees (use candy thermometer). Remove from fire immediately. Quickly add peanuts, stirring only once or twice. Pour into greased, warmed 18 x 12 inch pan and spread thinly. As it begins to harden mark into squares.

Your Social Security

More than $35½ billion in monthly social security benefits has been paid out to wage earner's dependents and survivors during the past 25 years, Anthony J. Celebrezze, Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare, said recently on the 25th anniversary of the amendment to the Social Security Law adding protection for the families of workers.

The original Social Security Law, enacted in 1935, provided only retirement benefits for workers with only a lump sum payable to the worker's estate in case of his death.

Following up on recommendations of the Committee on Economic Security, appointed by President Roosevelt in 1934, and taking note of the experience gained in administering the retirement benefit program, the Congress, in the summer of 1939, enlarged the scope of the Nation's social security program, making it a program for the whole family.

Signing the legislation on August 10, 1939, President Roosevelt described it as "Another tremendous step forward in providing greater security for the people of this country." The expanded program, he said, would now give "Lifetime family security instead of only individual old-age security to the workers in insured occupations. In addition to the worker himself, millions of widows and orphans will now be afforded some degree of protection in the event of his death whether before or after his retirement."

The 1939 amendments also provided benefits for the wives and children of retired workers and for the aged dependent parents of deceased workers. Further, the date for the first payment of monthly benefits to retired workers and to the newly added categories of survivors and dependents was moved ahead two years—from 1942 to 1940.

Since 1939, more than $13.5 billion has been paid out to young widows and children. "These benefit payments," Secretary Celebrezze said, "meant food on the table, shoes and school supplies, and a chance for the children to live at home instead of in the county orphan asylum or scattered among relatives."

Almost 2½ million mothers and children are currently receiving social security totaling $130 million a month. Nine out of ten children and their mothers can count on monthly benefits if the family breadwinner dies, he said. At the beginning of 1964, the face value of this survivors insurance protection was $620 billion.

Three million aged widows, widowers, and aged dependent parents are now receiving benefits amounting to almost $150 million a month.

No bundle of joy

Did you know that the average housewife lugs over 2,000 pounds (dry weight) of this "joy" to her clothesline every year? And it takes her a total of 30 eight-hour days to do it? Such a waste of her talents when it's so easy to put the shortest clothesline of all in your home—the distance between your automatic washer and an electric clothes dryer!

Drying the flamless electric way saves hanging-up time, saves ironing time. Saves on clothes and linens, too, because you need far fewer. And right now, there's an extra saving. Ask your nearby authorized Live Better Electrically appliance dealer about Vaco's special allowance (good 'til Dec. 1st) of $15 off qualifying electric dryer installation.

NOTES FROM YOUR AGRICULTURAL AGENT

Some Farmers Can Increase Their Income

Some farmers can increase their income by developing outdoor recreation enterprises.

Tourists and city residents are glad to pay a reasonable amount for the privilege of using farm land for recreation. Some farms may even realize more income from recreation than they do from agriculture.

You can realize extra income by:

Turning some of your more picturesque land into a picnic area. You could charge by the car, by the table, or by the person.

Leasing some land for cabin sites.

Opening a hunting preserve, perhaps with lodging.

Stocking a pond with fish, or even charging for access to a fishing stream.

Information about developing such enterprises can be obtained from me or from Soil and Water Conservation technicians.

Financial assistance is also available from the Farmers Home Administration. Cost-sharing for certain approved practices may be approved by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Try a Compost Pile

Don't don your sweater and rush out in a fit of energy to burn those leaves these crisp fall days.

Fallen leaves, lawn clippings, weeds, vegetable refuse, and other plant residues can be valuable sources of organic matter for a compost pile.

Start a compost pile during your regular fall clean-up by piling soil, refuse, and even manure, in alternate layers, so that it will rot and form humus.

Then dig a shallow pit, six or eight inches deep and about four feet wide, to accommodate all this waste material. Pack the material in layers, keeping it moist and sprinkling handfuls of commercial fertilizer on each layer.

Several months will help, too, the isn't necessary for good results.

sub.

Make the pile about four feet deep and use boards or poultry wire to hold it in place.

Put a layer of soil a few inches thick on the top. Form a dish-like surface to catch rainfall and keep the pile moist. You may have to add some water occasionally. Stir the pile every couple of months to speed up the rotting process.

Then, put this compost on your garden next spring. You'll be delighted with the results.

ESTABLISHED AT VPI

Nematodes are tiny, eel-like creatures that live in the soil in unbelievable numbers. Some nematodes are beneficial to man, but others are vicious pests of plants and animals. Nematodes can cut yields by 50 per cent or more in tobacco, peanut, vegetable, ornamental, and other economic crops.

Now Virginia crop producers and homeowners will be the first to have a nematode assay and control clinic service available to them. Such a clinic will be in operation about December 1, in Room 301, Price Hall, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Blacksburg.

Dr. Wyatt Osborne, plant pathologist, will be in charge of the clinic. It will also employ a full time technician and the most modern processing equipment and techniques.

The clinic will function as a laboratory where plant and soil samples can be sent for nematode determination. Nematodes will be identified and classified according to type and economic importance on specific host crops. Latest control recommendations will be made according to the nematode species and host plant involved. Records will be kept on each sample for nematode survey purposes, says Osborne.

A complete library of publications on nematode classification, host range, pathogenicity, and control measures will be maintained as a service to agricultural workers.

For example, in some places in 1963 and again in 1964, some dairymen bought alfalfa hay for $55 per ton. At the same time they could have bought shelled corn for about $40 per ton.

If the alfalfa hay contained 40 therms net energy (half as much as the corn with 80 therms per 100 pounds) they really could afford to pay no more than half as much or $20 per ton for the hay on an energy value basis.

In such a situation it is foolish to buy hay except to supply the small amount absolutely required by the cow.

Corn silage is often produced at a cost of less than $5 per ton, with a market value of $10 to $12. Excellent corn silage with 20 therms NE per 100 pounds contains half as much net energy as 40-therm hay and is therefore worth half as much.

On this basis, if one had to pay $55 per ton for hay, the silage would be worth $27.50 and if silage were obtainable at $10 per ton, it is a much better buy, if you can get it, than the hay.

Many dairymen interpret this to mean cows should be fed as much forage as possible. This is often true, but one needs to compare costs of nutrients in various feeds periodically to keep feed costs low. Even foragers differ in costs of nutrients.

ATTEND P.A. STATE

VIRGINIA BEACH — Two area students are among the nearly 5,100 freshmen admitted to The Pennsylvania State University for the Fall Term.

They are Harrison G. Dudley, Jr., of 5064 School Rd., and Marion Lea Foster, 5725 Cheyenne Circle.

UNUSUAL WINDOW SHADES and an intricately shaped cornice make the windows the outstanding feature of this room. When lowered, the window shades become pictures on the wall. The floor length case curtains trimmed with silk fringe maintain the formal feeling of the room.

CAREFULLY COORDINATED WINDOW SHADES are subtly featured in this room by Dennis Curtis, Editor, "1964 Decorating Ideas." A floor print is used on the slipcovers and drapes to a rich, wide band on the drapery lining, visible when the drapes are tied back. It also makes an unusual red cover. A moon fringe on the window shades and in slipcover bands coordinates them with the wall color. Ruffled Taps and No-Fly Hooks easily adjust the window shades to fit.

ORDINARY DIME STORE WINDOW SHADES can be given new zest with the use of a decorator trimming. A narrow band of trim to the shade and coordinated to the black and white print of the fabric and wallpaper gives this kitchen a well-planned look.

HEALTH TIPS

The last few years have seen a flood of new hair-coloring products, and a hand-in-hand came a change in public attitude toward their use, says Today's Health, the magazine of the American Medical Association.

Today, hair color is not just acceptable—it is high fashion, says the magazine article, prepared by a noted dermatologist and a cosmetic chemist, in consultation with the Committee on Cutaneous Health and Cosmetics of the AMA.

This year Americans are expected to spend one hundred million dollars on hair-coloring products. While women are the principal users, many men also use hair color.

Hair color can be modified in one of two ways. The natural pigment of the hair can be bleached, and thereby lightened, or artificial coloring can be applied. Often both operations are carried out to produce the desired effect.

The importance of reading and observing the directions for using all hair-coloring products cannot be overemphasized. This is especially true of the permanent colors. They are most difficult to remove. Modern hair-coloring products will give excellent results for most users, but only if the instructions are carefully followed.

One of the major causes of dissatisfaction by home users is the mistaken belief that a single application of hair color will produce any desired shade. This is not so. It is quite simple to cover gray hair or to color light hair a darker shade, but it is not yet possible for a single application of any hair coloring to change black or dark brown hair to a pale blond.

Peroxy compounds, especially hydrogen peroxide, are widely used in bleaching hair. Six per cent hydrogen peroxide solution is the standard strength, and is safe, if proper precautions are observed. Stronger concentrations can produce burns and blistering of the scalp. Excessive bleaching can leave the hair harsh, strawlike and brittle.

Largest and most important group of hair dyes are those based on synthetic organic chemicals. These are in three categories—oxidation dyes, semi-permanent dyes and temporary dyes. Oxidation dyes are the most widely used.

Most professional hair coloring or tinting is now done with oxidation dyes, and they also have become popular for home use. They are the only products that color the hair quickly and yet produce all varieties of natural hair shades which are lasting.

The biggest question about oxidation dyes is their hazard. It has been estimated that about one person in 50,000 will have an unpleasant reaction, such as a skin rash, swelling about the eyes, redness and crusting of the face and neck, plus itching and discomfort. The victim, while uncomfortable, should be aware that this is not a serious illness and that she will recover.

Included with each package, according to federal regulations, are instructions for performing a patch test before using oxidation dyes, to determine whether there is an allergy. The test should be repeated before each application of the dye. And the dyes should not be used on eyebrows or eyelashes, because of possible danger to the eye.

In addition to the oxidation dyes, there also are semi-permanent dyes, which usually will wash out with one shampoo; acid color rinses, using harmless organic acids, vegetable dyes, principally henna, and metallic dyes, no longer as popular as in the past.

If you decide to change the color of your hair, and if you decide to do it yourself rather than seek a professional job, the important thing to remember is to read the instructions on the label and the package insert, and follow them carefully. These are for your own safety and protection.

C. FRANCIS LAY

Assistant Agent

"You will never 'find' time for anything. If you want time you must make it."—Charles Buxton

Hello folks. Many times in this column, I have written that urban young people can join 4-H. The reason that I do this is because many people here in the City of Virginia Beach have told me that they thought 4-H was for farm youth only. Another misconception about 4-H is that one must take an animal or crops project. Of the 35 projects that are offered in 4-H, less than 1/2 of them are animal or crops projects. 4-H Club projects are designed to fit the family situation and many of them are indoor projects. In addition to the cooking and sewing, one can take such projects as Home Improvement, Electricity, Home Safety, Health, Photography, Entomology (Insect Identification), and Career Exploration. Through 4-H Club work young people, rural and urban, can learn skills and attitudes that they will need to become responsible citizens of tomorrow.

Parents Are Important to 4-H Club Work

If a child is to get the most from his 4-H Club experiences, his parents must show an interest in his activities. If parents encourage and guide, they will find their 4-H Club members maturing with responsibility, growing mentally through mastering knowledge and skills, and increasing understanding of the world about them. Through group activity the children will learn to adjust to new and different situations.

The parent can aid the 4-H program by:

1. Cooperating with the club member, leaders, and agents by furnishing transportation, refreshments and their homes for meetings.
2. Keeping informed by contacting local leader and Extension agent for correct information, asking for printed material that will help your club member, and by getting acquainted with other club members and parents of 4-H'ers.
3. Giving their club members varied experiences by helping with arrangements for tours, demonstrations, camps, and other group activities.
4. By being aware of young people's needs and interests.
5. By helping their club members to select a project.

4-H Achievement Night Being Planned

The Achievement Night Committee of the 4-H Council has planned an interesting program for the Annual Achievement Night to be held in the Kempsville Junior High School at 8:00 p.m. on November 20, 1964. The Committee members are Johnny Bloutron, Chairman; Mary Bungard, Theresa Pescek, and Ruth Anne Oliver. The program will consist of awards to outstanding club members for project work and leadership, talent acts and speeches by winners of City-wide contests, individual and club booths. This is an event which every club member and their parents and friends should plan to attend.
